Notice of Maintenance Fees Payable

Title 37, Code of Federal Regulations, Section 1.362(d), effective Nov. 1, 1984, provides that maintenance fees may be paid without surcharge for a six-month period beginning 3, 7, and 11 years after the date of issue of patents based on application filed on or after Dec. 12, 1980. An additional six-month grace period is provided by 35 U.S.C. 41(b) and 37 CFR 1.362(e) for payment of the maintenance fee with the surcharge set forth in 37 CFR 1.20(k) or (l), as amended effective Apr. 17, 1989. If the maintenance fee is not paid in a patent requiring such payment the patent will expire on the 4th, 8th or 12th anniversary of the patent.

Attention is drawn to the patents which were issued on August 26, 1986, for which maintenance fees due at 3 years and six months may now be paid. The patents have patent numbers within the following ranges:

Utility Patents 4,607,396 through 4,608,714
Reissue Patents based on the above identified patents.

Attention is drawn to the patents which were issued on August 24, 1982 for which maintenance fees due at 7 years and six months may now be paid. The patents have patent numbers within the following ranges:

Utility Patents 4,345,335 through 4,346,480
Reissue Patents based on the above identified patents.

No maintenance fees are required for design or plant patents.

Payments of maintenance fees in patents should be directed to "Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Box M. Fee, Washington, D.C. 20231."

The current amounts of the maintenance fees due at 3 years and six months and seven years and six months are set forth in 37 CFR 1.20(e), (f), (h) and (i), as amended effective Apr. 17, 1989, which are reproduced below:

37 CFR § 1.20 Post-issuance fees

" (e) For maintaining an original or reissue patent, except a design or plant patent, based on an application filed on or after after Dec. 12, 1980 and before Aug. 27, 1982, in force beyond 4 years; the fee is due by three years and six months after the original grant.....$245.00"

"(f) For maintaining an original or reissue patent, except a design or plant patent, based on an application filed on or after Dec. 12, 1980 and before Aug. 27, 1982, in force beyond 8 years; the fee is due by seven years and six months after the original grant..... $495.00"

"(h) For maintaining an original or reissue patent except a design or plant patent, based on an application filed on or after Aug. 27,1982, in force beyond 4 years; the fee is due by three years and six months after the original grant:

By a small entity (§1.9(f))..... $245.00
By other than a small entity..... $490.00"

"(i) For maintaining an original or reissue patent, except a design or plant patent, based on an application filed on or after Aug. 27, 1982, in force beyond 8 years; the fee is due by seven years and six months after the original grant:

By a small entity (§1.9(f))..... $495.00
By other than a small enttity..... $990.00"

The amounts of the surcharges as amended effective Apr. 17, 1989, are set forth in 37 CFR 1.20 (k), (l) and (m) which are reproduced below:

"(k) Surcharge for paying a maintenance fee during the 6-month grace period following the expiration of three years and six months , seven years and six months, and eleven years and six months after the date of the original grant of a patent based on an application filed on or after Dec. 12, 1980 and before Aug. 27, 1982..... $120.00"

"(l) Surcharge for paying a maintenance fee during the 6-month grace period following the expiration of three years and six months, seven years and six months, and eleven years and six months after the date of the original grant of a patent based on an application filed on or after Aug. 27, 1982:

By a small entity(§1.9(f))..... $60.00
By other than a small entity..... $120.00"

"(m) Surcharge for accepting a maintenance fee after expiration of a patent for non-timely payment of a maintenance fee where the delay is shown to the satisfaction of the Commissioner to have been unavoidable..... $550.00"

Notice of Expiration of Patents Due to Failure to Pay Maintenance Fees

35 U.S.C. 41 and 37 CFR 1.362(g) provide that if the required maintenance fee and any applicable surcharge are not paid in a patent requiring such payment, the patent will expire at the end of the 4th, 8th, or 12th anniversary of the grant of the patent depending on the first maintenance fee which was not paid.

According to the records of the Office, the patents listed below have expired due to failure to pay the required maintenance fee and any applicable surcharge.

SERVICE STATISTICS

•Assignment Backlog Update — During July the focus was on processing of those assignments received with new patent applications in order to get back on track with our first-in/first-out workflow. The result of this cleanup effort has been several days increase in the time to record patent assignments received from the Mail Room. Over 6,200 new patent application assignments and 2,500 mail room assignments were processed this month. Now both types of work are moving properly through the branch. Currently, information for assignments filed with new patent applications through March 17, 1989, is availible to the public. For patent assignments received in the Mail Room, the public information date is April 18, 1989.

During the last several weeks there has been an increase in the number of trademark assignments filed. An average of 242 were received per week this month compared to an average of 197 per week in June. This increase in filings, and our introduction of additional training for conveyance examiners and paralegals on the complexities of trademark assignments, has resulted in some increased processing time for trademark assignment documents.

During this reporting period, a total of 10,281 recorded patent assignments and 1,725 recorded trademark assignments were mailed back to the correspondent. This compares to 6,565 patent assignments and 1,109 trademark assignments in the previous period.

IMPROVEMENTS TO SERVICE

•Assignment Inquiries— A new Records Control and Status Section of the Assignment Branch has been staffed and is available for public inquiries regarding assignment document processing. The telephone number is (703) 557-8691.

SPECIAL BOXES FOR MAIL

Special PTO mail box numbers should be used to allow forwarding of particular types of mail to the appropriate areas as quickly as possible. Such mail is forwarded directly to the appropriate area without being opened. Only the specified type of document should be placed in an envelope addressed to one of these boxes. If any documents other than the specified type identified for each box are addressed to that box, they will be delayed in reaching the appropriate area for which they are intended.

The following special boxes should be used only for their specified purpose. Address mail as follows:

Box _____
Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks
Washington, D.C. 20231

Box 3	Mail for the Office of Personnel from NFC.
Box 4	Mail for the Assistant Commissioner for External Affairs and the Office of Legislation and International Affairs.
Box 5	"No fee" mail related to trademarks.
Box 6	Mail for the Office of Procurement.
Box 7	Reissue applications for patents involved in litigation and subsequently filed related papers.
Box 8	All papers for the Office of the Solicitor except communications relating to pending litigation.
Box 9	Coupon orders for U.S. patent and trademark copies.
Box 10	Orders for certified copies of patent and trademark applications.
Box 11	Electronic Ordering Service (EOS).
Box 12	Contributions to the Examiner Education Program.
Box 13	Mail for the Employee and Labor Relations Division.
Box AF	Expedited procedure for processing amendments and other responses after final rejection.
Box FWC	Requests for File Wrapper Continuation Applications.
Box Interference	Communications relating to interferences and applications and patents involved in interference.
Box Issue Fee	All communications following the receipt of a PTOL-85, "Notice of Allowance and Issue Fee Due," and prior to the issuance of a patent should be addressed to Box Issue Fee, unless advised to the contrary. Assignments are the exception. Assignments should be submitted in a separate envelope and not be sent to Box Issue.
Box M. Fee	Correspondence related to a patent that is subject to the payment of a maintenance fee.
Box Non Fee Amendment	Non-fee amendments to patent applications. (Use Box AF for responses after final rejection.)
Box OED	Mail for the Office of Enrollment and Discipline.
Box Pat. Ext.	Applications for patent term extension.
Box PCT	Mail related to applications filed under the Patent Cooperation Treaty.
Box Reexam	Mail related to Reexamination.
Box SN	For fee and petitions under 37 CFR 1.182 to obtain date received and/or serial number for patent application prior to the Office's standard notification (return post card or the official "Filing Receipt," "Notice to File Missing Parts," or "Notice of Incomplete Application").
PATENT APPLICATION	New patent application and associated papers and fees.
TRADEMARK APPLICATION	New trademark application and associated papers and fees.
Box Assignments	All assignment documents except those filed in new patent applications.

Reference Collection of U.S. Patents Available for Public Use in Patent Depository Libraries

The following libraries, designated as Patent Depository Libraries (PDLs), receive current issues of U.S. Patents and maintain collections of earlier-issued patents. The scope of these collections varies from library to libary, ranging from patents of only recent years to all or most of the patents issued since 1790.

These patent collections, which are organized in patent number sequence, are available for use by the public free of charge. Each of the PDLs, in addition, offers supplemental reference publications of the U.S. Patent Classification System, including the Manual of Classification, Index to the U.S. Patent Classification, Classification Definitions, and provides technical staff assistance in their use to aid the public, in gaining effctive access to information contained in patents. CASSIS (Classification And Search Support Information System); which provides direct, on-line access to Patent and Trademark Office data, is available at all PDLs. Facilities for making paper copies of patents from either microfilm or paper collections are generally provided for a fee.

Since there are variations in the scope of patent collections among the PDLs and in their hours of service to the public, anyone contemplating use of the patents at a particular library is urged to contact that library, in advance, about its collection and hours in order to avert possible inconvenience.

MARKS PUBLISHED FOR OPPOSITION

The following marks are published in compliance with section 12(a) of the Trademark Act of 1946. Applications for the registration of marks in more than one class have been filed as provided in section 30 of said act as amended by Public Law 772, 87th Congress, approved Oct. 9, 1962, 76 Stat. 769. Opposition under section 13 may be filed within thirty days of the date of this publication. See rules 2.101 to 2.105.

A separate fee of two hundred dollars for opposing each mark in each class must accompany the opposition.

SECTION 1.—INTERNATIONAL CLASSIFICATION

The short titles associated below with the international class numbers are terms designed merely for quick identification and are not an official part of the international classification. The full names of international classes are given in section 6.1 of the trademark rules of practice.

The designation "U.S. Cl." appearing in this section refers to the U.S. class in effect prior to Sep. 1, 1973 rather than the international class which applies to applications filed on or after that date. For adoption of international classification see notice in the OFFICIAL GAZETTE of Jun. 26, 1973 (911 O.G. TM 210).

SECTION 2.—INTERNATIONAL CLASSIFICATION

The short titles associated below with the international class numbers are terms designed merely for quick identification and are not an official part of the international classification. The full names of international classes are given in section 6.1 of the trademark rules of practice.

The designation "U.S. Cl." appearing in this section refers to the U.S. class in effect prior to Sep. 1, 1973 rather than the international class which applies to applications filed on or after that date. For adoption of international classification see notice in the OFFICIAL GAZETTE of Jun. 26, 1973 (911 O.G. TM 210).

SECTION 1.—INTERNATIONAL CLASSIFICATION

The short titles associated below with the international class numbers are terms designed merely for quick identification and are not an official part of the international classification. The full names of international classes are given in section 6.1 of the trademark rules of practice.

The designation "U.S. Cl." appearing in this section refers to the U.S. class in effect prior to Sep. 1, 1973 rather than the international class which applies to applications filed on or after that date. For adoption of international classification see notice in the OFFICIAL GAZETTE of Jun. 26, 1973 (911 O.G. TM 210).

SECTION 2.—INTERNATIONAL CLASSIFICATION

The short titles associated below with the international class numbers are terms designed merely for quick identification and are not an official part of the international classification. The full names of international classes are given in section 6.1 of the trademark rules of practice.

The designation "U.S. Cl." appearing in this section refers to the U.S. class in effect prior to Sep. 1, 1973 rather than the international class which applies to applications filed on or after that date. For adoption of international classification see notice in the OFFICIAL GAZETTE of Jun. 26, 1973 (911 O.G. TM 210).

SECTION 18

TRADEMARK REGISTRATIONS AMENDED, CORRECTED, ETC.

The designation "U.S. Cl." appearing in this section refers to the U.S. class in effect prior to Sep. 1, 1973 rather than the international class which applies to applications filed on or after that date. For adoption of international classification see notice in the OFFICIAL GAZETTE of Jun. 26, 1973 (911 O.G. TM 210).

Any change to the registration will be indicated at the bottom of each entry under ELEMENTS AMENDED, CORRECTED OR RESTRICTED. With the exception of changes to the goods and services, additions to the registration will appear in asterisks and deletions of the registration will appear in brackets. Elements which are only changed will be listed with no punctuation. As to the goods/services statement, amendments to the goods/services will appear in asterisks and deletions will appear in brackets. In addition if any change to the goods/services occurs, the element "Goods/Services" will be listed under ELEMENTS AMENDED, CORRECTED OR RESTRICTED.

Notice of Maintenance Fees Payable

Title 37, Code of Federal Regulations, Section 1.362(d), effective Nov. 1, 1984, provides that maintenance fees may be paid without surcharge for a six-month period beginning 3, 7, and 11 years after the date of issue of patents based on application filed on or after Dec. 12, 1980. An additional six-month grace period is provided by 35 U.S.C. 41(b) and 37 CFR 1.362(e) for payment of the maintenance fee with the surcharge set forth in 37 CFR 1.20(k) or (l), as amended effective Apr. 17, 1989. If the maintenance fee is not paid in a patent requiring such payment the patent will expire on the 4th, 8th or 12th anniversary of the patent.

Attention is drawn to the patents which were issued on September 2, 1986, for which maintenance fees due at 3 years and six months may now be paid. The patents have patent numbers within the following ranges:

Utility Patents 4,608,715 through 4,610,033
Reissue Patents based on the above identified patents.

Attention is drawn to the patents which were issued on August 31, 1982 for which maintenance fees due at 7 years and six months may now be paid. The patents have patent numbers within the following ranges:

Utility Patents 4,346,481 through 4,347,628
Reissue Patents based on the above identified patents.

No maintenance fees are required for design or plant patents.

Payments of maintenance fees in patents should be directed to "Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Box M. Fee, Washington, D.C. 20231."

The current amounts of the maintenance fees due at 3 years and six months and seven years and six months are set forth in 37 CFR 1.20(e), (f), (h) and (i), as amended effective Apr. 17, 1989, which are reproduced below:

37 CFR § 1.20 Post-issuance fees

"(e) For maintaining an original or reissue patent, except a design or plant patent, based on an application filed on or after after Dec. 12, 1980 and before Aug. 27, 1982, in force beyond 4 years; the fee is due by three years and six months after the original grant.....$245.00"

"(f) For maintaining an original or reissue patent, except a design or plant patent, based on an application filed on or after Dec. 12, 1980 and before Aug. 27, 1982, in force beyond 8 years; the fee is due by seven years and six months after the original grant.....$495.00"

"(h) For maintaining an original or reissue patent except a design or plant patent, based on an application filed on or after Aug. 27,1982, in force beyond 4 years; the fee is due by three years and six months after the original grant:

By a small entity (§1.9(f)).....$245.00
By other than a small entity.....$490.00"

"(i) For maintaining an original or reissue patent, except a design or plant patent, based on an application filed on or after Aug. 27, 1982, in force beyond 8 years; the fee is due by seven years and six months after the original grant:

By a small entity (§1.9(f)).....$495.00
By other than a small enttity.....$990.00"

The amounts of the surcharges as amended effective Apr. 17, 1989, are set forth in 37 CFR 1.20 (k), (l) and (m) which are reproduced below:

"(k) Surcharge for paying a maintenance fee during the 6-month grace period following the expiration of three years and six months , seven years and six months, and eleven years and six months after the date of the original grant of a patent based on an application filed on or after Dec. 12, 1980 and before Aug. 27, 1982.....$120.00"

"(l) Surcharge for paying a maintenance fee during the 6-month grace period following the expiration of three years and six months, seven years and six months, and eleven years and six months after the date of the original grant of a patent based on an application filed on or after Aug. 27, 1982:

By a small entity(§1.9(f)).....$60.00
By other than a small entity.....$120.00"

"(m) Surcharge for accepting a maintenance fee after expiration of a patent for non-timely payment of a maintenance fee where the delay is shown to the satisfaction of the Commissioner to have been unavoidable.....$550.00"

Notice of Expiration of Patents Due to Failure to Pay Maintenance Fees

35 U.S.C. 41 and 37 CFR 1.362(g) provide that if the required maintenance fee and any applicable surcharge are not paid in a patent requiring such payment, the patent will expire at the end of the 4th, 8th, or 12th anniversary of the grant of the patent depending on the first maintenance fee which was not paid.

According to the records of the Office, the patents listed below have expired due to failure to pay the required maintenance fee and any applicable surcharge.

Patentable Subject Matter

Mathematical Algorithms and Computer Programs

The following represents a recent legal analysis done by Associate Solicitor Lee E. Barrett, an attorney in the Office of the Solicitor of the Patent and Trademark Office, on the subject of the patentability of mathematical algorithms and computer programs. The analysis is published for the benefit of the public.

Discussion

I. Statutory Subject Matter - 35 U.S.C. § 101

Inventions may be patented only if they fall within one of the four statutory classes of subject matter of 35 U.S.C. § 101: "process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter," See Kewanee Oil Co. v. Bicron Corp., 416 U.S. 470, 483, 181 USPQ 673, 679 (1974):

> [N]o patent is available for a discovery, however useful, novel, and nonobvious, unless it falls within one of the express categories of patentable subject matter of 35 U.S.C. § 101.

Subject matter that does not fall within one of the statutory classes of 35 U.S.C. § 101 is said to be "nonstatutory" or to be "unpatentable subject matter."

The broad language of § 101 is intended to dilineate a "general industrial boundary" of patentable invention. In re Bergy, 596 F.2d 952, 974 n.11, 201 USPQ 352, 372 n.11 (CCPA 1979), vacated, 444 U.S. 1028, aff'd sub nom., Diamond v. Chakrabarty, 447 U.S. 303, 206 USPQ 193 (1980). The first statutory class, process, is defined in 35 U.S.C. § 100(b) and refers to acts, while the last three classes, machine, manufacture and composition of matter, refer to physical things; therefore, the general field of patentable invention consists of new acts and new things. Id. The classes relevant to this discussion are "process" and "machine." A "process" is equivalent to a "method." Bergy, 596 F.2d at 965, 201 USPQ at 364. The term "machine" is used interchangeably with "apparatus." In re Prater, 415 F.2d 1393, 1395 n.11, 162 USPQ 541, 543 n.11 (CCPA 1969).

The question of whether a claimed invention satisfies the other conditions for patentability is "wholly apart from whether the invention falls into a category of statutory subject matter" (emphasis deleted). Diamond v. Diehr, 450 U.S. 175, 190, 209 USPQ 1, 9 (1981) (citing Bergy, 596 F.2d at 961, 201 USPQ at 361). As stated in Parker v. Flook, 437 U.S. 584, 593, 198 USPQ 193, 198-99 (1978):

> The obligation to determine what type of discovery is sought to be patented must precede the determination of whether that discovery is, in fact, new [i.e., novel under § 102] or obvious [§ 103].

See also In re Sarkar, 588 F.2d 1330, 1333 n.10, 200 USPQ 132, 137 n.10 (CCPA 1978) ("If the subject matter as claimed is subject to patenting, i.e., if it falls within § 101, it must them be examined for compliance with §§ 102 and 103").

Legislative history indicates that Congress contemplated that the subject matter provisions be given a broad construction and were intended to "include anything under the sun that is made by man." Diamond v. Chakrabarty, 447 U.S. at 309, 206 USPQ at 197. Any process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter constitutes statutory subject matter unless it falls within a judicially determined exception to § 101. In re Pardo, 684 F.2d 912, 916, 214 USPQ 673, 677 (CCPA 1982). Exceptions include laws of nature, physical phenomena and abstract ideas. Diehr, 450 U.S. at 185, 209 USPQ at 7, and cases cited therein. This analysis addresses whether mathematical algorithms and computer programs are statutory subject matter.

II. Mathematical Algorithms

A. Mathematical algorithms per se are not a statutory "process" under § 101

A mathematical algorithm is defined as a "procedure for solving a given type of mathematical problem." Gottschalk v. Benson, 409 U.S. 63, 65, 175 USPQ 673, 674 (1972); Flook, 437 U.S. at 585 n.1, 198 USPQ at 195 n.1; Diehr, 450 U.S. at 186, 209 USPQ at 8. Mathematical algorithms are nonstatutory because they have been determined not to fall within the § 101 statutory class of a "process." Benson. "[A]n algorithm, or mathematical formula, is like a law of nature, which cannot be the subject of a patent." Diehr, 450 U.S. at 186, 209 USPQ at 8. The exception applies only to mathematical algorithms since any process is an "algorithm" in the sense that it is a step-by-step procedure to arrive at a given result. In re Walter, 618 F.2d 758, 764 n.4, 205 USPQ 397, 405 n.4. (CCPA 1980); Pardo, 684 F.2d at 915, 214 USPQ at 676.

Although mathematical algorithms per se are nonstatutory, as stated in Diehr, 450 U.S. at 187-88, 209 USPQ at 8-9:

> [A] claim drawn to subject matter otherwise statutory does not become nonstatutory simply because it uses a mathematical formula, computer program, or digital computer. . . . [I]n Parker v. Flook we stated that "a process is not unpatentable simply because it contains a law of nature or a mathematical algorithm." 437 U.S. at 590. It is now commonplace that an application of a law of nature or mathematical formula to a known structure or process may well be deserving of patent protection. As Justice Stone explained four decades ago:
> > "While a scientific truth, or the mathematical expression of it, is not a patentable invention, a novel and useful structure created with the aid of knowledge of scientific truth may be." Mackay Radio & Telegraph Co. v. Radio Corp. of America, 306 U.S. 86, 94 (1939). [Citations omitted.]

The Supreme Court thus recognizes that mathematical algorithms are "the basic tools of scientific and technological work," Benson, 409 U.S. at 67, 175 USPQ at 675, and should not be the subject of exclusive rights, whereas technological application of scientific principles and mathematical algorithms furthers the constitutional purpose of promoting "the Progress of . . . Useful arts." U.S. Const. art. I, § 8. It is also recognized that mathematical algorithms may be the most precise way to describe the invention.

Where claims involve mathematical algorithms, as stated in In re Abele, 684 F.2d 902, 907, 214 USPQ 682, 687 (CCPA 1982):

> The goal is to answer the question "What did applicants invent?" If the claimed invention is a mathematical algorithm, it is improper subject matter for patent protection, whereas if the claimed invention is an application of the algorithm, § 101 will not bar the grant of a patent.

The tests for determining whether claims containing mathematical algorithms are statutory have gradually evolved in the courts since the Supreme Court's decision in Benson in 1972.

B. Evolution of the two-part test for mathematical algorithm-statutory subject matter

The proper legal analysis of mathematical algorithm-statutory subject matter cases is the two-part test of In re Freeman, 573 F.2d 1237, 197 USPQ 464 (CCPA 1978), as modified by Walter and Abele. See In re Meyer, 688 F.2d 789, 796, 215 USPQ 193, 198 (CCPA 1982) ("A more comprehensive test for cases involving mathematical algorithms is set forth in In re Abele"). A review of the evolution of the analysis provides some useful insights into the application of the test.

In Benson, the Supreme Court concluded that claims directed to a particular algorithm for converting binary coded decimal numbers to binary numbers was not statutory subject matter. The Supreme Court further concluded that any patent issued on those claims "would wholly pre-empt the mathematical formula and in practical effect would be a patent on the algorithm itself." 409 U.S. at 72, 175 USPQ at 676. These two conclusions formed the basis for the two-part analysis of the Court of Customs and Patent Appeals (CCPA) in Freeman, 573 F.2d at 1245, 197 USPQ at 471:

> First, it must be determined whether the claim directly or indirectly recites an "algorithm" in the Benson sense of that term, for a claim which fails even to recite an algorithm clearly cannot wholly preempt an algorithm. Second, the claim must be further analyzed to ascertain whether in its entirety it wholly preempts that algorithm.

In 1978, the Supreme Court held in Flook that a claim need "not . . . cover every conceivable application of the formula" to be nonstatutory. 437 U.S. at 586, 198 USPQ at 196. This decision left undefined what constitutes statutory subject matter. In Walter, the CCPA modified the second step of Freeman to require a more positive approach to determining what is claimed, 618 F.2d at 767, 205 USPQ at 407:

> If it appears that the mathematical algorithm is implemented in a specific manner to define structural relationships between the physical elements of the claim (in apparatus claims) or to refine or limit claim steps (in process claims), the claim being otherwise statutory, the claim passes muster under § 101. If, however, the mathematical algorithm is merely presented and solved by the claimed invention, as was the case in Benson and Flook, and is not applied in any manner to physical elements or process steps, no amount of post-solution activity will render the claim statutory; nor is it saved by a preamble merely reciting the field of use of the mathematical algorithm.

The CCPA noted that while the second step of Freeman was "stated in terms of preemption" it had consistently been applied "in the spirit of the foregoing principles." 618 F.2d at 767, 205 USPQ at 407.

In Abele, the CCPA further modified the second part of the test to provide a more comprehensive test, 684 F.2d at 906-7, 214 USPQ at 686:

> Appellants summarize the Walter test as setting forth two ends of a spectrum: what is now clearly nonstatutory, i.e., claims in which an algorithm is merely presented and solved by the claimed invention (preemption), and what is clearly statutory, i.e., claims in which an algorithm is implemented in a specific manner to define structural relationships between the physical elements of the claim (in an apparatus claim) or to refine or limit steps (in a process). Appellants urge that the statement of the test in Walter fails to provide a useful tool for analyzing claims in the "gray area" which falls between the two ends of that spectrum. We agree that the board's understanding and application of the Walter analysis justifies appellant's position. However, the Walter analysis quoted above does not limit patentable subject matter only to claims in which structural relationships or process steps are defined, limited or refined by the application of the algorithm.
> Rather, Walter should be read as requiring no more than that the algorithm be "applied in any manner to physical elements or process steps," provided that its application is circumscribed by more than a field of use limitation or non-essential post-solution activity. Thus, if the claim would be "otherwise statutory," id., albeit inoperative or less useful without the algorithm, the claim likewise presents statutory subject matter when the algorithm is included. This broad reading of Walter, we conclude, is in accord with the Supreme Court decisions [holding "that a claim drawn to subject matter otherwise statutory does not become nonstatutory simply because it uses a mathematical formula, computer program, or digital computer," Diamond v. Diehr, 450 U.S. at 187, 209 USPQ at 8].

The reason for the modification of the test was because, as noted in Abele, 684 F.2d at 909, 214 USPQ at 688:

> The algorithm [in Abele] does not necessarily refine or limit the earlier steps of production and detection as would be required to achieve the status of patentable subject matter by the board's narrow reading of Walter.

The second test of Abele suggests that the determination of whether the algorithm is "applied in any manner to physical element or process steps" may be made by viewing the claims without the algorithm and determining whether what remains is "otherwise statutory." This analysis focuses on identifying the statutory process in the claim and is consistent with previous cases such as Walter, 618 F.2d at 769, 205 USPQ at 409 ("Examination of each claim demonstrates that each has no substance apart from the calculations involved"). The technique of viewing the claim without the mathematical algorithm is not inconsistent with the requirement that claims must be considered "as a whole" under § 101.

The requirement that claims be considered "as a whole" arose out of the now rejected "point of novelty" approach to statutory subject matter. Under the "point of novelty" approach, if a claim considered without the nonstatutory subject matter was unpatentable over the prior art (i.e., if the algorithm was at the "point of novelty" of the claim), the claims were found to not recite statutory subject matter. This approach was consistently rejected by the CCPA. See In re Chatfield, 545 F.2d 152, 191 USPQ 730 (CCPA 1976), cert. denied, 434 U.S. 875 (1977); In re Deutsch, 553 F.2d 689, 193 USPQ 645 (CCPA 1977); In re de Castelet, 562 F.2d 1236, 195 USPQ 439 (CCPA 1977); Freeman; Sarkar; Walter. The point of novelty approach was finally put to rest in Diehr, 450 U.S. at 188-89, 209 USPQ at 9:

> In determining the eligibility of respondents' claimed process for patent protection under § 101, their claims must be considered as a whole. It is inappropriate to dissect the claims into old and new elements and then to ignore the presence of the old elements in the analysis. . . . The "novelty" of any element or steps in a process, or even of the process itself, is of no relevance in determining whether the subject matter of a claim falls within the § 101 categories of possibly patentable subject matter.

Under the second test of Abele, the claims are considered without the algorithm to determine whether what remains is "otherwise statutory," not to determine whether what remains is novel and nonobvious.

C. Application of the two-part test

1. Step 1 - presence of a mathematical algorithm

a. Mathematical algorithm

A mathematical algorithm is a "procedure for solving a given type of mathematical problem." In this sense, a mathematical algorithm refers "to methods of calculation, mathematical formulas, and mathematical procedures generally." Walter, 618 F.2d at 764-65 n.4, 205 USPQ at 405 n.4. "The type of mathematical computation involved does not determine whether a procedure is statutory or nonstatutory." In re Gelnovatch, 595 F.2d 32, 41, 201 USPQ 136, 145 (CCPA 1979). A "claim for an improved method of calculation, even when tied to a specific end use, is unpatentable subject matter under § 101." Flook, 437 U.S. at 595 n.18, 198 USPQ at 199 n.18.

Mathematical algorithms may represent scientific principles, laws of nature, or ideas or mental processes for solving complex problems. See Meyer, 688 F.2d at 794-95, 215 USPQ at 197:

> Scientific principles, such as the relationship between mass and energy [$E = mc^2$], and laws of nature, such as the acceleration of gravity, namely $a = 32$ ft./sec.^{2}, can be represented in mathematical format. However, some mathematical algorithms and formulae do not represent scientific principles or laws of nature; they represent ideas or mental processes and are simply logical vehicles for communicating possible solutions to complex problems.

See also Safe Flight Instrument Corp. v. Sundstrand Data Control, Inc., 706 F. Supp. 1146, 10 USPQ2d 1733 (D.Del. 1989) (mathematical algorithm representing a natural phenomenon, windshear). No distinction is made between mathematical algorithms invented by man, and mathematical algorithms representing discoveries of scientific principles and laws of nature which reveal a relationship that has always existed.

b. "Process" versus "apparatus" claims

Since mathematical algorithms have been determined not to fall within the § 101 statutory class of a "process," attempts have been made to circumvent the nonstatutory subject matter rejection by drafting mathematical algorithms as "machine" claims. The technique used is to draft the method steps in terms of "means for" language permitted by 35 U.S.C. § 112, sixth paragraph. While such a claim is technically a "machine" or "apparatus" claim, the courts have held that form of the claim does not control whether the subject matter is statutory. See In re Maucorps, 609 F.2d 481, 485, 203 USPQ 812, 815-16 (CCPA 1979):

> Labels are not determinative in § 101 inquiries. "Benson applies equally whether an invention is claimed as an apparatus or process, because the form of the claim is often an exercise in drafting." In re Johnson, 589 F.2d 1070, 1077, 200 USPQ 199, 206 ([CCPA] 1978). "Though a claim expressed in 'means for' (functional) terms [under 35 U.S.C. § 112, sixth paragraph] is said to be an apparatus claim, the subject matter as a whole of that claim may be indistinguishable from that of a method claim drawn to the steps performed by the 'means.'" In re Freeman, 573 F.2d at 1247, 197 USPQ at 472. Moreover, that the claimed computing system may be a "machine" within "the ordinary sense of the word," as appellant argues, is irrelevant. The holding in Benson "forecloses a purely literal reading of § 101."

The test for determining whether "means for" apparatus claims should be treated as method claims is stated in Walter, 618 F.2d at 768, 205 USPQ at 408:

> If the functionally-defined disclosed means and their equivalents are so broad that they encompass any and every means for performing the recited functions, the apparatus claim is an attempt to exalt form over substance since the claim is really to the method or series of functions itself . . . . In such cases the burden must be placed on the applicant to demonstrate that the claims are truly drawn to specific apparatus distinct from other apparatus capable of performing the identical functions.
> If this burden has not been discharged, the apparatus claim will be treated as if it were drawn to the method or process which encompasses all of the claimed "means." See In re Maucorps, 609 F.2d at 485, 203 USPQ at 815-816; In re Johnson, 589 F.2d at 1077, 200 USPQ at 206; In re Freeman, 573 F.2d at 1247, 197 USPQ at 472. The statutory nature of the claim under § 101 will then depend on whether the corresponding method is statutory.

See also Meyer, 688 F.2d at 795 n.3, 215 USPQ at 198 n.3; Abele, 684 F.2d at 909, 214 USPQ at 688; Pardo, 684 F.2d at 916 n.6, 214 USPQ at 677 n.6; Arshal v. United States, 621 F.2d 421, 427-28, 208 USPQ 397, 404 (Ct. Cl. 1980), cert. denied, 449 U.S. 1077 (1981), reh'g denied, 450 U.S. 1050 (1981). In Maucorps, the limitation of various "means" in claim 1 to include certain "electric circuits" did not prevent the claim from being treated as a method. A claim is not presumed to be statutory simply because it is in apparatus form.

c. Form of the mathematical algorithm

The first step of the analysis is to determine whether the claim directly or indirectly recites a mathematical algorithm. A mathematical algorithm can appear in many forms. As stated in Freeman, 573 F.2d at 1246, 197 USPQ at 471:

> The manner in which a claim recites a mathematical algorithm may vary considerably. In some claims, a formula or equation may be expressed in traditional mathematical symbols so as to be immediately recognizable as a mathematical algorithm. See, e.g., In re Richman, 563 F.2d 1026, 195 USPQ 340 ([CCPA] 1977); In re Flook, 559 F.2d 21, 195 USPQ 9 ([CCPA] 1977), cert. granted sub nom., Parker v. Flook, [437 U.S. 584] (1978). Other claims may use prose to express a mathematical computation or to indirectly recite a mathematical equation or formula by means of a prose equivalent therefor. See, e.g., In re de Castelet, supra (claims 6 and 7); In re Waldbaum, 559 F.2d 611, 194 USPQ 465 ([CCPA] 1977). A claim which substitutes, for a mathematical formula in algebraic form, "words which mean the same thing," nonetheless recites an algorithm in the Benson sense. In re Richman, supra 563 F.2d at 1030, 195 USPQ at 344. Indeed, the claims at issue in Benson did not contain a formula or equation expressed in mathematical symbols.

Claims which include mathematical formulas or calculations expressed in mathematical symbols clearly include a mathematical algorithm. Mathematical algorithms in prose form may be expressed as literal translations of the mathematical algorithm (e.g., substituting the expression "division" or "taking the ratio" for a division sign) or may be expressed in words which indicate the mathematical algorithm. See Safe Flight Instrument, 706 F. Supp. at 1148, 10 USPQ2d at 1734 (subtracting); Abele, 684 F.2d at 908 n.8, 214 USPQ at 687 n.8 ("The algorithm, calculating the difference, is defined in the specification as a Gaussian weighting function"); In re Taner, 681 F.2d 787, 790, 214 USPQ 678, 681 (CCPA 1982) (summing); In re Johnson, 589 F.2d 1070, 1079, 200 USPQ 199, 208 (CCPA 1978) ("'computing' connotes the execution of one or a sequence of mathematical operations"); In re Waldbaum, 559 F.2d 611, 194 USPQ 465 (CCPA 1977) (method of claim 1 "to count" the number of busy lines "solves a mathematical problem, to wit, counting a number of busy lines in a telephone system," In re Bradley, 600 F.2d 807, 810 n.4, 202 USPQ 480, 484 n.4 (CCPA 1979), aff'd by an equally divided court sub nom., Diamond v. Bradley, 450 U.S. 381, 209 USPQ 97 (1981)).

It is not always possible to determine by inspection of the claim whether it indirectly recites a mathematical algorithm; in such instances the analysis "requires careful interpretation of each claim in the light of its supporting disclosure." Johnson, 589 F.2d at 1079, 200 USPQ at 208. See also id. at 1078-79, 200 USPQ at 208 ("the flow diagrams which form part of the specification disclose explicit mathematical equations which are to be used in conjunction with each of these [claimed] steps [of 'determining' or 'correlating']"); Waldbaum, 559 F.2d 611, 194 USPQ 465 ("series of steps for manipulating binary numbers within a procedure for calculating the number of binary 1's and 0's present" was considered a mathematical algorithm, Gelnovatch, 595 F.2d at 39, 201 USPQ at 143); In re Sherwood, 613 F.2d 809, 818, 204 USPQ 537, 545 (CCPA 1980), cert. denied, 450 U.S. 994 (1981) ("claims must be said to include the indirect recitation of a mathematical equation"); Meyer, 688 F.2d at 795, 215 USPQ at 198 (claims indirectly "recite a mathematical algorithm, which represents a mental process that a neurologist should follow").

2. Step 2- is the mathematical algorithm "applied in any manner to physical elements or process steps?"

The second test is to determine whether the mathematical algorithm is "applied in any manner to physical elements or process steps." The guideline for the analysis should be the CCPA's suggestion in Abele to view the claim without the mathematical algorithm to determine whether what remains is "otherwise statutory"; if it is, it does not become nonstatutory simply because it uses a mathematical algorithm. It is recognized that "[t]he line between a patentable 'process' and an unpatentable 'principle' is not always clear." Flook, 437 U.S. at 589, 198 USPQ at 197. There are no definitive "tests for determining whether a claim positively recites statutory subject matter." Meyer, 688 F.2d at 796 n.4, 215 USPQ at 198 n.4. Nevertheless, some useful guidelines may be synthesized out of the court decisions.

a. Post-solution activity

If the only limitation aside from the mathematical algorithm is insignificant or non-essential "post-solution activity," the claimed subject matter is nonstatutory. Flook, 437 U.S. at 590, 198 USPQ at 197:

> The notion that post-solution activity . . . can transform an unpatentable principle into a patentable process exalts form over substance. A competent draftsman could attach some form of post-solution activity to almost any mathematical formula; the Pythagorean theorem would not have been patentable, or partially patentable, because a patent application contained a final step indicating that the formula, when solved, could be usefully applied to existing surveying techniques.

Insignificant post-solution activity by itself is insufficient to constitute a statutory process. In Flook, the final step of adjusting an alarm limit was not sufficient. See also Safe Flight (final step of "means for processing said windshear signal to provide an indication representing the magnitude thereof" not sufficient); Abele, 684 F.2d at 909, 214 USPQ at 688 (final step of display: "that the result is displayed as a shade of gray rather than as simply a number provides no greater or better information, considering the broad range of applications encompassed by the claims"); Walter, 618 F.2d at 770, 205 USPQ at 409 (final step in dependent claim of magnetic recording: "If § 101 could be satisfied by the mere recordation of the results of a nonstatutory process on some record medium, even the most unskilled patent draftsman could provide for such a step"); Gelnovatch, 595 F.2d at 41 n.7, 201 USPQ at 145 n.7 (final step of storing outputs: "each of the steps of the claimed process, except perhaps the final step of equating the process outputs to the values of the last set of process inputs, directly or indirectly recites a mathematical computation"); Sarkar, 588 F.2d at 1332 n.6, 200 USPQ at 136 n.6 (final step of constructing an obstruction at a location determined by a mathematical model: "Sarkar no longer relies upon bridge of dam construction as post-solution activity steps effective to bring his process within § 101"); de Castelet, 562 F.2d at 1244, 195 USPQ at 446 (final step of transmitting: "That the computer is instructed to transmit electrical signals, representing the result of its calculations . . . does not transform the claim into one for a process merely using an algorithm").

The absence of post-solution activity or the fact that any post-solution activity may be trivial is only one factor to be considered. On one hand, as stated in Walter, 618 F.2d at 767-68, 205 USPQ at 407:

> if the end-product of a claimed invention is a pure number, as in Benson and Flook, the invention is nonstatutory regardless of any post-solution activity which makes it available for use by a person or machine for other purposes.

On the other hand, as stated in Abele, 684 F.2d at 908 n.9, 214 USPQ at 687 n.9:

> "the fact that [the] equation is the final step is not determinative of the section 101 issue." In re Richman, 563 F.2d at 1030, 195 USPQ at 343. Accord, In re Taner, 681 F.2d 787 ([CCPA] 1982), overruling In re Christensen, 478 F.2d 1392, 178 USPQ 35 ([CCPA] 1973).

The particular order of the steps should not be determinative of the statutory subject matter inquiry.

b. Field of use limitations

A mathematical algorithm is not made statutory by "attempting to limit the use of the formula to a particular technological environment." Diehr, 450 U.S. at 191, 209 USPQ at 10. Thus, "field of use" or "end use" limitations in the claim preamble are insufficient to constitute a statutory process. This is consistent with the usual treatment of preambles as merely setting forth the environment. See Flook (the preamble, while limiting the application of the claimed method to "a process comprising the catalytic chemical conversion of hydrocarbons" did not serve to render the method statutory); Walter, 618 F.2d at 769, 205 USPQ at 409 ("Although the claim preambles relate the claimed invention to the art of seismic prospecting, the claims themselves are not drawn to methods of or apparatus for seismic prospecting"); de Castelet, 562 F.2d at 1244 n.6, 195 USPQ at 446 n.6 ("The potential for misconstruction of preamble language requires that compelling reason exist before that language may be given weight"). Compare Waldbaum, 559 F.2d at 616 n.6, 194 USPQ 469 n.6 (portion of preambles referred to in method portion of claims "are necessary for completeness of the claims and are proper limitations thereto").

c. Data-gathering steps

If the only limitations in the claims in addition to the mathematical algorithm are data-gathering steps which "merely determine values for the variables used in the mathematical formulae used in making the calculations," such antecedent steps are insufficient to change a nonstatutory method of calculation into a statutory process. See In re Richman, 563 F.2d at 1030, 195 USPQ at 343; Sarkar, 588 F.2d at 1335, 200 USPQ at 139 ("If the steps of gathering and substituting values were alone sufficient, every mathematical equation, formula, or algorithm having any practical use would be per se subject to patenting as a 'process' under § 101"); Gelnovatch, 595 F.2d at 41 n.7, 201 USPQ at 145 n.7 ("claimed step of perturbing the values of a set of process inputs (step 3), in addition to being a mathematical operation, appears to be a data-gathering step"). Where the claim "presents data gathering steps not dictated by the algorithm but by other limitations which require certain antecedent steps" the claim may present statutory subject matter. Abele, 684 F.2d at 908, 214 USPQ at 687.

d. Transformation of something physical

In determining whether the claim recites a statutory process or a nonstatutory mathematical algorithm, it is useful to analyze whether there is transformation of something physical into a different form. One distinction is made between transformation of physical "signals" from one physical state to a different physical state, a statutory process in the electrical arts, and mere mathematical manipulation of "data" which, by itself, is not a statutory process. Compare Taner (conversion of "substantially spherical seismic signals" into "a form representing the earth's response to cylindrical or plane waves" was statutory process); Sherwood, 613 F.2d at 819, 204 USPQ at 546 (conversion of amplitude-versus-time seismic traces into amplitude-versus-depth seismic traces was statutory process because it "converts one physical thing into another physical thing just as any other electrical circuitry would do"); and Johnson (technique for removing unwanted noise from a seismic trace was statutory process); with Walter, 618 F.2d at 768, 770, 205 USPQ at 407, 409 (if "the claimed invention produces a physical thing . . . the fact that it is represented in numerical form does not render the claim nonstatutory" but finding that the "signals" claimed "may represent either physical quantities or abstract quantities" and thus were to the algorithm itself and not a particular application); Richman (method of calculating airborne radar boresight correction angle from "a plurality of signal sets" not statutory); Gelnovatch, 595 F.2d at 42, 201 USPQ at 145 (where "the claims solely recite a method whereby a set of numbers is computed from a different set of numbers by merely performing a series of mathematical computations, the claims do not set forth a statutory process"); and Benson (conversion of binary coded decimal numbers into pure binary numbers not statutory). It is manifest that the statutory nature of the subject matter does not depend on the labels "signals" or "data."

e. Structural limitations in process claims

Another issue is the effect of structural limitations in method claims. While structural limitations in method claims are not improper, they are usually not entitled to patentable weight unless they somehow affect or form an essential part of the process. See Benson, 409 U.S. at 73, 175 USPQ at 677 (claim 8 recited use of a "reentrant shift register"); Waldbaum, 559 F.2d at 616, 194 USPQ at 469 (machine limitations in data processor method claims); de Castelet, 562 F.2d at 1244, 195 USPQ at 447 ("Claims to nonstatutory processes do not automatically and invariably become patentable upon incorporation of reference to apparatus"). The related problem of specific structural language in apparatus claims has been treated, supra, in section II.C.1.b.

D. Examples

1. Diamond v. Diehr

The following claim was held to recite statutory subject matter.

> 1. A method of operating a rubber-molding press for precision molded compounds with the aid of a digital computer, comprising:
> providing said computer with a data base for said press including at least,
> natural logarithm conversion data (ln), > the activation energy constant (C) unique to each batch of said compound being molded, and > a constant (x) dependent upon the geometry of the particular mold of the press, > initiating an interval timer in said computer upon the closure of the press for monitoring the elapsed time of said closure, > constantly determining the termperature (Z) of the mold at a location closely adjacent to the mold cavity in the press during molding, > constantly providing the computer with the temperature (Z), > repetitively calculating in the computer, at frequent intervals during each cure, the Arrhenius equation for reaction time during the cure, which is > $\ln v = CZ + x$
> where v is the total required cure time, > repetitively comparing in the computer at said frequent intervals during the cure each said calculation of the total required cure time calculated with the Arrhenius equation and said elapsed time, and > opening the press automatically when a said comparison indicates equivalence.

Step 1 The claim contains an equation for controlling the in-mold time: $\ln v = CZ + x$.

Step 2 The claimed subject matter is statutory because it recites an "otherwise statutory" process in addition to the mathematical algorithm. As stated in Abele, 684 F.2d at 907, 214 USPQ at 686:

> In Diehr, were the claims to be read without the algorithm, the process would still be a process for curing rubber, although it might not work as well since the in-mold time would not be as accurately controlled.

The steps in the process, 450 U.S. at 187, 209 USPQ at 8:

> include installing rubber in a press, closing the mold, constantly determining the temperature of the mold, constantly recalculating the appropriate cure time through the use of the formula and a digital computer, and automatically opening the press at the proper time.

The statutory nature of the claim is not based on the post-solution activity of opening the press, but on the application of the mathematical algorithm to the whole process.

2. Parker v. Flook

The following claim in Flook was held to recite nonstatutory subject matter.

> 1. A method for updating the value of at least one alarm limit on at least one process variable involved in a process comprising the catalytic chemical conversion of hydrocarbons wherein said alarm limit has a current value of
> $B_0 + K$
> wherein Bo is the current alarm base and K is a predetermined alarm offset which comprises:
> (1) determining the present value of said process variable, said present value being defined as PVL;
> (2) determining a new alarm base B1 using the following equation:
> $B1 = Bo(1.0 - F) + PVL(F)$
> where F is a predetermined number greater than zero and less than 1.0;
> (3) determining an updated alarm limit which is defined as B1 + K; and thereafter
> (4) adjusting said alarm limit to said updated alarm limit value.

Step 1 The claim contains a mathematical algorithm comprising determining a new alarm base in step (2) and computing an "alarm limit" in step (3).

Step 2 When viewed without the steps of the mathematical algorithm, steps (2) and (3), the only limitations remaining are the preamble limitation restricting the field of use to "a process comprising the catalytic chemical conversion of hydrocarbons"; the data-gathering step of step (1); and the post-solution step of step (4). None of these limitations comprises an "otherwise statutory" process. The claim seeks to protect a method for computing an "alarm limit" rather than the application of the computation within an otherwise statutory process.

3. In re Abele

In Abele, claim 5 was held to recite nonstatutory subject matter under § 101 whereas dependent claim 6 was statutory.

> 5. A method of displaying data in a field comprising the steps of > calculating the difference between the local value of the data at a data point in the field and the average value of the data in a region of the field which surrounds said point for each point in said field, and > displaying the value of said difference as a signed gray scale at a point in a picture which corresponds to said data point.
> 6. The method of claim 5 wherein said data is X-ray attenuation data produced in a two dimensional field by a computed tomography scanner.

Step 1 Claim 5 contains a mathematical algorithm, "calculating the difference," which is defined in the specification as a Gaussian weighting function.

Step 2 When claim 5 is viewed without the mathematical algorithm, the only remaining limitation is the post-solution activity of displaying the result. The display by itself did not constitute an "otherwise statutory" process. The court held that "the algorithm is neither explicitly nor implicitly applied to any certain process." 684 F.2d at 909, 214 USPQ at 688. However, when dependent claim 6 is added to the limitations of claim 5, 684 F.2d at 908, 214 USPQ at 687-88:

> Were we to view the claim absent the algorithm, the production, detection and display steps would still be present and would result in a conventional CAT-scan process. . . . [W]e view the production, detection, and display steps as manifestly statutory subject matter and are not swayed from this conclusion by the presence of an algorithm in the claimed method.

III. Computer Programs

A. "Computer programs" versus "computer processes"

A "process" or "algorithm" is a step-by-step procedure to arrive at a given result. In the patent area, a "computer process" or "computer algorithm" is a process, i.e., a series of steps, which is performed by a computer. A "[computer] program is a sequence of coded instructions for a digital computer." Benson, 409 U.S. at 65, 175 USPQ at 674. Computer programs are equivalently known as "software."

Unfortunately for discussion in this area, "[b]oth the series of steps performed by a computer, and the software directing those steps, have acquired the name 'computer programs.'" Gelnovatch, 595 F.2d at 45 n.5, 201 USPQ at 148 n.5 (Markey, C.J., dissenting). What is sought to be protected by patent is the underlying process. As stated in Gelnovatch, 595 F.2d at 44, 201 USPQ at 147:

> Confusion may be avoided if it be realized that what is at issue is not the "program," i.e., the software, but the process steps which the software directs the computer to perform.

See, e.g., Maucorps, 609 F.2d at 483, 203 USPQ at 814 ("The [claimed] invention is implemented via a computer program written in FORTRAN IV, either built into the calculating machine, or loaded into a general purpose computer").

B. Statutory nature of computer processes

1. The Supreme Court has not ruled on the patentability of computer programs.

The Supreme Court has not ruled on whether computer processes are per se statutory or nonstatutory. The decisions in Benson, Flook and Diehr all dealt with claims viewed as mathematical algorithms. In Benson and Diehr, the claims contained mathematical algorithms implemented by a computer. In Benson, the Court held that the claims preempted the use of the mathematical algorithm, but did not hold that "any program servicing a computer" would be nonstatutory. In Diehr, the Court held that the claims otherwise defined a statutory process for curing rubber, and that the inclusion of a mathematical algorithm or computer program did not make claim nonstatutory. The claim in Flook did not involve a computer process.

In Dann v. Johnston, 425 U.S. 219, 189 USPQ 257 (1976), rev'g on other grounds, In re Johnston, 502 F.2d 765, 183 USPQ 172 (CCPA 1974), which involved a "machine system for automatic record-keeping of bank checks and deposits," the Court declined to discuss the § 101 issue of the general patentability of computer programs, 425 U.S. at 220, 189 USPQ at 258:

> We find no need to treat that question in this case, however, because we conclude that in any event respondent's system is unpatentable on grounds of obviousness. 35 U.S.C. § 103.

In Diamond v. Bradley, an equally divided Supreme Court affirmed the CCPA's decision in Bradley. The claims were directed to computer "firmware," which refers to microinstructions permanently embodied in hardware elements, and not to a computer application or process. The CCPA found that the claims literally recited a machine and that, in applying the two-part test of Freeman, the claims did not recite a mathematical algorithm.

2. The CCPA has held that computer processes are statutory unless they fall within a judicially determined exemption

In Pardo, the most recent CCPA case on computer processes, the CCPA stated that, 684 F.2d at 916, 214 USPQ at 677:

> any process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter constitutes statutory subject matter unless it falls within a judicially determined exception to section 101.

The major (and perhaps only) exception in the area of computer processes is the mathematical algorithm. Although not binding precedent on the Federal Circuit, the district court in Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis, Inc. v. Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, 564 F. Supp. 1358, 1367, 218 USPQ 212, 218 (D. Del. 1983) stated:

> The CCPA [has] . . . held that a computer algorithm, as opposed to a mathematical algorithm, is patentable subject matter.

If a computer process claim does not contain a mathematical algorithm in the Benson sense, the second step of the Freeman-Walter-Abele test is not reached, and the claimed subject matter will usually be statutory.

The traditional approach by the CCPA to the PTO's rejection of computer processes as nonstatutory subject matter has been to apply the two-part test for mathematical algorithms and to find statutory subject matter if the claims do not recite a mathematical algorithm. See Pardo, 684 F.2d at 916, 214 USPQ at 676 (process for converting source program into object program: "we are unable to find any mathematical formula, calculation, or algorithm either directly or indirectly recited in the claimed steps of examining, compiling, storing, and executing"); In re Toma, 575 F.2d 872, 877, 197 USPQ 852, 856 (CCPA 1978) (process for translating a source natural language, e.g., Russian, to a target natural language, e.g., English: "[we] are unable to find any direct or indirect recitation of a procedure for solving a mathematical problem"); In re Phillips, 608 F.2d 879, 883, 203 USPQ 971, 975 (CCPA 1979) (process for preparing architectural specifications: "Our analysis of the claims on appeal reveals no recitation, directly or indirectly, of an algorithm in the Benson and Flook sense"); Freeman, 573 F.2d at 1246, 197 USPQ at 471 ("The method claims here at issue do not recite process steps which are themselves mathematical calculations, formulae, or equations"); Deutsch, 553 F.2d 689, 692, 193 USPQ 645, 648 (CCPA 1977) (method of operating a system of manufacturing plants: "Nothing in the methods claimed by Deutsch preempts a mathematical formula, an algorithm, or any specific computer program"); Chatfield, 545 F.2d at 158, 191 USPQ at 736 (method of reassigning priorities within a computer: "[the] independent claims contain neither a mathematical formula nor a mathematical algorithm").

If the computer process is found to contain a mathematical algorithm, it must then pass the second part of the Freeman-Walter-Abele test for statutory subject matter. See, e.g., Sherwood; Maucorps; Gelnovatch.

Arguably, other exceptions such as "methods of doing business" and "mental steps" may be raised if a claim is not a true computer process, but merely recites that an otherwise nonstatutory process is performed on a computer. de Castelet, 562 F.2d at 1244, 195 USPQ at 447 ("Claims to nonstatutory processes do not automatically and invariable become patentable upon incorporation of reference to apparatus"). These would appear to be exceptions with very narrow application to claims which are not limited to implementation by a machine. For example, while a "method of doing business" per se is not statutory subject matter, "a method of operation on a computer to effectuate a business activity" has been held to be statutory subject matter. Paine, Webber v. Merrill Lynch, 564 F. Supp. at 1369, 218 USPQ at 220. See also Deutsch, 553 F.2d at 692 n.5, 193 USPQ at 648 n.5 (claims were not a method of doing business because "[t]hey do not merely facilitate business dealings"); Johnston, rev'd on other grounds, Dann v. Johnston (apparatus claims directed to system for automatic record-keeping of bank checks and deposits did not cover a method of doing business). Similarly, machine or computer implementation of "mental steps" is statutory subject matter. Prater; In re Bernhart, 417 F.2d 1395, 163 USPQ 611 (CCPA 1969); In re Musgrave, 431 F.2d 882, 167 USPQ 280 (CCPA 1970). See also Toma (computer implemented method for translation of natural languages is statutory).

SPECIAL BOXES FOR MAIL

Special PTO mail box numbers should be used to allow forwarding of particular types of mail to the appropriate areas as quickly as possible. Such mail is forwarded directly to the appropriate area without being opened. Only the specified type of document should be placed in an envelope addressed to one of these boxes. If any documents other than the specified type identified for each box are addressed to that box, they will be delayed in reaching the appropriate area for which they are intended.

The following special boxes should be used only for their specified purpose. Address mail as follows:

Box _____
Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks
Washington, D.C. 20231

Box 3	Mail for the Office of Personnel from NFC.
Box 4	Mail for the Assistant Commissioner for External Affairs and the Office of Legislation and International Affairs.
Box 5	"No fee" mail related to trademarks.
Box 6	Mail for the Office of Procurement.
Box 7	Reissue applications for patents involved in litigation and subsequently filed related papers.
Box 8	All papers for the Office of the Solicitor except communications relating to pending litigation.
Box 9	Coupon orders for U.S. patent and trademark copies.
Box 10	Orders for certified copies of patent and trademark applications.
Box 11	Electronic Ordering Service (EOS).
Box 12	Contributions to the Examiner Education Program.
Box 13	Mail for the Employee and Labor Relations Division.
Box AF	Expedited procedure for processing amendments and other responses after final rejection.
Box FWC	Requests for File Wrapper Continuation Applications.
Box Interference	Communications relating to interferences and applications and patents involved in interference.
Box Issue Fee	All communications following the receipt of a PTOL-85, "Notice of Allowance and Issue Fee Due," and prior to the issuance of a patent should be addressed to Box Issue Fee, unless advised to the contrary. Assignments are the exception. Assignments should be submitted in a separate envelope and not be sent to Box Issue.
Box M. Fee	Correspondence related to a patent that is subject to the payment of a maintenance fee.
Box Non Fee Amendment	Non-fee amendments to patent applications. (Use Box AF for responses after final rejection.)
Box OED	Mail for the Office of Enrollment and Discipline.
Box Pat. Ext.	Applications for patent term extension.
Box PCT	Mail related to applications filed under the Patent Cooperation Treaty.
Box Reexam	Mail related to Reexamination.
Box SN	For fee and petitions under 37 CFR 1.182 to obtain date received and/or serial number for patent application prior to the Office's standard notification (return post card or the official "Filing Receipt," "Notice to File Missing Parts," or "Notice of Incomplete Application").
PATENT APPLICATION	New patent application and associated papers and fees.
TRADEMARK APPLICATION	New trademark application and associated papers and fees.
Box Assignments	All assignment documents except those filed in new patent applications.

Reference Collection of U.S. Patents Available for Public Use in Patent Depository Libraries

The following libraries, designated as Patent Depository Libraries (PDLs), receive current issues of U.S. Patents and maintain collections of earlier-issued patents. The scope of these collections varies from library to libary, ranging from patents of only recent years to all or most of the patents issued since 1790.

These patent collections, which are organized in patent number sequence, are available for use by the public free of charge. Each of the PDLs, in addition, offers supplemental reference publications of the U.S. Patent Classification System, including the Manual of Classification, Index to the U.S. Patent Classification, Classification Definitions, and provides technical staff assistance in their use to aid the public, in gaining effective access to information contained in patents. CASSIS (Classification And Search Support Information System); which provides direct, on-line access to Patent and Trademark Office data, is available at all PDLs. Facilities for making paper copies of patents from either microfilm or paper collections are generally provided for a fee.

Since there are variations in the scope of patent collections among the PDLs and in their hours of service to the public, anyone contemplating use of the patents at a particular library is urged to contact that library, in advance, about its collection and hours in order to avert possible inconvenience.

MARKS PUBLISHED FOR OPPOSITION

The following marks are published in compliance with section 12(a) of the Trademark Act of 1946. Applications for the registration of marks in more than one class have been filed as provided in section 30 of said act as amended by Public Law 772, 87th Congress, approved Oct. 9, 1962, 76 Stat. 769. Opposition under section 13 may be filed within thirty days of the date of this publication. See rules 2.101 to 2.105.

A separate fee of two hundred dollars for opposing each mark in each class must accompany the opposition.

SECTION 1.—INTERNATIONAL CLASSIFICATION

The short titles associated below with the international class numbers are terms designed merely for quick identification and are not an official part of the international classification. The full names of international classes are given in section 6.1 of the trademark rules of practice.

The designation "U.S. Cl." appearing in this section refers to the U.S. class in effect prior to Sep. 1, 1973 rather than the international class which applies to applications filed on or after that date. For adoption of international classification see notice in the OFFICIAL GAZETTE of Jun. 26, 1973 (911 O.G. TM 210).

SECTION 2.—INTERNATIONAL CLASSIFICATION

The short titles associated below with the international class numbers are terms designed merely for quick identification and are not an official part of the international classification. The full names of international classes are given in section 6.1 of the trademark rules of practice.

The designation "U.S. Cl." appearing in this section refers to the U.S. class in effect prior to Sep. 1, 1973 rather than the international class which applies to applications filed on or after that date. For adoption of international classification see notice in the OFFICIAL GAZETTE of Jun. 26, 1973 (911 O.G. TM 210).

SECTION 1.—INTERNATIONAL CLASSIFICATION

The short titles associated below with the international class numbers are terms designed merely for quick identification and are not an official part of the international classification. The full names of international classes are given in section 6.1 of the trademark rules of practice.

The designation "U.S. Cl." appearing in this section refers to the U.S. class in effect prior to Sep. 1, 1973 rather than the international class which applies to applications filed on or after that date. For adoption of international classification see notice in the OFFICIAL GAZETTE of Jun. 26, 1973 (911 O.G. TM 210).

SECTION 1.—INTERNATIONAL CLASSIFICATION

The short titles associated below with the international class numbers are terms designed merely for quick identification and are not an official part of the international classification. The full names of international classes are given in section 6.1 of the trademark rules of practice.

The designation "U.S. Cl." appearing in this section refers to the U.S. class in effect prior to Sep. 1, 1973 rather than the international class which applies to applications filed on or after that date. For adoption of international classification see notice in the OFFICIAL GAZETTE of Jun. 26, 1973 (911 O.G. TM 210).

TRADEMARK REGISTRATIONS AMENDED, CORRECTED, ETC.

The designation "U.S. Cl." appearing in this section refers to the U.S. class in effect prior to Sep. 1, 1973 rather than the international class which applies to applications filed on or after that date. For adoption of international classification see notice in the OFFICIAL GAZETTE of Jun. 26, 1973 (911 O.G. TM 210).

Any change to the registration will be indicated at the bottom of each entry under ELEMENTS AMENDED, CORRECTED OR RESTRICTED. With the exception of changes to the goods and services, additions to the registration will appear in asterisks and deletions of the registration will appear in brackets. Elements which are only changed will be listed with no punctuation. As to the goods/services statement, amendments to the goods/services will appear in asterisks and deletions will appear in brackets. In addition if any change to the goods/services occurs, the element "Goods/Services" will be listed under ELEMENTS AMENDED, CORRECTED OR RESTRICTED.

Notice of Maintenance Fees Payable

Title 37, Code of Federal Regulations, Section 1.362(d), effective Nov. 1, 1984, provides that maintenance fees may be paid without surcharge for a six-month period beginning 3, 7, and 11 years after the date of issue of patents based on application filed on or after Dec. 12, 1980. An additional six-month grace period is provided by 35 U.S.C. 41(b) and 37 CFR 1.362(e) for payment of the maintenance fee with the surcharge set forth in 37 CFR 1.20(k) or (l), as amended effective Apr. 17, 1989. If the maintenance fee is not paid in a patent requiring such payment the patent will expire on the 4th, 8th or 12th anniversary of the patent.

Attention is drawn to the patents which were issued on September 9, 1986, for which maintenance fees due at 3 years and six months may now be paid. The patents have patent numbers within the following ranges:

Utility Patents 4,610,034 through 4,611,352
Reissue Patents based on the above identified patents.

Attention is drawn to the patents which were issued on September 7, 1982 for which maintenance fees due at 7 years and six months may now be paid. The patents have patent numbers within the following ranges:

Utility Patents 4,347,629 through 4,348,773
Reissue Patents based on the above identified patents.

No maintenance fees are required for design or plant patents.

Payments of maintenance fees in patents should be directed to "Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Box M. Fee, Washington, D.C. 20231."

The current amounts of the maintenance fees due at 3 years and six months and seven years and six months are set forth in 37 CFR 1.20(e), (f), (h) and (i), as amended effective Apr. 17, 1989, which are reproduced below:

37 CFR § 1.20 Post-issuance fees

" (e) For maintaining an original or reissue patent, except a design or plant patent, based on an application filed on or after after Dec. 12, 1980 and before Aug. 27, 1982, in force beyond 4 years; the fee is due by three years and six months after the original grant.....$245.00"

"(f) For maintaining an original or reissue patent, except a design or plant patent, based on an application filed on or after Dec. 12, 1980 and before Aug. 27, 1982, in force beyond 8 years; the fee is due by seven years and six months after the original grant..... $495.00"

"(h) For maintaining an original or reissue patent except a design or plant patent, based on an application filed on or after Aug. 27,1982, in force beyond 4 years; the fee is due by three years and six months after the original grant:

By a small entity ($1.9(f)).....$245.00
By other than a small entity.....$490.00"

"(i) For maintaining an original or reissue patent, except a design or plant patent, based on an application filed on or after Aug. 27, 1982, in force beyond 8 years; the fee is due by seven years and six months after the original grant:

By a small entity ($1.9(f)).....$495.00
By other than a small enttity.....$990.00"

The amounts of the surcharges as amended effective Apr. 17, 1989, are set forth in 37 CFR 1.20 (k), (l) and (m) which are reproduced below:

"(k) Surcharge for paying a maintenance fee during the 6-month grace period following the expiration of three years and six months , seven years and six months, and eleven years and six months after the date of the original grant of a patent based on an application filed on or after Dec. 12, 1980 and before Aug. 27, 1982.....$120.00"

"(l) Surcharge for paying a maintenance fee during the 6-month grace period following the expiration of three years and six months, seven years and six months, and eleven years and six months after the date of the original grant of a patent based on an application filed on or after Aug. 27, 1982:

By a small entity(§1.9(f)).....$60.00
By other than a small entity.....$120.00"

"(m) Surcharge for accepting a maintenance fee after expiration of a patent for non-timely payment of a maintenance fee where the delay is shown to the satisfaction of the Commissioner to have been unavoidable.....$550.00"

Notice of Expiration of Patents Due to Failure to Pay Maintenance Fees

35 U.S.C. 41 and 37 CFR 1.362(g) provide that if the required maintenance fee and any applicable surcharge are not paid in a patent requiring such payment, the patent will expire at the end of the 4th, 8th, or 12th anniversary of the grant of the patent depending on the first maintenance fee which was not paid.

According to the records of the Office, the patents listed below have expired due to failure to pay the required maintenance fee and any applicable surcharge.

The Trademark Law Revision Act of 1988 [Title I of Pub. L. 100-667, 102 Stat. 3935 (15 U.S.C. 1051)], which takes effect on November 16, 1989, amends 15 U.S.C. 1059(a) to reduce the renewal term of a registration from twenty years to ten years from the end of the expiring period of the registration.

Any registration whose expiration date is prior to November 16, 1989, shall be renewed, upon proper application, from the end of the expiring period for:

(a) twenty years if the renewal is granted prior to November 16, 1989, or
(b) ten years if the renewal is granted on or after November 16, 1989, regardless of the renewal application filing date.

Any registration whose expiration date is on or after November 16, 1989, shall be renewed, upon proper application, for ten years from the end of the expiring period, regardless of the renewal application filing date.

The present practice of notification of renewal will continue. However, the updated renewal certificate issued by the PTO will be modified to specifically indicate the length of the renewal period. The notice of renewal appearing in the Trademark Official Gazette will be modified to indicate the date of the acceptance of renewal.

37 CFR PART 2
[Docket No. 81268-9163]
RIN: 0651-AA36
Amendments of Trademark Rules Governing Inter Partes Proceedings; Miscellaneous Amendments of Other Trademark Rules

Agency: Patent and Trademark Office, Commerce.
Action: Final Rule.
Summary: The Patent and Trademark Office is amending the rules of practice in trademark cases to revise and/or codify procedures for the examination of applications; appeals from final refusals of registration; and the institution and conduct of trademark interference, concurrent use, opposition, and cancellation proceedings. The amendments will assist the orderly and prompt resolution of issues in proceedings before the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board.
Effective Date: November 16, 1989.
For Further Information Contact: Janet E. Rice by telephone at (703) 557-3551 or by mail marked to her attention and addressed to Box 5, Trademark Trial and Appeal Board, Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Washington, D.C. 20231.
Supplementary Information: Amendments to §§ 2.42, 2.68, 2.91, 2.92, 2.93, 2.102, 2.104, 2.106, 2.112, 2.113, 2.114, 2.119, 2.120, 2.121, 2.122, 2.123, 2.125, 2.127, 2.128, 2.129, 2.134, 2.135, 2.142, 2.145, and 2.186 were proposed in a notice of proposed rulemaking published in the Federal Register on March 7, 1989, at 54 FR 9514, the Patent and Trademark Office Official Gazette of March 28, 1989, at 1100 O.G. 137, and the Bureau of National Affairs' Patent, Trademark & Copyright Journal, Vol. 37, No. 921, pp. 477-486 (March 9, 1989). Corrections to the Federal Register printing of the notice of proposed rulemaking were published in the Federal Register on April 4, 1989, at 54 FR 13605. The purpose of these proposed rule amendments was to revise, simplify, remove, or clarify existing rules or to codify in rules certain practices which are currently in effect. The rules involved included those relating to the requirements for concurrent use applications; abandonment of trademark applications; appeals to the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board (Board) from the final refusal of registration in ex parte applications; institution and conduct of interference, concurrent use, opposition, and cancellation proceedings before the Board; review by civil action of a decision of the Board; and allowing an assignee to take action with respect to the assigned application or registration. Written comments were submitted by two firms, five individuals, and one organization. The relevant committee of another organization stated that it had nothing to add to the comments of the first organization. Two other organizations submitted letters indicating that they accepted the proposed rule amendments in their entirety.

Discussion of Specific Sections Being Changed:

In this discussion, "Patent and Trademark Office" is abbreviated as "PTO" and "Trademark Trial and Appeal Board" is abbreviated as "Board."

Section 2.42(a), which specifies certain requirements for an application for registration as a lawful concurrent user, is amended to remove the designation "(a)" [because § 2.42(b) is removed] and to delete the qualifying phrase "to the extent of his knowledge" from the requirement that an applicant for registration as a lawful concurrent user state in the application the area, the goods, and the mode of use for which registration is sought. This information obviously is within the knowledge of the applicant and is essential for purposes of examination and publication.

Section 2.42(b), which requires that the verification or declaration in an application for registration as a lawful concurrent user "be made with the stated exceptions," is removed to simplify practice. The paragraph has been construed, in applications for registration based on concurrent use, as requiring that the portion of the verification or declaration which normally reads, "to the best of his/her knowledge and belief no other person, firm, corporation or association has the right to use said mark in commerce," also include, after the word "association," the additional phrase "other than specified in the application." Because most applicants and/or their attorneys do not realize that this is the import of the paragraph, the examination process is often prolonged. Moreover, an applicant for registration based on concurrent use is required to list, in the statement portion of the application, the exceptions to applicant's right to exclusive use, so that it is clear that the verification or declaration is being made, in effect, with the stated exceptions. Therefore, the requirement for a verification or declaration which differs in form from that of an application for a geographically unrestricted registration is unnecessary.

Section 2.68, which pertains to the express abandonment of an application, presently provides, in the second sentence, that the fact that an application has been expressly abandoned shall not, in any proceeding in the PTO, affect any rights that the applicant may have in the mark which is the subject of the abandoned application. The section was proposed to be amended by inserting the phrase "during the ex parte prosecution thereof" immediately after the phrase "The fact that an application has been expressly abandoned." Instead, the section is being amended to include, at the beginning of the second sentence, a cross-reference to § 2.135 (i.e., "Except as provided in § 2.135, the fact that an application has been expressly abandoned shall not...."). The cross-reference to § 2.135 (which provides, in essence, that if an applicant whose application is the subject of an inter partes proceeding before the Board files a written abandonment of the application without the written consent of every adverse party, judgment shall be entered against the applicant) has been added, in lieu of the phrase specified in the notice of proposed rulemaking, and as a result of a written comment received thereon, to further clarify the section.

Section 2.91, which governs the declaration of interference proceedings, is amended to change the title of the section from "Interferences." to "Declaration of interference." The amendment is one of a series of amendments, involving §§ 2.91-2.93, intended to distinguish between the "declaration" of an interference by the Commissioner upon petition and the subsequent "institution" of the interference by the Board. See Sections 1208.04 and 1208.05 of the Trademark Manual of Examining Procedure.

Section 2.92, which pertains to certain matters preliminary to an interference, is revised to specifically indicate what must happen before an interference which has been "declared" by the Commissioner upon petition can be "instituted" by the Board.

Section 2.93, which governs the institution of an interference, is amended to, inter alia, change the title of the section from "Declaration of interference." to "Institution of interference.", and to revise the text of the paragraph to harmonize with §§ 2.91 and 2.92, as amended.

Section 2.102(c), which pertains to extensions of time for filing an opposition, was proposed to be amended to change the specified time period "120 days" to "four months." However, upon further consideration, it appears, for the reasons described hereafter in the "Response to Comments on the Rules" portion of this final rule notice, that the proposed amendment might add to confusion regarding the computation of extension periods. Accordingly, the proposal to amend this paragraph is withdrawn.

Section 2.104, which states certain requirements for a notice of opposition, is amended to redesignate the present paragraph as "(a)" and to add a new paragraph, designated "(b)," codifying the practice that oppositions to different applications owned by the same party may be joined in a consolidated opposition, when appropriate, provided that the required fees are paid. The proposed new paragraph parallels present § 2.112(b).

Section 2.106(b)(1), which contains provisions relating to opposition answers, is amended to include a short description of the content requirements for an answer to an opposition, just as present § 2.104 describes the content requirements for an opposition. The amendment parallels an amendment made herein to § 2.114(b)(1) concerning answers to petitions for cancellation. The description of the content requirements for an answer is modeled after portions of Rule 8 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

Section 2.106(c), which governs the withdrawal of an opposition, is amended to codify the practice that an applicant's written consent to the withdrawal of an opposition after answer may be signed by the applicant or by the applicant's attorney or other authorized representative. The amendment parallels amendments made herein to §§ 2.114(c), 2.134(a), and 2.135.

Section 2.112(a), which states requirements for a petition for cancellation, is revised to delete the requirement that a petitioner indicate in the petition "the respondent party to whom notification shall be sent," and to substitute a requirement that the petitioner indicate, to the best of the petitioner's knowledge, "the name and address of the current owner of the registration." The purposes of the revision are to provide the Board with information relating to the identity of the current owner of the registration sought to be cancelled, so that the Board can serve a copy of the petition on that party, and to remove any implication that the petitioner is permitted to designate who shall be the respondent. See also, in this regard, § 2.113, as amended herein.

Section 2.113, which concerns notification to the respondent of the filing of a petition for cancellation, is revised to codify the practice that the respondent shall be the party shown by the records of the PTO to be the current owner of the registration sought to be cancelled, except that the Board, in its discretion, may join or substitute as respondent a party who makes a showing of a current ownership interest in the registration. See generally Gold Eagle Products Co. v. National Dynamics Corp., 193 USPQ 109 (TTAB 1976). The section is further revised to provide that when the party identified by the petitioner, pursuant to amended § 2.112(a), as the current owner of the registration or registrations is not the record owner thereof, a courtesy copy of the petition for cancellation shall be forwarded with a copy of the notification to the alleged current owner, which may file a motion to be joined or substituted as respondent.

Section 2.114(b)(1), which contains certain provisions relating to cancellation answers, is amended to include a short description of the content requirements for an answer to a petition for cancellation, just as present § 2.112(a) describes the content requirements for a petition for cancellation. The amendment parallels the amendment made herein to § 2.106(b)(1) concerning answers to oppositions.

Section 2.114(c), which governs the withdrawal of a petition for cancellation, is amended to codify the practice that a registrant's written consent to the withdrawal of a petition for cancellation after answer may be signed by the registrant or by the registrant's attorney or other authorized representative. The amendment parallels amendments made herein to §§ 2.106(c), 2.134(a), and 2.135.

Section 2.119, which presently governs service of papers, is amended to change the title from "Service of papers." to "Service and signing of papers.", so that the section title will describe the contents of the section as amended herein by the revision of paragraphs (b) and (c), and by the addition of two new paragraphs, designated "(d)" and "(e)."

Section 2.119(b), which states, inter alia, methods for service of papers, is revised to provide for two additional methods of service, namely, transmission by the "Express Mail" service of the United States Postal Service and transmission by overnight courier. The amendment codifies existing practice.

Section 2.119(c), which presently provides that when service is made by mail, the date of mailing will be considered the date of service; and that whenever a party is required to take some action within a prescribed period after the service of a paper upon him by another party and the paper is served by mail, 5 days shall be added to the prescribed period, is revised to specify that when service is made by first-class mail, "Express Mail," or overnight courier, the date of mailing or of delivery to the overnight courier will be considered the date of service; and that whenever a party is required to take some action within a prescribed period after the service of a paper upon such party by another party, and the paper is served by first-class mail, "Express Mail," or overnight courier, 5 days shall be added to the prescribed period. The amendments codify existing practice.

Section 2.119(d) is added to require that when a party to an inter partes proceeding before the Board is not domiciled in the United States, and is not represented by an attorney or other authorized representative located in the United States, the party must appoint a domestic representative on whom may be served notices or process in the proceeding. The purpose of the paragraph is to facilitate the service of papers on foreign parties not represented by domestic counsel in proceedings before the Board.

Section 2.119(e) is added to provide that every paper filed in an inter partes proceeding before the Board, and every request for an extension of time to file an opposition, must be signed by the party filing it, or by the party's attorney or other authorized representative. An unsigned paper will be refused consideration unless a signed copy is submitted before or within a time limit set in the PTO's notification of this defect. The purpose of the amendment is to simplify practice, and to eliminate the necessity for a petition to the Commissioner in the case of an unsigned notice of opposition or request for extension of time to oppose. The final rule includes a phrase that was not included in the proposed rule, namely, the phrase "and every request for an extension of time to file an opposition." The phrase has been added to further clarify the intent of the paragraph (that is, the paragraph was intended to cover requests for extension of time to oppose, but such a request is not, strictly speaking, a "paper filed in an inter partes proceeding before the Board," since at the time of the filing of a request for extension of time to oppose, there is not yet an opposition).

Section 2.120(a), which contains certain general provisions relating to discovery in inter partes proceedings before the Board, is amended to include a new sentence specifying that the opening of discovery is governed by the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. The amendment is a codification of current practice. See generally Saul Lefkowitz and Janet E. Rice, Adversary Proceedings Before the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board, 75 TMR 323, 381-382 (1985).

Section 2.120(d), which presently pertains to document production, is amended to change the title from "Request for production." to "Interrogatories; request for production."; to redesignate the present paragraph as "(2)"; and to add a new paragraph, designated "(1)." The new paragraph limits the total number of interrogatories which a party may serve upon another party in a proceeding before the Board to seventy-five, counting subparts, with additional interrogatories being allowed by the Board, in its discretion, upon motion to the Board showing good cause, or upon stipulation of the parties; requires that a motion for leave to serve additional interrogatories be accompanied by a copy of the interrogatories, if any, which have already been served by the moving party, and by a copy of the interrogatories proposed to be served; and provides that if a party upon which interrogatories have been served believes that the number of interrogatories served exceeds the limitation specified in the paragraph, and is unwilling to waive this basis for objection, the party shall, within the time for (and instead of) serving answers and objections to the interrogatories, file a motion for a protective order, accompanied by a copy of the interrogatories which together are said to exceed the limitation. The purpose of the new paragraph is to discourage parties from using written interrogatories for purposes of harassment, as exemplified in the case of C. H. Stuart Inc. v. S. S. Sarna, Inc., 212 USPQ 386 (TTAB 1980). The amendment is believed to be in general harmony with corresponding local rules now prevalent in the federal district courts.

Section 2.120(g), which provides for the imposition of sanctions for failure to comply with an order of the Board relating to discovery, is amended to change the title from "Failure to comply with order." to "Sanctions."; to redesignate the present paragraph as "(1)"; and to add a new paragraph, designated "(2)," providing that if a party fails to attend its discovery deposition, after being served with proper notice, or fails to respond to a set of interrogatories or to a set of requests for production of documents and things, and the party or the party's attorney informs the party seeking discovery that no response will be made thereto, the Board may make any appropriate order by way of sanctions. The purpose of the amendment is to eliminate the expense and delay resulting from the present practice, embodied in present paragraphs (e) and (g) of § 2.120, that in situations of the type described in the new paragraph, a motion to compel must be filed and granted and the resulting order violated before the party seeking discovery may move for sanctions. The proposed practice is in harmony with Rule 37(d) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

Section 2.120(j)(3), which describes how a discovery deposition, interrogatory answer, or admission may be made of record by a party entitled to rely thereon, is amended to redesignate the present paragraph as "(i)" and to add a new paragraph, designated "(ii)." The new paragraph codifies the existing practice, exemplified in cases such as Jeanne-Marc, Inc. v. Cluett, Peabody & Co., Inc., 221 USPQ- 58 (TTAB 1984); Autac Inc. v. Viking Industries, Inc., 199 USPQ 367 (TTAB 1978); Harvey Hubbell, Inc. v. Red Rope Industries, Inc., 191 USPQ 119 (TTAB 1976); and MRI Systems Corp. v. Wesley-Jessen Inc., 189 USPQ 214 (TTAB 1975), that a party which has obtained documents from another party, pursuant to a request for production under Rule 34 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, may not make the produced documents of record by notice of reliance alone, except to the extent that the documents fall within the provisions of § 2.122(e). The reason for the practice is that documents so obtained generally suffer from a lack of proper authentication, unless they are of the self-authenticating type admissible by notice of reliance under § 2.122(e).

Section 2.120(j)(4), which presently provides, in effect, that if an appropriate party files a notice of reliance upon only part of a discovery deposition, an adverse party may file a notice of reliance upon any other part of the deposition which should in fairness be considered so as to make not misleading what was offered by the submitting party, is amended to require that the notice of reliance filed by the adverse party be supported by a written statement explaining why the adverse party needs to rely upon each of the additional parts listed in the adverse party's notice, failing which the Board, in its discretion, may refuse to consider the additional parts. The amendment represents a codification of current practice. Cf. Alabama Board of Trustees v. BAMA-Werke Curt Baumann, 231 USPQ 408, 409 (TTAB 1986), and Holiday Inns, Inc. v. Monolith Enterprises, 212 USPQ 949, 950-951 (TTAB 1981).

Section 2.120(j)(5), which presently specifies who may make of record (by notice of reliance) an interrogatory answer or an admission, is amended to require that a party which seeks to rely upon certain of its own responses to interrogatories or requests for admissions, pursuant to the fairness exception presently provided in the paragraph, support its notice of reliance with a written statement explaining why it needs to rely upon each of the additional discovery responses listed in the notice, failing which the Board, in its discretion, may refuse to consider the additional parts. The amendment parallels the amendment made herein to paragraph (j)(4) of the section and represents a codification of current practice. See The Board of Trustees of the University of Alabama v. BAMA-Werke Curt Baumann, supra. and Holiday Inns, Inc. v. Monolith Enterprises, supra.

Section 2.120(j)(8), which presently provides that "[i]"nterrogatories, requests for production, requests for admissions, and materials or depositions obtained during the discovery period" should not be filed with the Board except under certain specified circumstances, one of which is "when submitted with a motion to compel," is revised to provide that "requests for discovery, responses thereto, and materials or depositions obtained through the discovery process" should not be filed with the Board except under certain specified circumstances; to change the phrase "when submitted with a motion to compel" to "when submitted with a motion relating to discovery;" and to state that papers or materials filed in violation of the paragraph may be returned by the Board. The purpose of the revision is to clarify the beginning of the paragraph, and to reduce the number of papers and materials which must be retained in a proceeding file and stored by the Board. The amendment changing the phrase "when submitted with a motion to compel" to "when submitted with a motion relating to discovery" did not appear in the notice of proposed rulemaking as a proposed amendment. However, the amendment is "housekeeping" in nature, being necessary to harmonize this paragraph with amended § 2.120(d)(1), which requires that copies of interrogatories be filed with the Board in connection with two additional discovery motions, namely, the motion for leave to serve additional interrogatories, and the motion for a protective order filed in response to interrogatories believed to be excessive in number.

Section 2.121(a)(1), which governs the scheduling of trial periods, is amended to include a new sentence codifying the practice that the resetting of a party's time to respond to an outstanding request for discovery will not automatically result in the rescheduling of the discovery and/or testimony periods, and that such dates will be rescheduled only upon stipulation of the parties approved by the Board, or upon motion granted by the Board, or by order of the Board.

Section 2.122(e), which presently requires that a notice of reliance on a printed publication specify the printed publication and the pages to be read, indicate generally the relevance of the material being offered, and be accompanied by "the printed publication or a copy of the relevant portion thereof, including the title page and any other page needed to show the place and date of publication, the name and address of the publisher, and the name of the author or the editor," is amended to require that the notice of reliance specify the printed publication (including information sufficient to identify the source and the date of the publication) and the pages to be read; indicate generally the relevance of the material being offered; and be accompanied by the printed publication or a copy of the relevant portion. The purpose of the amendment is to simplify practice.

Section 2.123(c), which governs notices of depositions, is amended to clarify the paragraph and to codify the current practice that testimony depositions may be noticed for any reasonable time and place in the United States, but that a testimony deposition may not be noticed for a place in a foreign country except as provided in paragraph (a)(2) of the section. This codification of practice as to the place where testimony depositions may be taken roughly parallels § 1.673(a), which governs the taking of testimony depositions in patent interference proceedings in the PTO.

Section 2.123(e)(2), which pertains to the examination of witnesses during oral deposition, is amended to include a new sentence stating that exhibits which are marked and identified at a deposition will be deemed to have been offered into evidence, without any formal offer thereof, unless the intention of the party marking the exhibits is clearly expressed to the contrary. The purpose of the amendment is to revise existing practice, which requires, on the part of the party marking the exhibits, either a formal offer or a clear indication in the transcript of an intent to introduce the exhibits. See, e.g., Roux Laboratories, Inc. v. Kaler, 214 USPQ 134, 135-136 (TTAB 1982); H. Betti Industries, Inc. v. Brunswick Corp., 211 USPQ 1188, 1189 (TTAB 1981); and Kay Corp. v. Weisfield's, Inc., 190 USPQ 565, 567-568 (TTAB 1976). Under the existing practice, a party can lose a case simply because the party's attorney forgets to make a formal offer of the exhibits marked and identified during the party's testimony deposition. Under the practice set forth in the amended paragraph, the Board will be able to determine such cases on their merits, rather than on the basis of a technical defect.

Section 2.123(g)(1), which relates to the form of deposition transcripts, is amended to permit the use of paper with numbered lines as an alternative to consecutively numbering the questions propounded to a witness. The amendment, which parallels § 1.677(a), the provision governing the form of deposition transcripts in patent interference proceedings, will simplify practice.

Section 2.125(a), which governs the filing and service of testimony, is amended to codify the existing practice that if a copy of a deposition transcript, with exhibits, is not served upon each adverse party within thirty days after completion of the taking of the testimony or within an extension of time for that purpose, any adverse party which was not served may have remedy by way of a motion to the Board to reset the adverse party's testimony and/or briefing periods, as may be appropriate. The paragraph is further amended to provide that if the deposing party fails to serve a copy of the transcript with exhibits on an adverse party after having been ordered to do so by the Board, the Board may strike the deposition, or enter judgment by default against the deposing party, or take other action as may be deemed appropriate.

Section 2.127(e)(1) is added to codify the long-established practice that a motion for summary judgment should be filed prior to the commencement of the first testimony period, as originally set or as reset, and that the Board, in its discretion, may deny as untimely any motion for summary judgment filed thereafter. See Rainbow Carpet, Inc. v. Rainbow International Carpet Dyeing & Cleaning Co., 226 USPQ 718 (TTAB 1985); Allegro High Fidelity, Inc. v. Zenith Radio Corp., 197 USPQ 550 (TTAB 1977); La Maur, Inc. v. Bagwells Enterprises, Inc., 193 USPQ 234 (Comm'r Pat. 1976); Peterson's Ltd., Inc. v. Consolidated Cigar Corp., 183 USPQ 559 (TTAB 1974); Cities Service Oil Co. v. Perfection American, Inc., 157 USPQ 209 (TTAB 1968); T. Jeffrey Quinn, Tips From the TTAB: Inter Partes Summary Judgment Revisited, 76 TMR 73 (1986); and David J. Kera, Tips From the TTAB: Summary Judgment, 71 TMR 59, 61-62 (1981).

Section 2.127(e)(2) is added to provide, in essence, that for purposes of summary judgment only, a party may rely on its own responses to requests for discovery served upon it by an adverse party. The new paragraph changes the Board's current practice, under which a party normally is not permitted to rely upon its own responses to discovery for purposes of summary judgment. It is believed that the new practice will be more consistent with the practice in the federal district courts.

Section 2.127(f) is added to codify the existing practice that the Board does not have authority to hold any person in contempt, or to award attorneys' fees or other expenses to any party. Although paragraphs (f), (g), and (h) of § 2.120, the section which governs the taking and use of discovery in inter partes proceedings before the Board, include provisions very similar in nature to the new paragraph, some litigants and/or their attorneys have mistakenly assumed that the Board has the authority to award attorneys' fees or other expenses in situations not involving a failure to provide discovery. The addition of this new paragraph to § 2.127, the section which governs motions in general, will clarify the matter.

Section 2.128(b), which presently provides, in pertinent part, that without leave of the Board, no brief shall contain more than fifty pages of argument, is amended to specify a minimum type or print size for a brief and to provide that without prior leave of the Board, a main brief on the case shall not exceed fifty-five pages in length in its entirety. Litigants before the Board, and their attorneys, are often confused as to exactly what is encompassed by the term "argument," as used in the present paragraph. The amendment simplifies and clarifies practice by specifying length limits for briefs in their entireties, followed by a list of the elements which are included within the length limit. The limit specified in the amended paragraph is five pages longer than that specified in the present paragraph, because the new length limit covers the entire brief, including the table of contents and index of cases, whereas the present length limit does not.

Section 2.129(a), which presently provides, in pertinent part, that oral arguments at final hearing will be heard by three Members of the Board, is amended to provide that such oral arguments will be heard by at least three Members of the Board. The purpose of the amendment, which parallels an amendment made herein to § 2.142(e)(1), is to reflect the Board's use of augmented panels in certain cases.

Section 2.134(a), which pertains to the surrender or voluntary cancellation of a registration which is the subject of a cancellation proceeding before the Board, is amended to codify the practice that in a cancellation proceeding, an adverse party's consent to the respondent's voluntary surrender of the involved registration may be signed by the adverse party or by the adverse party's attorney or other authorized representative. The amendment parallels amendments made herein to §§ 2.106(c), 2.114(c), and 2.135.

Section 2.135, which states the effect of the abandonment of an application which is the subject of an inter partes proceeding before the Board, is amended to codify the practice that in an opposition, concurrent use, or interference proceeding, an adverse party's consent to an applicant's abandonment of the applicant's involved application may be signed by the adverse party or by the adverse party's attorney or other authorized representative. The amendment parallels amendments made herein to §§ 2.106(c), 2.114(c), and 2.134(a).

Section 2.142(b), which governs ex parte appeal briefs, is amended to redesignate the present paragraph as "(1)" and to add a new paragraph, designated "(2)," codifying the form requirements and a length limit (twenty-five pages) for briefs filed in connection with ex parte appeals to the Board.

Section 2.142(e)(1), which presently provides that oral argument on an ex parte appeal to the Board will be heard by three Members of the Board, is amended to provide that oral argument will be heard by at least three Members of the Board. The purpose of the amendment, which parallels an amendment made herein to § 2.129(a), is to reflect the Board's use of augmented panels in certain cases.

Section 2.142(f)(6) is added to codify the practice that if, during an appeal to the Board from a refusal of registration, it appears to the examiner that an issue not previously raised may render the mark of the appellant unregistrable, the examiner may, by written request, ask the Board to suspend the appeal and to remand the application to the examiner for further examination.

Section 2.145(c)(4) is added to provide that a party to a proceeding before the Board which commences a civil action, pursuant to Section 21(b) of the Act, seeking review of a decision of the Board should file written notice with the Board, within one month after the expiration of the time for appeal or civil action, in order to avoid premature termination of the Board proceeding. The purpose of the amendment is to ensure that parties who seek review of Board decisions by way of civil action will be aware of the need for informing the Board thereof.

Section 2.186, which presently provides that any action with respect to an assigned application or registration which may or must be taken by a registrant or applicant may be taken by the assignee provided that the assignment has been recorded, is amended by adding at the end the phrase "or that proof of the assignment has been submitted." The purpose of the amendment is to bring the section into closer conformity with Section 10 of the Act.

Response to Comments on the Rules:

The written comments received in response to the notice of proposed rulemaking have been given careful consideration, and a number of the suggested modifications have been adopted. The comments and responses are discussed below.

Comment: In the notice of proposed rulemaking, it was stated in the "Discussion of Specific Sections Proposed to be Changed" that § 2.68, which pertains to the express abandonment of an application, was proposed to be amended to indicate that the section applies only to the abandonment of an application during the ex parte prosecution thereof, i.e., an application not involved in an inter partes proceeding before the Board. Specifically, the proposed amendment was that the second sentence of the section, which presently reads, "The fact that an application has been expressly abandoned shall not, in any proceeding in the Patent and Trademark Office, affect any rights that the applicant may have in the mark which is the subject of the abandoned application," be amended by adding the phrase "during the ex parte prosecution thereof" immediately after the phrase "The fact that an application has been expressly abandoned." One firm commented that if the proposed amendment was intended to clarify the fact that this section applies only to ex parte applications, the phrase "during the ex parte prosecution thereof" should be added not to the second sentence of the section but rather after the words "An application" in the first sentence, which presently reads, "An application may be expressly abandoned by filing in the Patent and Trademark Office a written statement of abandonment or withdrawal of the application signed by the applicant, or the attorney or other person representing the applicant."

Response: The intent of the proposed amendment was to make it clear that the second sentence of the section (i.e., the sentence which provides, in essence, that the express abandonment of an application shall not, in any proceeding in the PTO, affect any rights which applicant may have in the mark which was the subject of the abandoned application) applies only to the abandonment of an application during ex parte prosecution (the effect of the abandonment of an application which is the subject of an inter partes proceeding before the Board being governed by § 2.135). Thus, the "Discussion of Specific Sections Proposed to be Changed" should have stated that § 2.68 was proposed to be amended to indicate that the "second sentence of the section" (not "the section") applies only to the abandonment of an application during the ex parte prosecution thereof. The first sentence of the section, which relates to the form of an express abandonment, is applicable both to applications which are the subject of an inter partes proceeding before the Board and to those which are not. Thus, the suggested modification has not been adopted. However, for purposes of added clarity, and in lieu of the amendment proposed in the notice of proposed rulemaking, the beginning of the second sentence of the section is being modified to include a cross-reference to § 2.135 (i.e., "Except as provided in § 2.135, the fact that an application has been expressly abandoned shall not. . . .").

Comment: Section 2.102(c) was proposed to be amended to change the specified time beyond which an extension of time to oppose will not be granted without the consent of the applicant or a showing of extraordinary circumstances, from "120 days from the date of publication" to "four months from the date of publication." The organization indicated its belief that since the proposed change would not affect the statutorily mandated "30 day" period for filing an opposition, the amendment would (at least initially) add to confusion regarding the computation of extension periods. In the same vein, one firm commented that the proposed amendment would make sense provided the Board allows potential opposers to request extensions of time to oppose in terms of months rather than days.

Response: It is true that under Section 13 of the Act of 1946, the statutorily mandated period for filing an opposition is "thirty days after the publication . . . of the mark sought to be registered." Section 13 further provides, in part, that the time for filing an opposition shall be extended for an additional thirty days upon written request prior to the expiration of the thirty-day opposition period, and that further extensions of time for filing an opposition may be granted by the Commissioner for good cause when requested prior to the expiration of an extension. Upon further consideration, it appears that the proposed amendment may encourage potential opposers to request the first and subsequent extensions of time to oppose in terms of months rather than days, causing confusion in the computation of extension periods. Accordingly, the proposal to amend § 2.102(c) is withdrawn. In the event that Section 13 of the Act is amended to change the time periods specified therein from "thirty days" to "one month," the proposal to amend § 2.102(c) to change the designation "120 days" to "four months" may be included in a future notice of proposed rulemaking.

Comment: With respect to the proposal to revise § 2.113 (which concerns notification to the respondent of the filing of a petition for cancellation) to indicate that the respondent "shall be the party shown by the records of the Patent and Trademark Office to be the current owner of the registration or registrations sought to be cancelled, except that the Board, in its discretion, may join or substitute as respondent a party who makes a showing of a current ownership interest in such registration or registrations," one individual suggested, in effect, that the section be further revised to provide that if the party identified by the petitioner as the current owner of the registration is not the party shown by the records of the PTO to be the owner, service of the notification and of the petition will be made on the identified current owner as well as on the record owner. The individual notes that this revision would make § 2.113 consistent with proposed (and amended) § 2.112(a) (governing the contents of a petition for cancellation), which requires, in part, that the petitioner indicate, to the best of petitioner's knowledge, the name and address of the current owner of the registration. In addition, one firm suggested that § 2.113 be further revised to provide that a copy of a petition for cancellation will be sent (by the Board) both to the registrant and to the registrant's last attorney of record. The firm expressed its belief that sending a copy of the petition for cancellation to the registrant's last attorney of record as well as to the registrant "may serve to speed up cancellation proceedings, which are sometimes delayed by many months by reason of the fact that the registrant cannot be located and it is necessary to publish notice of the proceeding in the Office Gazette."

Response: Under present practice, when a petitioner informs the Board of petitioner's belief that the registration sought to be cancelled is currently owned by a party other than the party shown by the records of the PTO to be the owner, the Board sends a copy of the notification and of the petition to cancel both to the record owner, and to the party identified by the petitioner as the current owner. The current owner may file a motion, supported by evidence of its current ownership of the registration, to be joined or substituted as respondent. The paragraph has been modified, as suggested by the first individual, to reflect this practice.

As to the suggestion that § 2.113 be further revised to provide that a copy of the petition for cancellation will be sent both to the registrant and to the registrant's last attorney of record, it is the practice of the Board, in those cases where the respondent's copy of the petition for cancellation is returned to the Board as undeliverable, to send a written communication to the petitioner asking the petitioner for information concerning respondent's current address. If the petitioner files a response indicating that the respondent is no longer in business, notice of the proceeding is published in the Official Gazette. If the petitioner fails to file a response, or files a response indicating that it is unable to furnish respondent's current address, the Board attempts to locate the respondent. Typically, the Board will contact a telephone information operator in the city of respondent's last-known address; the respondent's last attorney of record, if there is an attorney and such attorney's last appearance of record on the respondent's behalf was within the last five years or so; and/or the Secretary of State of the respondent's state of incorporation. If the Board is unable to locate the respondent after reasonable investigation, notice of the proceeding is published in the Official Gazette.

The practice suggested by the firm would be burdensome to the Board since the Board would have to make an extra copy of the petition to cancel (and any exhibits attached thereto) to send to the attorney; this would have to be done for most cancellation proceedings, since most respondents have been represented by counsel at one time or another; and in those cases where the copy of the petition for cancellation mailed to the respondent's attorney was returned to the Board as undeliverable, the returns would be additional receipts to be processed by the Board.

Under the Board's present practice, on the other hand, the Board acts only in those cancellation proceedings in which the respondent's copy of the petition for cancellation is returned as undeliverable (a minority of cases).

Preliminary steps have been taken to begin giving notice, by publication in the Official Gazette, of the filing of every petition for cancellation soon after its filing date, thus eliminating the need for a later service by publication in cases where the Board's efforts to serve notice of the proceeding by mail are unsuccessful.

Accordingly, the modification suggested by the firm has not been adopted.

Comment: Section 2.119(b), which lists methods for service of papers by one party upon another in an inter partes proceeding before the Board, was proposed to be amended to specifically provide for the service of papers by two additional methods, namely, transmission by the "Express Mail" service of the United States Postal Service and transmission by overnight courier. One individual applauded the proposal but commented that on one occasion, a problem arose when an overnight courier delivered a paper directly to the PTO at its physical location in Virginia. The individual suggested that if the proposed amendment is adopted, "the overnight courier should be provided a physical address rather than Box 5 at Washington D.C. 20231."

Response: Section 2.119(b) pertains to the service of papers by one party upon another, not to the filing of papers with the PTO.

Comment: Section 2.119(c), which presently provides, in part, that whenever a party is required to take some action within a prescribed period after the service of a paper upon that party by another party and the paper is served by mail, 5 days shall be added to the prescribed period, was proposed to be amended to apply also to service by "Express Mail" or by overnight courier. One individual commented that when service is made by "Express Mail" or overnight courier, the addition of 5 days to any prescribed time period for taking action seems unjustified. This individual suggested that the paragraph be modified to provide for the addition of only one day to the prescribed time for taking action when service is made by "Express Mail" or by overnight courier.

Response: Since papers transmitted by "Express Mail" or by overnight courier are not always delivered in one day, it was determined that the number of added days for service should be the same for service by "Express Mail" or by overnight courier as for service by first-class mail. An attorney who does not want to give an adverse party the advantage of having 5 added days after service by "Express Mail" or by overnight courier can always elect to serve by first-class mail instead. Accordingly, the suggested modification has not been adopted.

Comment: New § 2.119(d) was proposed to be added to require, in essence, that a party to an inter partes proceeding who is not domiciled in the United States and is not represented by an attorney or other authorized representative located in the United States, appoint a domestic representative on whom may be served notices or process in the proceeding. One firm commented that the proposed paragraph might be redundant because any foreign applicant is required (by § 2.24) to designate a domestic representative in the application.

Response: In the notice of proposed rulemaking, the term "application" was inadvertently used instead of the correct term "proceeding" in the second sentence of the paragraph. Although § 2.24 requires that an applicant not domiciled in the United States appoint a domestic representative, there is no rule which makes any similar requirement in the case of a foreign opposer, petitioner, or respondent involved in an inter partes proceeding before the Board. The proposal to add new § 2.119 was intended to remedy that oversight and thus to facilitate the service of papers on foreign opposers, petitioners and respondents not represented by domestic counsel. Inasmuch as there is, in fact, a need for the proposed requirement, proposed § 2.119(d) is adopted herein as a final rule, and the second sentence has been corrected by substituting the term "proceeding" for the term "application."

Comment: Section 2.120(a), which contains certain general provisions relating to discovery in inter partes proceedings before the Board, was proposed to be amended to include a new sentence specifying that the opening of discovery is governed by the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. One firm commented, in essence, that the proposed amendment "does not clarify the situation of when discovery opens;" that the opening of discovery as set forth in the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure does not work in opposition and cancellation proceedings because of the delay (of one to two months) between the filing of the complaint, i.e., the notice of opposition or petition for cancellation, and service of a copy of the complaint upon the defendant by the Board; that this delay gives the defendant, which may start to take discovery immediately after the complaint is filed, an advantage over the plaintiff, which cannot take discovery until a copy of the complaint has been served by the Board upon the defendant, and is not entitled to receive responses to its interrogatories, requests for production, and requests for admission until 45 days after such service by the Board; and that the "preferred situation would be for the Board to set forth a specific time before which discovery requests cannot be served," as, for example, to provide that discovery opens on the date that the Board notifies the defendant of the filing of the proceeding.

Response: It is apparent that the thrust of the firm's comments relating to this proposed amendment is not that the proposed new provision is unclear but rather that the firm would prefer a different practice with respect to the opening of discovery in proceedings before the Board. The proposed amendment codifies a long-standing practice which, in the experience of the Board, has worked smoothly. Although some defendants in Board opposition and cancellation proceedings learn about the existence of the proceeding, and serve discovery requests, before the Board serves them with a notice of the filing of the proceeding and a copy of the complaint, most do not. Nor does the plaintiff, who, after all, is the party which initiated the proceeding, and has had time to plan and prepare therefor, suffer any real prejudice (as opposed to a possible perceived tactical disadvantage) in those cases where the defendant does initiate discovery before the plaintiff can do so. Accordingly, the modification suggested by the firm has not been adopted.

Comment: Section 2.120(d) was proposed to be amended to include a new paragraph, designated "(1)," limiting the number of interrogatories which a party may serve upon another party to twenty-five, not counting subparts (required to be relevant, and reasonable in number), with additional interrogatories being allowed by the Board, in its discretion, only upon motion to the Board showing extraordinary circumstances, or upon stipulation of the parties.

One individual expressed his belief that the proposed "extraordinary circumstances" test is too harsh and suggested instead that the test be "substantial need in the preparation of the moving party's case."

A second individual expressed his belief that the "reasonable number of relevant subparts" provision is so subjective that it would lead to an increase in discovery disputes and motions. This individual suggested that the interrogatory limit be set at fifty rather than twenty-five, and that the "reasonable number of relevant subparts" provision be replaced with the sentence, "In computing the total number of interrogatories, each subdivision of separate questions shall be counted as an interrogatory."

A third individual commented that limiting interrogatories to twenty-five with a reasonable number of subparts would cause uncertainty over whether interrogatories, although numbered twenty-five or less, actually contain more than twenty-five separate questions, leading litigants to make their own count of the questions, answer twenty-five, and not answer fully the remainder on the ground that supernumerary questions are not authorized by the rules. To remedy this problem, the individual suggested that if the proposed rule is adopted, it might be advisable to add "a provision prescribing that relief for an excessive number of interrogatories is a protective order rather than an incomplete response to the interrogatories." The same individual also commented that in any event, the rule should not be applied to pending cases.

One firm commented that by stating that the twenty-five interrogatories may contain a reasonable number of relevant subparts, the whole purpose of the proposed rule (to discourage harassment by the use of too many interrogatories) has been defeated since the interrogatory limit can easily be avoided by using subparts. The firm suggested that the number of interrogatories be limited instead to a stated number, such as 125, including subparts; and that the rule be clarified to provide for extra interrogatories in cases where more than one mark is involved.

Another firm expressed its belief that the number of interrogatories should not be limited; that the proposed rule would make practice before the Board more expensive and less convenient; that the particular number limit proposed is even below the number allowed by some federal courts; that the "extraordinary circumstances" test is not practical because of the lack of specificity as to what constitutes "extraordinary" circumstances, and because of the delay involved in having to file a motion to obtain a ruling on the question; and that a better practice would be a provision which allows a party to move for a limitation on the number of interrogatories if a problem arises. This firm submitted copies of a number of different federal district court local rules pertaining to interrogatories.

Finally, an organization expressed its concern that the proposed limitation on the number of interrogatories could: (1) lead to an increase in motions to the Board in order to permit parties to serve valid follow-up interrogatories regarding prior responses and documents produced; or (2) result in increased reliance on depositions, generally a more costly and intrusive form of discovery. The organization recommended that the PTO monitor the impact of this amendment carefully and further amend the rule to make it less restrictive, if the circumstances warrant.

Response: Upon careful consideration of the comments, and supporting arguments, submitted with respect to proposed § 2.120(d)(1), it is concluded that the "reasonable number of relevant subparts" provision is so subjective that it would lead to a large increase in discovery disputes and motions, and hence be burdensome both to the Board and to litigants and their attorneys. Moreover, if unlimited subparts were allowed, the purpose of the proposed paragraph (to discourage parties from using written interrogatories for purposes of harassment) would, as noted by the firm, be defeated, since the interrogatory number limit could easily be avoided through the use of many subparts; whereas, if no subparts were allowed (or if each subpart were counted as an interrogatory), the limit in the proposed rule might lead to increased use of discovery depositions, a more costly form of discovery. The proposed limitation was not intended to deprive parties of interrogatories for which they have a legitimate need or to make it more expensive for parties to obtain discovery. Rather, it was intended to protect litigants from being harassed by excessive numbers of interrogatories. Accordingly, the proposed paragraph has been modified to limit the total number of interrogatories which a party may serve upon another party in a proceeding to seventy-five, counting subparts, with additional interrogatories being allowed by the Board, in its discretion, upon motion to the Board showing good cause, or upon stipulation of the parties. The words "total" and "in a proceeding," which were not included in the proposed rule, have been included in the final rule to make it clear that the number limitation refers to the total number of interrogatories served during an entire proceeding, not just per set of interrogatories.

The suggestion that the final rule include, in lieu of a specific limitation on the number of interrogatories which may be served, a provision allowing a party to move for a limitation on the number of interrogatories if a problem arises, has not been adopted. It is believed that such a provision would result in a large number of motions from parties which would not be willing to answer interrogatories without first obtaining a ruling from the Board as to whether the interrogatories were reasonable in number.

The amended paragraph has not been modified to provide for extra interrogatories in cases where more than one mark is pleaded by the plaintiff, or where the proceeding involves more than one mark registered or sought to be registered by the defendant, because in such cases the adverse party may simply request that each interrogatory be answered with respect to each mark, and the interrogatories will be counted the same as if they pertained to only one mark. In the same vein, the final rule does not provide for extra interrogatories in cases where there is a counterclaim for cancellation of a plaintiff's pleaded registration or registrations, because the discovery information needed by a defendant in a proceeding before the Board for purposes of defending itself against the plaintiff's claim usually encompasses any information which may be needed for a counterclaim. Thus, it is believed that in most cases, the mere fact that there may be a multiple mark situation, or a counterclaim, will not result in a need for interrogatories exceeding in total number the limitation specified in the final rule. However, in those cases where there is, because of a multiple mark or counterclaim situation, a legitimate need for interrogatories exceeding the specified limit in number, the party who wishes to serve additional interrogatories will be able to make the requisite showing of good cause in support of a motion for leave to do so.

For purposes of clarity, the final paragraph includes (as did several of the federal district court local rules submitted by one firm) a requirement that a motion for leave to serve additional interrogatories be accompanied by a copy of the interrogatories which have already been served by the moving party, if any, and by a copy of the interrogatories proposed to be served. Obviously, the Board cannot make an informed ruling on such a motion without these copies.

The final paragraph also includes, as suggested by one individual, a provision indicating that relief for an excessive number of interrogatories is a protective order rather than an incomplete response to the interrogatories. Specifically, the final paragraph states that if a party upon which interrogatories have been served believes that the number of interrogatories served exceeds the limitation specified in the paragraph, and is not willing to waive this basis for objection, the party shall, within the time for (and instead of) serving answers and objections to the interrogatories, file a motion for a protective order, accompanied by a copy of the interrogatories which together are said to exceed the limitation.

The suggestion that this rule not be applied to pending cases has not been adopted. By a final rule notice published in the Federal Register on April 18, 1972 at 37 FR 7605, the rules of practice in trademark cases were amended to substantially adopt the liberal discovery practice provided under the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. Those rule amendments were made applicable to all proceedings filed on or after July 1, 1972. The result was that for a number of years, some inter partes cases before the Board were governed by one set of rules, providing a liberal discovery practice, and others were governed by another set of rules under which discovery was more restricted. This situation caused confusion among litigants and their attorneys and was burdensome to the Board. Further, it is desirable that other rule amendments herein be made effective in all cases as soon as possible, and it would be extremely confusing for all concerned if some of the rule amendments were made applicable to all cases pending before the Board on or after the effective date of the rule amendments, and others were made applicable only to proceedings which commenced on or after that date. For these reasons, it is believed that the better alternative is to make the new interrogatory rule applicable to all inter partes proceedings pending before the Board on or after the effective date of the rule amendments. However, the new rule will apply only to interrogatories served on or after that date (although interrogatories served prior to that date will, of course, be counted in determining whether interrogatories served after the effective date violate the limitation specified in the new rule; that is, a party who has served 100 interrogatories prior to the effective date of the new rule is not given license by the new rule to serve another 75 after the effective date).

Finally, as suggested by the organization, the PTO will monitor the impact of this rule amendment carefully and further amend the rule to make it less restrictive, if circumstances warrant.

Comment: One individual and one firm commented, with respect to proposed §§ 2.120(g)(2) and 2.120(j)(3)(i), that there appeared to be significant errors in the text as published in the Federal Register and in the Patent, Trademark & Copyright Journal.

Response: The noted errors were made in printing, when several pages of original text were transposed. On April 4, 1989, a correction notice pertaining to those errors, among others, was printed in the Federal Register at 54 FR 13605. The errors did not appear in the text as published in the Official Gazette.

Comment: Section 2.123(e)(2), which pertains to the examination of witnesses during oral deposition, was proposed to be amended to include a new sentence stating that exhibits which are marked and identified at a deposition will be deemed to have been offered into evidence, without any formal offer thereof, unless the intention of the parties is clearly to the contrary. The purpose of the proposed amendment was to revise existing practice, which requires, on the part of the party marking the exhibits, either a formal offer or a clear indication in the transcript of an intent to introduce the exhibits. One individual commented that the clause "unless the intention of the parties is clearly to the contrary" is somewhat inaccurate and ambiguous. The individual suggested that the proposed clause be modified to read, "unless the intention of the party marking the exhibit is clearly expressed to the contrary."

Response: The paragraph has been modified as suggested.

Comment: One individual commented that he applauded the proposal to amend § 2.123(g)(1), which relates to the form of deposition transcripts, to permit the use of paper with numbered lines as an alternative to consecutively numbering the questions propounded to a witness, but suggested that the paragraph be amended further to delete another requirement, namely, the requirement that the name of the witness be plainly and conspicuously written at the top of each page. The individual questioned whether "it is necessary to still require that the name of the witness be written at the top of each page provided that the testimony of each witness is bound into one or more volumes separately from the testimony of any other witness and clearly marked on the cover and at the first and last to indicate the name of that particular witness." The individual noted that many of the reporters available for use in this type of proceeding are retired former court reporters who have established independent businesses, and "who do not have elaborate word processing which could perform that task automatically during printing."

Response: The appearance of the name of the witness at the top of each page of a deposition transcript is quite helpful to the Board. For example, sometimes litigants submit, in connection with a motion, copies of several selected pages from one or more deposition transcripts. In such cases, the name at the top of the page is sometimes the only means the Board has of determining whose testimony is on each page. Moreover, often, while drafting an opinion, it is necessary for a Board Member to refer repeatedly to a number of open deposition transcripts, and it would be inconvenient for the Board Member to have to keep turning to the front of the transcripts to verify the identity of the witness in each one. Accordingly, the suggestion has not been adopted.

Comment: With respect to § 2.127(e)(1), which was proposed to be added to provide that a motion for summary judgment should be filed prior to the commencement of the first testimony period, and that the Board, in its discretion, may deny as untimely any motion for summary judgment filed thereafter, the organization commented that the language does not take into account the possibility that the trial periods may be reset; and recommended that the problem be corrected by substituting the phrase "opening trial date" for the phrase "first testimony period."

Response: The phrase "opening trial date" is somewhat ambiguous since "trial date" might be construed by some litigants as referring to the date on which testimony is actually scheduled to be taken, rather than the date of the commencement of the testimony period. Moreover, it is not believed that the substitution of the phrase "opening trial date" for the phrase "first testimony period" would solve the problem perceived by the organization. It appears that the organization may have construed the phrase "first testimony period" as meaning the opening testimony period as first set, when in fact the phrase was intended to signify the opening testimony period of the plaintiff, as distinguished from other testimony periods, such as the testimony period of the defendant (particularly where the defendant is also the plaintiff in a counterclaim, in which case the testimony period of the defendant as defendant in the main proceeding and as plaintiff in the counterclaim could be argued to be the "opening testimony period" for purposes of the counterclaim), the rebuttal testimony period of the plaintiff, etc. In any event, in order to further clarify the paragraph, the phrase "as originally set or as reset" has been included in the amended paragraph immediately after the phrase "first testimony period." This should not be construed as meaning, however, that when the Board denies a motion for summary judgment as untimely filed, but resets the plaintiff's main (i.e., "first") testimony period, the motion may be refiled before the commencement of the period as reset, and considered timely. See La Maur, Inc. v. Bagwells Enterprises, Inc., supra.

Comment: Section 2.127(e)(2) was proposed to be added to provide that for purposes of summary judgment only a party may rely upon its own responses to discovery requests. The organization stated that it opposes this amendment "because it could lead to discovery abuses and will create conflicting treatment of a party's own answers to discovery, depending upon whether the case is resolved on summary judgment or after a trial on the merits." The organization also expressed its belief that although the proposed paragraph follows practice in the federal district courts, the limited jurisdiction and sanctioning power of the Board "would tend to frustrate the self-policing effect of the rule as it operates in a federal court context." One individual commented that the proposed paragraph may mislead some lawyers into thinking that the filing, without more, of a party's own interrogatory answers, etc., in connection with a motion for summary judgment will make them probative; that Rule 56(e) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure specifies certain requirements for affidavits submitted in connection with a summary judgment motion; that these requirements (namely, that the affidavits be made on personal knowledge, set forth such facts as would be admissible in evidence, and show affirmatively that affiant is competent to testify to the matters stated therein) have been applied by the courts to answers to interrogatories filed in support of or in opposition to a summary judgment motion; and that the proposed paragraph should be modified to refer to these requirements, as, for example, by the addition of the phrase "and subject to the requirements of Rule 56(e) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure" after the introductory phrase "For purposes of summary judgment only."

Response: It is noted that the specific discovery abuses feared were not enumerated. To the extent that the proposed practice would create conflicting treatment of a party's own responses to discovery, depending upon whether a case is resolved upon summary judgment or after trial on the merits, it is not believed that this is a matter of great concern. Indeed, there is precedent for such a conflict in the treatment of evidence. Under present practice, there is conflicting treatment of affidavit "testimony," which is not admissible at trial except by agreement of the parties [see § 2.123(b)], but is admissible for purposes of a motion for summary judgment (subject to the requirements of Rule 56(e) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure).

Essentially, the matters raised by the organization and by the individual are factors to be considered by the Board in determining the probative value of a party's own discovery responses submitted for purposes of summary judgment. However, the proposed paragraph relates to the admissibility of this type of evidence, not to its probative value. The fact that a piece of evidence is admissible does not mean that it will necessarily be accorded great, or even any, probative value.

Over the years, many attorneys have argued, in briefs filed in connection with summary judgment motions, that a party's own discovery responses should be admissible for purposes of summary judgment. Under the circumstances, the paragraph is being adopted as proposed, without any modifications. However, the impact of the new rule will be monitored carefully, and the paragraph will be modified by future rulemaking, if necessary.

Comment: Section 2.128(b), which governs the form of briefs at final hearing, presently provides, in part, that without leave of the Board, no brief shall contain more than fifty pages of argument and, in the case of a reply brief, the entire brief shall not exceed twenty-five pages. The paragraph was proposed to be amended to provide that without prior leave of the Board, "a main brief on the case shall not exceed fifty-five pages in length in its entirety, including the table of contents, index of cases, description of the record, statement of the issues, recitation of facts, argument, and summary, and a reply brief shall not exceed twenty-five pages in its entirety." The two firms commented that the table of contents and index of cases should not be included in the page limitations for main briefs. They stated that these two elements do not actually constitute the brief, but clearly facilitate the use and reading of the brief, and hence are helpful to both the Board and the parties; that incorporation of these parts into the page limitation will encourage minimal use of these features; and that in most federal courts which have a limitation on the number of pages, these two elements are excluded from the limitation.

Response: The provision of present § 2.128(b), that no (main) brief shall contain more than fifty pages of argument, has always been deemed by the Board to exclude the table of contents and index of cases (as well as any attached exhibits or appendices, which are not considered to be part of the brief itself), but to include (the term "argument" being construed broadly) the description of the record, statement of the issues, recitation of facts, arguments based on the law and the facts, and summary.Because of confusion on the part of litigants and their attorneys as to which parts of the brief are included within the length limitation of the present provision, and for purposes of clarity, the paragraph was proposed to be amended to include all parts of the brief itself (again, any exhibits or appendices to the brief are not considered to be part of the brief). Since the proposed amendment included in the length limitation the two elements which had not been included before, namely, the table of contents and index of pages, the brief length limitation was proposed to be increased from fifty pages to fifty-five pages. It is believed that the allowance of an extra five pages is more than sufficient to cover the table of contents and index of cases in main briefs before the Board, and that a page limitation which is all-inclusive is simpler and less confusing than one which is not all-inclusive. Therefore, the suggested modification has not been adopted.

Comment: Section 2.142(b)(2) was proposed to be added to govern the form of briefs on the case in ex parte appeals before the Board. The proposed paragraph provides, in part, that without prior leave of the Board, a brief shall not exceed twenty-five pages in length in its entirety. The organization commented that the proposed provision would limit appeal briefs "to a maximum of 25 pages, including all appendices and exhibits;" that although the proposed rule aloows a party to seek prior leave to file a more extensive brief, it is likely that the need to seek such leave will arise too frequently, with the result being a counter-productive rule; and that if a page limit is required, it should either be increased or clarified to exclude exhibits and appendices.

Response: Exhibits and appendices to a brief are not considered by the Board to be part of the brief, and hence are not included within the length limitation. However, the inclusion in the paragraph of a reference to exhibits and appendices to an appeal brief may mislead some litigants and/or their attorneys into believing that new evidence may be submitted with an appeal brief by way of an exhibit or appendix thereto, when, in fact, an applicant may submit new evidence after appeal only with the consent of the Examining Attorney or in accordance with the provisions of § 2.142(d). Accordingly, the suggested modification has not been adopted.

Comment: Section 2.142(f)(6) was proposed to be added to provide, in part, that "if, during an appeal from a refusal of registration, it appears to the examiner that an issue not involved in the appeal may render the mark of the appellant unregistrable, the examiner may request the Board to suspend the appeal and to remand the application to the examiner for further examination." The organization commented that the paragraph should be modified to specify that the Examining Attorney must file a written request and show good cause before an application will be remanded for examination; that the situations in which remand is allowed by the Board should be closely scrutinized; that after an applicant has submitted its appeal brief, for example, remand should be allowed, if at all, only in the most exceptional circumstances; and that when a requested remand is for the purpose of curing technical problems previously overlooked, the consent of the applicant shall be sought.

Response: The proposed paragraph, which codifies present practice, has been modified to specify that the Examining Attorney's request for remand must be written (as is, in fact, the practice). The remainder of the organization's suggestions, if adopted, would make it much more difficult for the Examining Attorney to obtain a remand of the application for purposes of further examination with respect to an issue not involved in the appeal. However, it is in the interest of the public, the applicant, and the PTO to avoid the issuance of an invalid registration. Accordingly, the remainder of the organization's suggestions have not been adopted.

Comment: Section 2.145(c)(4) was proposed to be added to provide that a party to a proceeding before the Board who commences a civil action, pursuant to Section 21(b) of the Act, seeking review of a decision of the Board must file written notice thereof in the PTO, addressed to the Board, within one month after the expiration of the time for appeal or civil action, in order to avoid premature termination of the Board proceeding. The organization commented that the proposed paragraph requires further clarification to define what is meant by the term "premature termination;" that depending on the meaning, the result of a "premature termination" may be too harsh, e.g., where a party may have otherwise perfected an appeal of a Board decision with the exception of having timely filed written notice of the proceeding with the Board; and that the word "should" should be substituted for the word "must" in the proposed paragraph.

Response: When a decision of the Board has become final, that is, when the time for appeal therefrom has expired and no appeal has been filed, the PTO takes certain further steps, based on the final decision, including those steps necessary to give effect to the decision. This process is referred to as the "termination" of the proceeding. For example, when a decision of the Board dismissing an opposition has become final, the word "Terminated" is stamped on the file of the opposition proceeding, the opposition file is sent to the warehouse where terminated proceeding files are stored, and the registration sought by the applicant is issued. When a decision of the Board granting a petition for cancellation has become final, one of the further steps taken as a consequence thereof is the cancellation of the respondent's subject registration. If an "appeal" by way of civil action is taken from a decision of the Board, and the PTO is not notified, the PTO, believing the Board's decision to be final, will take the further steps which are appropriate based on the decision, i.e., the PTO will "terminate" the proceeding, not knowing that it is doing so prematurely.

The premature termination of a Board proceeding has no effect on the perfection of the "appeal" by way of civil action, and is not in the nature of a sanction, but rather occurs because the PTO has followed its normal procedures to give effect to a decision of the Board. The purpose of the proposed paragraph is simply to warn litigants who have filed a civil action seeking review of a decision of the Board that they need to give timely notice to the PTO of the filing of the civil action so that the PTO will not take steps to give effect to the Board's decision in the mistaken belief that it is final, when in fact it is not.

However, it is possible that in some cases where a written notice of the commencement of a civil action is filed shortly after the time specified in the rule, the PTO will not yet have terminated the proceeding, and therefore the written notice, even though somewhat untimely, will serve to avoid premature termination of the proceeding. For this reason, the paragraph has been modified as suggested by substituting the word "should" for the word "must."

The adoption of the suggestion that the proposed paragraph be clarified to define what is meant by the term "premature termination" would result in a rule which is unduly lengthy. Moreover, a detailed explanation of the meaning of the term has been given in this final rule notice.

Comment: Two individuals and one firm submitted suggestions for changes to rules not involved herein.

Response: The suggested changes cannot be adopted without affording members of the public an opportunity to comment thereon. However, these suggestions will be considered in connection with any future amendments to the rules of practice in trademark cases.

Environmental, Energy, and other considerations:

The rule change will not have a significant impact on the quality of the human environment or the conservation of energy resources.

The rule change is in conformity with the requirements of the Regulatory Flexibility Act (Pub. L. 96-354), Executive Orders 12291 and 12612, and the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, 44 U.S.C. 3501 et seq.

The General Counsel of the Department of Commerce has certified to the Chief Counsel for Advocacy, Small Business Administration that the rule change will not have a significant adverse economic impact on a substantial number of small entities (Regulatory Flexibility Act, Pub. L. 96-354). The rule change includes no additional or increased fees. Substantive rights to use valuable trademarks are not adversely affected.

The Patent and Trademark Office has determined that this rule change is not a major rule under Executive Order 12291. The annual effect to the economy will be less than $100 million. There will be no major increase in costs or prices for consumers, individual industries, federal, state or local government agencies, or geographic regions. There will be no significant adverse effects on competition, employment, investment, productivity, innovation, or on the ability of United States-based enterprises to compete with foreign-based enterprises in domestic or export markets.

The PTO has also determined that this notice has no federalism implications affecting the relationship between the National Government and the states as outlined in Executive Order 12612.

This rule contains collections of information subject to the Paperwork Reduction Act previously approved by OMB under ICB Number 0651-0009. Public reporting burden for this collection of information is estimated to average 25 minutes per response, including the time for reviewing instructions, searching existing data sources, gathering and maintaining the data needed, and completing and reviewing the collection of information. Send comments regarding this burden estimate or any other aspect of this collection of information, including suggestions for reducing the burden, to Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Washington, D.C. 20231 and to the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs, Office of Management and Budget, Washington, D.C. 20503.

List of Subject Terms in 37 CFR Part 2:

Administrative practice and procedures, Courts, Lawyers, Trademarks.

Amendment of Regulations:

For the reasons set forth in the preamble and pursuant to the authority contained in Section 41 of the Trademark Act of July 5, 1946, as amended, Part 2 of Title 37 of the Code of Federal Regulations is amended as set forth below.

PART 2—RULES OF PRACTICE IN TRADEMARK CASES

1. The authority citation for Part 2 continues to read as follows:

Authority: 15 U.S.C. 1123; 35 U.S.C. 6, unless otherwise noted.

2. Section 2.42 is revised to read as follows:

§ 2.42 Concurrent use.

An application for registration as a lawful concurrent user shall specify and contain all the elements required by the preceding sections. The applicant in addition shall state in the application the area, the goods, and the mode of use for which applicant seeks registration; and also shall state, to the extent of the applicant's knowledge, the concurrent lawful use of the mark by others, setting forth their names and addresses; registrations issued to or applications filed by such others, if any; the areas of such use; the goods on or in connection with which such use is made; the mode of such use; and the periods of such use.

2. Section 2.68 is revised to read as follows:

§ 2.68 Express abandonment (withdrawal) of application.

An application may be expressly abandoned by filing in the Patent and Trademark Office a written statement of abandonment or withdrawal of the application signed by the applicant, or the attorney or other person representing the applicant. Except as provided in § 2.135, the fact that an application has been expressly abandoned shall not, in any proceeding in the Patent and Trademark Office, affect any rights that the applicant may have in the mark which is the subject of the abandoned application.

3. Section 2.91 is amended by revising the section heading to read as follows:

§ 2.91 Declaration of interference.

* * * * *

4. Section 2.92 is revised to read as follows:

§ 2.92 Preliminary to interference.

An interference which has been declared by the Commissioner will not be instituted by the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board until the Examiner of Trademarks has determined that the marks which are to form the subject matter of the controversy are registrable, and all of the marks have been published in the Official Gazette for opposition.

5. Section 2.93 is revised as follows:

§ 2.93 Institution of interference.

An interference is instituted by the mailing of a notice of interference to the parties. The notice shall be sent to each applicant, in care of the applicant's attorney or other representative of record, if any, and if one of the parties is a registrant, the notice shall be sent to the registrant or the registrant's assignee of record. The notice shall give the name and address of every adverse party and of the adverse party's attorney or other authorized representative, if any, together with the serial number and date of filing and publication of each of the applications, or the registration number and date of issuance of each of the registrations, involved.

6. Section 2.104 is revised to read as follows:

§ 2.104 Contents of opposition.

(a) The opposition must set forth a short and plain statement showing why the opposer believes it would be damaged by the registration of the opposed mark and state the grounds for opposition. A duplicate copy of the opposition, including exhibits, shall be filed with the opposition.

(b) Oppositions to different applications owned by the same party may be joined in a consolidated opposition when appropriate, but the required fee must be included for each party joined as opposer for each class in which registration is opposed in each application against which the opposition is filed.

7. Section 2.106 is amended by revising paragraphs (b)(1) and (c) to read as follows:

* * * * *

§ 2.106 Answer.

(b)(1) An answer shall state in short and plain terms the applicant's defenses to each claim asserted and shall admit or deny the averments upon which the opposer relies. If the applicant is without knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to the truth of an averment, applicant shall so state and this will have the effect of a denial. Denials may take any of the forms specified in Rule 8(b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. An answer may contain any defense, including the affirmative defenses of unclean hands, laches, estoppel, acquiescence, fraud, mistake, prior judgment, or any other matter constituting an avoidance or affirmative defense. When pleading special matters, the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure shall be followed. A reply to an affirmative defense need not be filed. When a defense attacks the validity of a registration pleaded in the opposition, paragraph (b)(2) of this section shall govern. A pleaded registration is a registration identified by number and date of issuance in an original notice of opposition or in any amendment thereto made under Rule 15, Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

* * * * *

VOL 1106 ISS 2 SE 12 1989 UMI

(c) The opposition may be withdrawn without prejudice before the answer is filed. After the answer is filed, the opposition may not be withdrawn without prejudice except with the written consent of the applicant or the applicant's attorney or other authorized representative.

8. Section 2.112 is amended by revising paragraph (a) to read as follows:

§ 2.112 Contents of petition for cancellation.

(a) The petition to cancel must set forth a short and plain statement showing why the petitioner believes it is or will be damaged by the registration, state the grounds for cancellation, and indicate, to the best of petitioner's knowledge, the name and address of the current owner of the registration. A duplicate copy of the petition, including exhibits, shall be filed with the petition.

* * * * *

9. Section 2.113 is revised to read as follows:

§ 2.113 Notification of cancellation proceeding.

When a petition for cancellation has been filed in proper form (see §§ 2.111 and 2.112), a notification shall be prepared by the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board, which shall identify the title and number of the proceeding and the registration or registrations involved and shall designate a time, not less than thirty days from the mailing date of the notification, within which an answer must be filed. A copy of the notification shall be forwarded to the attorney or other authorized representative of the petitioner, if any, or to the petitioner. The duplicate copy of the petition for cancellation and exhibits shall be forwarded with a copy of the notification to the respondent (see § 2.118), who shall be the party shown by the records of the Patent and Trademark Office to be the current owner of the registration or registrations sought to be cancelled, except that the Board, in its discretion, may join or substitute as respondent a party who makes a showing of a current ownership interest in such registration or registrations. When the party identified by the petitioner, pursuant to § 2.112(a), as the current owner of the registration or registrations is not the record owner thereof, a courtesy copy of the petition for cancellation shall be forwarded with a copy of the notification to the alleged current owner, which may file a motion to be joined or substituted as respondent. If the petition is found to be defective as to form, the party filing the petition shall be so advised and allowed a reasonable time for correcting the informality.

10. Section 2.114 is amended by revising paragraphs (b)(1) and (c) to read as follows:

§ 2.114 Answer.

* * * * *

(b)(1) An answer shall state in short and plain terms the respondent's defenses to each claim asserted and shall admit or deny the averments upon which the petitioner relies. If the respondent is without knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to the truth of an averment, respondent shall so state and this will have the effect of a denial. Denials may take any of the forms specified in Rule 8(b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. An answer may contain any defense, including the affirmative defenses of unclean hands, laches, estoppel, acquiescence, fraud, mistake, prior judgment, or any other matter constituting an avoidance or affirmative defense. When pleading special matters, the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure shall be followed. A reply to an affirmative defense need not be filed. When a defense attacks the validity of a registration pleaded in the petition, paragraph (b)(2) of this section shall govern. A pleaded registration is a registration identified by number and date of issuance in an original petition for cancellation or in any amendment thereto made under Rule 15, Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

* * * * *

(c) The petition for cancellation may be withdrawn without prejudice before the answer is filed. After the answer is filed, the petition may not be withdrawn without prejudice except with the written consent of the registrant or the registrant's attorney or other authorized representative.

11. Section 2.119 is amended by revising the section heading, paragraphs (b) and (c), and adding new paragraphs (d) and (e) to read as follows:

§ 2.119 Service and signing of papers.

* * * * *

(b) Service of papers must be on the attorney or other authorized representative of the party if there be such or on the party if there is no attorney or other authorized representative, and may be made in any of the following ways:
(1) By delivering a copy of the paper to the person served;
(2) By leaving a copy at the usual place of business of the person served, with someone in the person's employment;
(3) When the person served has no usual place of business, by leaving a copy at the person's residence, with a member of the person's family over 14 years of age and of discretion;
(4) Transmission by the "Express Mail Post Office to Addressee" service of the United States Postal Service or by first-class mail, which may also be certified or registered;
(5) Transmission by overnight courier.
Whenever it shall be satisfactorily shown to the Commissioner that none of the above modes of obtaining service or serving the paper is practicable, service may be by notice published in the Official Gazette.

(c) When service is made by first-class mail, "Express Mail," or overnight courier, the date of mailing or of delivery to the overnight courier will be considered the date of service. Whenever a party is required to take some action within a prescribed period after the service of a paper upon the party by another party and the paper is served by first-class mail, "Express Mail," or overnight courier, 5 days shall be added to the prescribed period.

(d) If a party to an inter partes proceeding is not domiciled in the United States and is not represented by an attorney or other authorized representative located in the United States, the party must designate by written document filed in the Patent and Trademark Office the name and address of a person resident in the United States on whom may be served notices or process in the proceeding. In such cases, official communications of the Patent and Trademark Office will be addressed to the domestic representative unless the proceeding is being prosecuted by an attorney at law or other qualified person duly authorized under § 10.14(c) of this subchapter. The mere designation of a domestic representative does not authorize the person designated to prosecute the proceeding unless qualified under § 10.14(a), or qualified under paragraph (b) or (c) of § 10.14 and authorized under § 2.17(b).

(e) Every paper filed in an inter partes proceeding, and every request for an extension of time to file an opposition, must be signed by the party filing it, or by the party's attorney or other authorized representative, but an unsigned paper will not be refused consideration if a signed copy is submitted to the Patent and Trademark Office within the time limit set in the notification of this defect by the Office.

12. Section 2.120 is amended by revising paragraphs (a), (d), (g), (j)(3), (j)(4), (j)(5), and (j)(8) to read as follows:

§ 2.120 Discovery.

(a) In general. The provisions of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure relating to discovery shall apply in opposition, cancellation, interference and concurrent use registration proceedings except as otherwise provided in this section. The Trademark Trial and Appeal Board will specify the closing date for the taking of discovery. The opening of discovery is governed by the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

* * * * *

(d) Interrogatories; request for production. (1) The total number of written interrogatories which a party may serve upon another party pursuant to Rule 33 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, in a proceeding, shall not exceed seventy-five, counting subparts, except that the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board, in its discretion, may allow additional interrogatories upon motion therefor showing good cause, or upon stipulation of the parties. A motion for leave to serve additional interrogatories must be accompanied by a copy of the interrogatories, if any, which have already been served by the moving party, and by a copy of the interrogatories proposed to be served. If a party upon which interrogatories have been served believes that the number of interrogatories served exceeds the limitation specified in this paragraph, and is not willing to waive this basis for objection, the party shall, within the time for (and instead of) serving answers and objections to the interrogatories, file a motion for a protective order, accompanied by a copy of the interrogatories which together are said to exceed the limitation.

(2) The production of documents and things under the provisions of Rule 34 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure will be made at the place where the documents and things are usually kept, or where the parties agree, or where and in the manner which the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board, upon motion, orders.

* * * * *

(g) Sanctions. (1) If a party fails to comply with an order of the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board relating to discovery, including a protective order, the Board may make any appropriate order, including any of the orders provided in Rule 37(b)(2) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, except that the Board does not have authority to hold any person in contempt or to award any expenses to any party. The Board may impose against a party any of the sanctions provided by this subsection in the event that said party or any attorney, agent, or designated witness of that party fails to comply with a protective order made pursuant to Rule 26(c) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

(2) If a party, or an officer, director, or managing agent of a party, or a person designated under Rule 30(b)(6) or 31(a) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure to testify on behalf of a party, fails to attend the party's or person's discovery deposition, after being served with proper notice, or fails to provide any response to a set of interrogatories or to a set of requests for production of documents and things, and such party or the party's attorney or other authorized representative informs the party seeking discovery that no response will be made thereto, the Board may make any appropriate order, as specified in paragraph (g)(1) of this section.

* * * * *

(j) Use of discovery deposition, answer to interrogatory, or admission.

* * * * *

(3)(i) A discovery deposition, an answer to an interrogatory, or an admission to a request for admission, which may be offered in evidence under the provisions of paragraph (j) of this section may be made of record in the case by filing the deposition or any part thereof with any exhibit to the part that is filed, or a copy of the interrogatory and answer thereto with any exhibit made part of the answer, or a copy of the request for admission and any exhibit thereto and the admission (or a statement that the party from which an admission was requested failed to respond thereto), together with a notice of reliance. The notice of reliance and the material submitted thereunder should be filed during the testimony period of the party which files the notice of reliance. An objection made at a discovery deposition by a party answering a question subject to the objection will be considered at final hearing.

(ii) A party which has obtained documents from another party under Rule 34 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure may not make the documents of record by notice of reliance alone, except to the extent that they are admissible by notice of reliance under the provisions of § 2.122(e).

(4) If only part of a discovery deposition is submitted and made part of the record by a party, an adverse party may introduce under a notice of reliance any other part of the deposition which should in fairness be considered so as to make not misleading what was offered by the submitting party. A notice of reliance filed by an adverse party must be supported by a written statement explaining why the adverse party needs to rely upon each additional part listed in the adverse party's notice, failing which the Board, in its discretion, may refuse to consider the additional parts.

(5) An answer to an interrogatory, or an admission to a request for admission, may be submitted and made part of the record by only the inquiring party except that, if fewer than all of the answers to interrogatories, or fewer than all of the admissions, are offered in evidence by the inquiring party, the responding party may introduce under a notice of reliance any other answers to interrogatories, or any other admissions, which should in fairness be considered so as to make not misleading what was offered by the inquiring party. The notice of reliance filed by the responding party must be supported by a written statement explaining why the responding party needs to rely upon each of the additional discovery responses listed in the responding party's notice, failing which the Board, in its discretion, may refuse to consider the additional responses.

* * * * *

(8) Requests for discovery, responses thereto, and materials or depositions obtained through the discovery process should not be filed with the Board except when submitted with a motion relating to discovery, or in support of or response to a motion for summary judgment, or under a notice of reliance during a party's testimony period. Papers or materials filed in violation of this paragraph may be returned by the Board.

13. Section 2.121 is amended by revising paragraph (a)(1) to read as follows:

§ 2.121 Assignment of times for taking testimony.

(a)(1) The Trademark Trial and Appeal Board will issue a trial order assigning to each party the time for taking testimony. No testimony shall be taken except during the times assigned, unless by stipulation of the parties approved by the Board, or, upon motion, by order of the Board. Testimony periods may be rescheduled by stipulation of the parties approved by the Board, or upon motion granted by the Board, or by order of the Board. The resetting of the closing date for discovery will result in the rescheduling of the testimony periods without action by any party. The resetting of a party's time to respond to an outstanding request for discovery will not result in the automatic rescheduling of the discovery and/or testimony periods; such dates will be rescheduled only upon stipulation of the parties approved by the Board, or upon motion granted by the Board, or by order of the Board.

14. Section 2.122 is amended by revising paragraph (e) to read as follows:

§ 2.122 Matters in evidence.

* * * * *

(e) Printed publications and official records. Printed publications, such as books and periodicals, available to the general public in libraries or of general circulation among members of the public or that segment of the public which is relevant under an issue in a proceeding, and official records, if the publication or official record is competent evidence and relevant to an issue, may be introduced in evidence by filing a notice of reliance on the material being offered. The notice shall specify the printed publication (including information sufficient to identify the source and the date of the publication) or the official record and the pages to be read; indicate generally the relevance of the material being offered; and be accompanied by the official record or a copy thereof whose authenticity is established under the Federal Rules of Evidence, or by the printed publication or a copy of the relevant portion thereof. A copy of an official record of the Patent and Trademark Office need not be certified to be offered in evidence. The notice of reliance shall be filed during the testimony period of the party that files the notice.

15. Section 2.123 is amended by revising paragraphs (c), (e)(2), and (g)(1) to read as follows:

§ 2.123 Trial testimony in inter partes cases.

* * * * *

(c) Notice of examination of witnesses. Before the depositions of witnesses shall be taken by a party, due notice in writing shall be given to the opposing party or parties, as provided in § 2.119(b), of the time when and place where the depositions will be taken, of the cause or matter in which they are to be used, and the name and address of each witness to be examined; if the name of a witness is not known, a general description sufficient to identify the witness or the particular class or group to which the witness belongs, together with a satisfactory explanation, may be given instead. Depositions may be noticed for any reasonable time and place in the United States. A deposition may not be noticed for a place in a foreign country except as provided in paragraph (a)(2) of this section. No party shall take depositions in more than one place at the same time, nor so nearly at the same time that reasonable opportunity for travel from one place of examination to the other is not available.

* * * * *

(e) Examination of witnesses.

* * * * *

(2) The deposition shall be taken in answer to questions, with the questions and answers recorded in their regular order by the officer, or by some other person (who shall be subject to the provisions of Rule 28 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure) in the presence of the officer except when the officer's presence is waived on the record by agreement of the parties. The testimony shall be taken stenographically and transcribed, unless the parties present agree otherwise. In the absence of all opposing parties and their attorneys or other authorized representatives, depositions may be taken in longhand, typewriting, or stenographically. Exhibits which are marked and identified at the deposition will be deemed to have been offered into evidence, without any formal offer thereof, unless the intention of the party marking the exhibits is clearly expressed to the contrary.

* * * * *

(g) Form of deposition. (1) The pages of each deposition must be numbered consecutively, and the name of the witness plainly and conspicuously written at the top of each page. The deposition may be written on legal-size or letter-size paper, with a wide margin on the left-hand side of the page, and with the writing on one side only of the sheet. The questions propounded to each witness must be consecutively numbered unless paper with numbered lines is used, and each question must be followed by its answer.

* * * * *

16. Section 2.125 is amended by revising paragraph (a) to read as follows:

§ 2.125 Filing and service of testimony.

(a) One copy of the transcript of testimony taken in accordance with § 2.123, together with copies of documentary exhibits and duplicates or photographs of physical exhibits, shall be served on each adverse party within thirty days after completion of the taking of that testimony. If the transcript with exhibits is not served on each adverse party within thirty days or within an extension of time for the purpose, any adverse party which was not served may have remedy by way of a motion to the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board to reset such adverse party's testimony and/or briefing periods, as may be appropriate. If the deposing party fails to serve a copy of the transcript with exhibits on an adverse party after having been ordered to do so by the Board, the Board, in its discretion, may strike the deposition, or enter judgment as by default against the deposing party, or take any such other action as may be deemed appropriate.

* * * * *

17. Section 2.127 is amended by adding new paragraphs (e) and (f) to read as follows:

§ 2.127 Motions.

(e)(1) A motion for summary judgment should be filed prior to the commencement of the first testimony period, as originally set or as reset, and the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board, in its discretion, may deny as untimely any motion for summary judgment filed thereafter.

(2) For purposes of summary judgment only, a discovery deposition, or an answer to an interrogatory, or a document or thing produced in response to a request for production, or an admission to a request for admission, will be considered by the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board if any party files, with the party's brief on the summary judgment motion, the deposition or any part thereof with any exhibit to the part that is filed, or a copy of the interrogatory and answer thereto with any exhibit made part of the answer, or a copy of the request for production and the documents or things produced in response thereto, or a copy of the request for admission and any exhibit thereto and the admission (or a statement that the party from which an admission was requested failed to respond thereto).

(f) The Board does not have authority to hold any person in contempt, or to award attorneys' fees or other expenses to any party.

18. Section 2.128 is amended by revising paragraph (b) to read as follows:

§ 2.128 Briefs at final hearing.

* * * * *

(b) Briefs shall be submitted in typewritten or printed form, double spaced, in at least pica or eleven-point type, on letter-size paper. Each brief shall contain an alphabetical index of cases cited therein. Without prior leave of the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board, a main brief on the case shall not exceed fifty-five pages in length in its entirety, including the table of contents, index of cases, description of the record, statement of the issues, recitation of facts, argument, and summary; and a reply brief shall not exceed twenty-five pages in its entirety. Three legible copies, on good quality paper, of each brief shall be filed.

19. Section 2.129 is amended by revising paragraph (a) to read as follows:

§ 2.129 Oral argument; reconsideration.

(a) If a party desires to have an oral argument at final hearing, the party shall request such argument by a separate notice filed not later than ten days after the due date for the filing of the last reply brief in the proceeding. Oral arguments will be heard by at least three Members of the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board at the time specified in the notice of hearing. If any party appears at the specified time, that party will be heard. If the Board is prevented from hearing the case at the specified time, a new hearing date will be set. Unless otherwise permitted, oral arguments in an inter partes case will be limited to thirty minutes for each party. A party in the position of plaintiff may reserve part of the time allowed for oral argument to present a rebuttal argument.

* * * * *

20. Section 2.134 is amended by revising paragraph (a) to read as follows:

§ 2.134 Surrender or voluntary cancellation of registration.

(a) After the commencement of a cancellation proceeding, if the respondent applies for cancellation of the involved registration under section 7(d) of the Act of 1946 without the written consent of every adverse party to the proceeding, judgment shall be entered against the respondent. The written consent of an adverse party may be signed by the adverse party or by the adverse party's attorney or other authorized representative.

* * * * *

21. Section 2.135 is revised to read as follows:

§ 2.135 Abandonment of application or mark.

After the commencement of an opposition, concurrent use, or interference proceeding, if the applicant files a written abandonment of the application or of the mark without the written consent of every adverse party to the proceeding, judgment shall be entered against the applicant. The written consent of an adverse party may be signed by the adverse party or by the adverse party's attorney or other authorized representative.

22. Section 2.142 is amended by adding (f)(6); and revising paragraphs (e) and (e)(1), to read as follows:

§ 2.142 Time and manner of ex parte appeals.

* * * * *

(b)(1) The brief of appellant shall be filed within sixty days from the date of appeal. If the brief is not filed within the time allowed, the appeal may be dismissed. The examiner shall, within sixty days after the brief of appellant is sent to the examiner, file with the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board a written brief answering the brief of appellant and shall mail a copy of the brief to the appellant. The appellant may file a reply brief within twenty days from the date of mailing of the brief of the examiner.

(2) Briefs shall be submitted in typewritten or printed form, double spaced, in at least pica or eleven-point type, on letter-size paper. Without prior leave of the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board, a brief shall not exceed twenty-five pages in length in its entirety.

* * * * *

(e)(1) If the appellant desires an oral hearing, a request therefor should be made by a separate notice filed not later than ten days after the due date for a reply brief. Oral argument will be heard by at least three Members of the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board at the time specified in the notice of hearing, which may be reset if the Board is prevented from hearing the argument at the specified time or, so far as is convenient and proper, to meet the wish of the appellant or his attorney or other authorized representative.

* * * * *

(f) * * *

(6) If, during an appeal from a refusal of registration, it appears to the examiner that an issue not involved in the appeal may render the mark of the appellant unregistrable, the examiner may, by written request, ask the Board to suspend the appeal and to remand the application to the examiner for further examination. If the request is granted, the examiner and appellant shall proceed as provided by §§ 2.61, 2.62, 2.63 and 2.64. After the additional ground for refusal of registration has been withdrawn or made final, the examiner shall return the application to the Board, which shall resume proceedings in the appeal and take further appropriate action with respect thereto.

* * * * *

23. Section 2.145 is amended by adding new paragraph (c)(4) to read as follows:

§ 2.145 Appeal to court and civil action.

* * * * *

(c) * * *

(4) A party to a proceeding before the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board which commences a civil action, pursuant to section 21(b) of the Act, seeking review of a decision of the Board should file written notice thereof in the Patent and Trademark Office, addressed to the Board, within one month after the expiration of the time for appeal or civil action, in order to avoid premature termination of the Board proceeding.

* * * * *

24. Section 2.186 is revised to read as follows:

§ 2.186 Action may be taken by assignee of record.

Any action with respect to an assigned application or registration which may or must be taken by an applicant or registrant may be taken by the assignee provided that the assignment has been recorded or that proof of the assignment has been submitted.

Deposit of Biological Materials for Patent Purposes

Agency: Patent and Trademark Office, Commerce
Action: Final Rule
Summary: The Patent and Trademark Office (Office) is amending its rules of practice in patent cases to define procedures to govern the deposit of biological materials for patent purposes. Where an invention is or relies on a biological material which cannot be described in writing alone, and access to the biological material is necessary to satisfy the statutory requirements for patentability under 35 U.S.C. 112, these rules prescribe the procedures and conditions for making a deposit that will satisfy these requirements. These rules also prescribe examining procedures that will be used to address deposit issues, and the procedures pertaining to access to a deposit once a patent is granted.
Effective Date: January 1, 1990.
For Further Information Contact: Charles E. Van Horn or Harris A. Pitlick by telephone at [703] 557-4035 or by mail marked to his attention and addressed to Box 8, Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Washington, D.C. 20231.
Supplementary Information:

Every patent must contain a written description of the invention sufficient to enable a person skilled in the art to which the invention pertains to make and use the invention. Where the invention involves a biological material and words alone cannot sufficiently describe how to make and use the invention in a reproducible or repeatable manner, access to the biological material is necessary for the satisfaction of the statutory requirements for patentability under 35 U.S.C. 112. The rules set forth examining procedures and conditions of deposit which must be satisfied in the event a deposit is required to provide the necessary access. The rules do not address the substantive issue of whether a deposit is required under any particular set of facts.

These rules will be effective for all applications filed on or after January 1, 1990, and for all reexamination proceedings in which the request for reexamination was filed on or after January 1, 1990, except that deposits made prior to the effective date which are acceptable under current practice will be acceptable in such applications and proceedings. Since most of the provisions reflect existing policy and practice, little change to existing practice or burden on applicants for patent and patent owners relying on the deposit of biological material is anticipated. Applicants and patent owners are encouraged to comply with these rules prior to the effective date.

The final rules on the deposit of biological materials for patent purposes have evolved over several years of actual experience in administering the guidelines set forth in Section 608.01(p) of the Manual of Patent Examining Procedure, including several administrative and judicial decisions, and interaction with interested public, bar and industry groups. A draft policy statement on the deposit of biological materials was circulated among interested bar and industry groups and published in the BNA-Patent, Trademark and Copyright Journal on May 22, 1986. An advance notice of proposed rulemaking setting forth rules being considered for deposits of biological material was published in the Federal Register, 52 FR 34080 (September 9, 1987), and in the Official Gazette, 1082 O.G. 47 (September 29, 1987). Finally, a notice of proposed rulemaking relating to the deposit of biologi-

In this notice of final rulemaking, a description of the changes in the text of the proposed rules is provided along with an explanation of the reasons supporting the changes. In addition, comments received in response to the notice of proposed rulemaking are analyzed. Finally, an explanation of the content of the final rules is provided, together with a compilation of relevant comments and responses that have been made during the rulemaking process. This explanation and compilation of previous comments and responses will serve as a set of guidelines that will be reproduced in the Manual of Patent Examining Procedure in due course.

Changes in Text of Proposed Rules

Several changes have been made in the text of the final rules from the text of the proposed rules which were published for comment in the notice of proposed rulemaking. Those changes are discussed below.

Section 1.200 as proposed has been renumbered as § 1.801 as adopted and the term "patent purposes" as proposed has been replaced with the term "purposes of patents for inventions under 35 U.S.C. 101" as adopted to clarify that the regulations pertaining to the deposit of biological material do not apply for purposes other than patents for inventions. Thus, these regulations are not applicable to applications for plant patents under 35 U.S.C. 161-164.

Section 1.201 as proposed has been renumbered as § 1.802 as adopted and the term "or Opportunity" in the heading thereof has been inserted after "Need" to reflect the permissive nature of a deposit when not necessary to satisfy 35 U.S.C. 112.

Paragraph (a) thereof as proposed provided that where a claimed invention is or relies on a biological material, the disclosure may include a deposit of the biological material deposited in a depository and under conditions complying with these regulations, provided a precondition was satisfied. The precondition was that the biological material not be known and readily available to the public and not be describable in writing alone. Paragraph (a) as adopted eliminates this precondition, does not require that the biological material be, or be used for, a claimed invention, does not require that the deposit be made in a depository and under conditions complying with these regulations, and more accurately states that the disclosure may include reference to a deposit, since the deposit is not physically part of the disclosure. Paragraph (a) as adopted merely provides that where an invention is, or relies on, a biological material, the disclosure may include reference to a deposit of such biological material.

Paragraph (b) of § 1.802 prescribes that biological material need not be deposited unless access to the material is necessary to satisfy 35 U.S.C. 112. If a deposit is necessary, it shall be acceptable if made in accordance with these regulations. Proposed paragraph (b) made no reference to 35 U.S.C. 112. Situations where a biological material is known and readily available to the public or can be made or isolated without undue experimentation are now listed as some, but not an exhaustive set, of the circumstances where deposit need not be made. The term "from known and readily available material" has been dropped from the end of the term "can be made or isolated without undue experimentation" as redundant. Paragraph (b) as adopted also prescribes that once deposited in a depository complying with these regulations, a biological material will be considered to be readily available even though some requirement of law or regulation permits access only under conditions imposed for safety, public health or similar reasons. Proposed paragraph (b) did not include the condition of deposit in a depository complying with these regulations.

Proposed paragraph (c) thereof was limited to reference to a specific organism or other biological material in a specification disclosure as not creating a presumption that the material was necessary to satisfy 35 U.S.C. 112 or that a deposit thereof is required. Paragraph (c) as adopted eliminates the term "specific organism or other" as redundant and also includes the act of deposit by an applicant or patent owner as not creating a presumption that the deposit is or was required.

Section 1.202 as proposed has been renumbered as § 1.803 as adopted.

Paragraph (a) thereof as proposed prescribed that a deposit shall be made in any International Depositary Authority (IDA) or any other depository recognized as suitable by the Office. Paragraph (a) as adopted now specifies that such deposits shall be recognized for the purpose of these regulations so as not to preclude deposits made for other reasons such as a gratuitous disclosure. Paragraph (a)(2) as adopted eliminates the requirement in the proposed rule that impartial consultants be from the biotechnology industry or governmental agencies. Paragraph (a)(2) as adopted also contains new sub-subparagraph (vii) as a requirement which a suitable depository must meet, viz., that it promptly notify depositors of its inability to furnish samples, and the reasons why. This requirement appeared, in essence, in proposed § 1.204(a).

Proposed paragraph (b) thereof has not been adopted. Replacement of deposits is governed solely by § 1.805, infra.

Proposed paragraph (c) thereof has been adopted as paragraph (b). In subparagraph (2) thereof, "(b)" has been changed to "(a)(2)" to correct an inadvertent error in the proposed rule.

Proposed paragraph (d) thereof has been adopted as paragraph (c) except that the reference to paragraph (a) has been changed to paragraph (a)(2) to more clearly delineate which category of depository is intended to be covered by this paragraph of § 1.803 and all references to other paragraphs whose designations have been changed by adoption of these rules have been changed accordingly.

Proposed paragraph (e) thereof has been adopted as paragraph (d).

Section 1.203 as proposed has been renumbered as § 1.804 as adopted.

Paragraph (a) thereof prescribed that an original deposit of a biological material may be made before filing an application for patent or, pursuant to a requirement that will be made by the examiner no later than the date the Notice of Allowance and Issue Fee Due is mailed, during pendency of the application for patent. Paragraph (a) as adopted adds a precondition to making an original deposit that the biological material be specifically identified in the application as filed. Since proposed paragraph (a) did not address original deposits made during the pendency of an application that were not made pursuant to a requirement of an examiner, the rule as adopted states that original deposits may be made during pendency of an application for patent, subject to § 1.809, infra, which prescribes, inter alia, when during the pendency of an application for patent a deposit shall be made when made pursuant to a requirement by the examiner.

Paragraph (b) thereof as proposed required a statement that, for an original deposit made after the effective filing date of an application for patent, the biological material deposited was the same biological material described in the application as filed. Paragraph (b) as adopted substitutes the word "a" for the word "the" since more than one biological material may be referred to in the application as filed, drops the word "same" and requires the statement that the biological material deposited is a biological material specifically identified in the application as filed.

Section 1.204 as proposed has been renumbered as § 1.805 as adopted and a reference to supplemental deposits has been added to the heading thereof. Paragraphs (a) and (b) of the section as proposed have been substantially rewritten as paragraphs (a), (b) and (c). New elements have been added and some eliminated, although some elements of the proposed rule on replacement deposits have been adopted, either with similar language or different language.

Elements of the proposed rule on replacement deposits which have not been adopted include a requirement that replacement deposits be made or be made within a specific time limit. Ramifications in Office proceedings from not making a replacement deposit, or in the case of a patent, not diligently making a replacement deposit, are stated.

A requirement in the proposed section that depositories promptly notify depositors of an inability to furnish samples has been adopted as § 1.803(a)(2)(vii), supra.

Paragraph (a) of § 1.805 requires a depositor, after receiving notice during the pendency of an application for patent, application for reissue patent or reexamination proceeding, that the depository possessing a deposit either cannot furnish samples thereof or can furnish samples thereof but the deposit has become contaminated or has lost its capability to function as dscribed in the specification, to notify the Office in writing, in each application for patent or patent affected. In such a case, or where the Office otherwise learns, during the pendency of an application for patent, application for reissue patent or reexamination proceeding, that the depository possessing a deposit either cannot furnish samples thereof or can furnish samples thereof but the deposit has become contaminated or has lost its capability to function as described in the specification, the need for making a replacement or supplemental deposit will be governed by the same considerations governing the need for making an original deposit under the provisions set forth in § 1.802(b). A replacement or supplemental deposit made during the pendency of an application for patent shall not be accepted unless it meets the requirements for making: an original deposit under these regulations, including the requirement set forth under § 1.804(b). A replacement or supplemental deposit made in connection with a patent, whether or not made during the pendency of an application for reissue patent or a reexamination proceeding or both, shall not be recognized by the Office unless a certificate of correction under § 1.323 is requested by the patent owner which meets the terms of paragraphs (b) and (c) of this section. The proposed rules did not provide for certificates of correction relating to replacement or supplemental deposits.

Paragraph (b) of § 1.805 prescribes that a request for certificate of correction under this section shall not be granted unless the certificate identifies the accession number for the replacement or supplemental deposit; the date of the deposit; and the name and address of the depository.

Paragraph (c) of § 1.805 prescribes that a certificate of correction under this section shall not be granted unless the request therefor is made promptly after the replacement or supplemental deposit has been made and includes a verified statement of the reason for making the replacement or supplemental deposit; a verified statement from a person in a position to corroborate the fact, and shall state, that the replacement or supplemental deposit is of a biological material which is identical to that originally deposited; a verified showing that the patent owner acted diligently - in the case of a replacement deposit, in making the deposit after receiving notice that samples could no longer be furnished from an earlier deposit, or in the case of a supplemental deposit, in making the deposit after receiving notice that the earlier deposit had become contaminated or had lost its capability to function as described in the specification; a verified statement that the term of the replacement or supplemental deposit expires no earlier than the term of the deposit being replaced or supplemented; and otherwise establishes compliance with these regulations, except that if the person making one or more of the required statements or showing is an attorney or agent registered to practice before the Office, that statement or showing need not be verified.

Paragraph (d) of § 1.805 prescribes that a depositor's failure to replace a deposit, or in the case of a patent, to diligently replace a deposit and promptly thereafter request a certificate of correction which meets the terms of paragraphs (b) and (c) of this section, after being notified that the depository possessing the deposit cannot furnish samples thereof, shall cause the application or patent involved to be treated in any Office proceeding as if no deposit were made.

Paragraph (e) as adopted is identical to proposed paragraph (d) except that the word "the" before "patent" has been replaced with "a" because the term "the patent" had no antecedent basis, and the term "according to these regulations" has been inserted after the word "replaced" to make it clear that the rebuttable presumption according to this paragraph applies only where the replacement deposit has been made according to these regulations.

Paragraph (f) as adopted is substantially similar to proposed paragraph (e) with respect to an applicant's ability to make a replacement for any reason during the pendency of an application for patent. Paragraph (f) extends such applicant's ability to supplemental deposits as well. The first two sentences of proposed paragraph (e) prescribing when a replacement deposit shall be made while an application is still pending and that an applicant notify the Office when a replacement deposit is necessary have been adopted in § 1.805(a), supra.

Paragraph (g) as adopted is identical to proposed paragraph (f) except that supplemental deposits are also included and the reference to another section therein has been changed to reflect its renumbering.

Paragraph (h) as adopted is substantially similar to proposed paragraph (g) except for two changes. One is that the word "the" before "biological material" has been changed to "a" because the term "the biological material" had no antecedent basis. The other change is replacement of the term "viable deposit is in the depository" with the term "depository can furnish samples thereof". The term "in the depository" was not clear. The word "viable" before "deposit" would have excluded biological materials not capable of reproduction either directly or indirectly. For biological materials which are so capable of reproduction, samples of viable deposits thereof which become non-viable cannot be furnished by the depository.

Paragraph (i) as adopted modifies paragraph (h) as proposed. Whereas the proposed rule proscribed a patentee from replacing a viable deposit where the depository can furnish samples, the rule as adopted states that the Office will not recognize in any Office proceeding a replacement deposit of a biological material made by a patent owner where the depository could furnish samples of the deposit being replaced.

Section 1.205 as proposed has been renumbered as § 1.806 as adopted. The proposed rule had set the term of deposit as, inter alia, at least thirty years after the date of a viable deposit. The rule as adopted sets the thirty-year term to begin after a deposit, before or during pendency of an application for patent, is made. The term of a deposit made by a patent owner is not prescribed. However, § 1.805(a), supra, prescribes that a replacement or supplemental deposit made in connection with a patent will not be recognized in any Office proceeding unless a certificate of correction under § 1.323 is requested by the patent owner which meets the terms of paragraphs (b) and (c) of § 1.805, one of which terms is a verified statement by the patent owner that the term of the new deposit expires no earlier than the term of the deposit being replaced or supplemented. An additional change in the rule as adopted is the replacement of the term "deposited biological material" with the word "deposit" since the former term had no antecedent basis.

Section 1.206 as proposed has been renumbered as § 1.807 as adopted. The rule as adopted is identical to the rule as proposed except for the reference to a rule which has been renumbered.

Section 1.207 as proposed has been renumbered as § 1.808 as adopted.

In paragraph (a) thereof, first word, "The" as proposed has been replaced with "A" because "The" had no antecedent basis.

In view of the non-adoption of proposed § 1.207(c), infra, paragraph (a)(2) as adopted refers to only paragraph (b), not paragraphs (b) and (c).

Paragraph (b)(1) as proposed permitted a depositor to require, inter alia, that a depository furnish samples only if a request for a sample is in writing and signed.

Paragraph (b) as adopted permits a depositor to require a request to be in writing or other tangible form. The signing requirement, however, has not been adopted.

Paragraph (b)(3) as proposed permitted a depositor to require, inter alia, that a depository furnish the depositor with a copy of the request. This requirement has not been adopted.

Paragraph (c) as proposed has not been adopted.

Paragraph (d) as proposed, with one change, has been adopted as paragraph (c). The change is the insertion of the term "made to the Office" after the term "Upon request" to make it clear that certification imposes no burden on a depository.

Section 1.208 as proposed has been renumbered as § 1.809 as adopted.

The term "required" when referring to "deposit" in proposed paragraphs (a), (b) and (c) thereof has been changed to "needed" as adopted for purposes of consistency with § 1.802. The term "in case one has not been made, or" as proposed in paragraph (a) has been replaced with "and if needed," as adopted for purposes of clarification. The statement as proposed that a deposit accepted in any acceptable depository under § 1.202(a) shall be accepted for patent purposes if made under conditions complying with § 1.207(a) has not been adopted. The statement is redundant in view of the provision in § 1.802(b) as adopted that a deposit necessary for the satisfaction of 35 U.S.C. 112 shall be acceptable if made in accordance with these regulations. Since the question of deposits may come up in reissue applications and reexamination proceedings as well as in applications for patents, paragraph (a) as adopted covers examination of all such applications and proceedings. Paragraph (a) as adopted also refers to supplemental deposits since issues of the need for a supplemental deposit may arise where a deposit has lost its capability to function as described in the specification. Paragraph (a) as proposed prescribed that affected claims would be rejected in an Office action. Paragraph (a) as adopted drops "in an Office action" and instead prescribes that the claims would be rejected "where appropriate."

Paragraph (b)(1) as proposed was limited to applicants. Paragraph (b)(1) as adopted covers applicants for patents and patent owners involved in specified Office proceedings. The provision for applicants for patents in paragraph (b)(1) as adopted is identical to the provision for applicants in paragraph (b)(1) as proposed except for the additional adoption of a reference to supplemental deposits. Paragraph (b)(1) as adopted additionally provides for patent owners responding to a rejection under paragraph (a) of this section by requesting a certificate of correction of the patent which meets the terms of paragraphs (b) and (c) of § 1.805.

Paragraph (b)(2) as proposed has not been adopted. Subparagraph (3) has therefore been renumbered as (2) and the reference therein to paragraph (b)(2) has been eliminated. Two additions have been made. One, since the question of deposit may come up in connection with a reissue application or reexamination proceeding, the term "or patent" has been inserted after "application" in the first sentence. Two, since paragraph (a) provides for a rejection under 35 U.S.C. 112 when a deposit actually made cannot be accepted, it is considered an appropriate response that a deposit actually made should be accepted. Thus, the term "and/or why a deposit actually made should be accepted" has been inserted at the end of the first sentence of paragraph (b)(2) as adopted.

Paragraph (c) as proposed has been adopted except that the term "for patent" has been inserted after "application" in the first sentence to make it clear that this paragraph does not apply to other applications, such as applications for reissues. Additionally, the word "the" before the proposed term "required deposit" has been changed to "a" because the term "the required deposit" had no antecedent basis. Finally, the term "37 CFR" preceding "1.136" in the proposed rule has been replaced with "§" as adopted to be consistent with standard nomenclature.

Paragraph (d)(3) as proposed required a taxonomic description of the deposit. Paragraph (d)(3) as adopted requires a description of the deposited biological material sufficient to specifically identify it and to permit examination. Paragraphs (d)(1), (d)(2), (d)(3) and (d)(4) have otherwise been adopted except for the addition of prefatory articles "The" or "A".

Response to and Analysis of Comments

Written comments from sixteen (16) sources were received in response to the notice of proposed rulemaking. Some suggestions made in comments have been adopted as presented or in modified form and others have not been adopted. A detailed analysis of the comments follows.

Comment: The proposed rule numbers, except § 1.200, are the same as those of the old interference rules, and it appears to be Office practice to normally avoid using rule numbers which end in "00," especially for a rule, viz., § 1.200, which is the first of a group of rules. The rules, if adopted, should have different numbers.

Response: The suggestion has been adopted. Proposed §§ 1.200 through 1.208 have been renumbered as §§ 1.801 through 1.809 as adopted, respectively.

Comment: Two comments ask whether the rules will apply retroactively. One comment suggests that they should and further, that the benefits provided for depositors in proposed §§ 1.207(b) and (c) take effect immediately so that those patent applicants who would benefit from them will be encouraged not to delay in filing or obtaining a patent until a final rule takes effect.

Response: To the extent the rules codify existing Office practice, they are already effective. Otherwise, the rules will be effective in applications for patent or for reissue of patent filed on or after January 1, 1990, and in reexamination proceedings in which the request for reexamination was filed on or after January 1, 1990, except that deposits made prior to the effective date which are acceptable under current practice will be acceptable in such applications and proceedings. Applicants and patent owners are encouraged to comply now with those requirements of the rules not required by existing Office practice.

Comment: A sentence should be added at the end of proposed § 1.200 to clarify that the rule does not preclude the possibility of depositing other biological materials for patent purposes, such as plants per se, even though not within the scope of the term "biological material" as defined by the rule. Adding such a sentence would be consistent with previous concerns expressed to the Office over the possible requirement for deposits with respect to plant patents. With the added sentence, the rule would not address any kind of requirement for deposit in plant patents.

Response: In a response to a comment in the notice of proposed rulemaking, it was stated that the Office did not intend to propose rules on deposits under the Plant Patent Act (35 U.S.C. 161-164) at this time, nor will the Office take the position that a deposit is required under the present provisions of 35 U.S.C. 162. The text of the rule adopted in § 1.801 is the same as proposed in § 1.200 except that the rule now explicitly states that the regulations are for purposes of patents for inventions under 35 U.S.C. 101. Thus, these regulations do not and are not intended to address the question of deposits in plant patent applications.

Comment: One comment suggests that the language in § 1.200 should be expanded to make it clear that other biological materials, such as plants per se, are not precluded from being deposited. Another comment assumes that the Office intends to limit the scope of "biological material" as defined by this rule. The rules and commentary should indicate that the scope and effect of the rules are limited to biological materials as defined in the rules. This rule is acceptable provided it simply defines what constitutes biological material.

Response: None of the suggestions have been adopted. In a response to a comment in the notice of proposed rulemaking, it was stated that biological material is defined in the proposed rule in terms of a non-exhaustive list of what it includes and that no materials were explicitly excluded. The response also stated that the Office does not contemplate that there would be many situations where a material that is not capable of self-replication either directly or indirectly would be acceptable as a deposit under these regulations but that an applicant was not precluded in any given case from attempting to show why such a material should be acceptable. Plants per se are an example of such materials.

Comment: The proposed rules do not, but should, address a problem associated with marine sponges and other marine macroorganisms. These materials and their natural location can be adequately described so that one skilled in the art could obtain them using the necessary equipment. But their taxonomy is in a developmental stage and scientific names are subject to revision. Deposit and maintenance of these materials in viable form is not practical. They can and have been deposited in non-viable form, preserved or fixated in a suitable non-destructive medium, where their shelf life is expected to be at least 30 years.

Response: See the response to the previous comment. As stated in a response to a comment in the advance notice of proposed rulemaking, the PTO Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences held that a description of the precise geographic location of marine tunicates used in a claimed invention was adequate to satisfy the enablement requirement of 35 U.S.C. 112. Ex Parte Rinehart, 10 USPQ2d 1719 (PTO Bd. Pat. App. & Int. 1985). It was also stated in that response that the term "readily" as used in the term "known and readily available" appearing in the proposed rules is considered appropriate to define that degree of availability which would be reasonable under the circumstances. Since the comment states that the subject materials and their natural location can be adequately described so that one skilled in the art could obtain them using the necessary equipment, the disclosure would appear to be sufficient to meet the enablement requirements of 35 U.S.C. 112 without a deposit so long as their degree of availability is reasonable under the circumstances.

Comment: In a response to a comment in the notice of proposed rulemaking which was in response to a solicitation for comments in the advance notice of proposed rulemaking on the setting of an appropriate minimum number of seeds to ensure availability of the seed through the enforceable life of the patent, it was stated that the Office does not intend to propose rules quantifying a minimum number of seeds but that the Office will consider 2500 to be a minimum number in the normal case and will provide an applicant an opportunity to provide justification why a lesser number would be suitable under the circumstances of a particular case. One comment suggests that 2500 may present problems where the normal yield of a plant is only a few seeds. A more reasonable minimum is 1250. Another comment suggests that there be no minimum number but an obligation on the part of the depositor to replace a seed each time one is requested.

Response: Since the Office has stated that an applicant will be provided an opportunity to show why a lesser amount than 2500 seeds would be appropriate in a particular case, the policy of requiring minimum number of 2500 is adhered to. An obligation on the part of the depositor to replace a seed each time one is requested is simply impractical.

Comment: The title of proposed § 1.201 should be changed from "Need to make a deposit" to "Opportunity to make a deposit" since the provision states that "the disclosure may include a deposit of a biological material . . . ."

Response: The suggestion has been adopted in part. Since § 1.802 applies to situations both when a deposit may be made (optional) and when a deposit is necessary, the heading of the rule states both need and opportunity in the alternative.

Comment: Proposed § 1.201(a) should state that the disclosure may include reference to a deposit, rather than that the disclosure may include a deposit.

Response: The suggestion has been adopted in § 1.802(a).

Comment: Proposed § 1.201(a) does not clearly permit deposits where conditions enumerated therein do not apply. The proposed rule should be revised by eliminating the requirement that the biological material not be known and readily available to the public before a deposit may be made. The proposed revision would make clear that an applicant has a universal and unconditional right to make a deposit of a biological material whenever the biological material cannot be described in writing alone, regardless of whether the material is known and readily available. The rule as proposed is not consistent with the permissive use of deposits where they might not be mandated. The proposed revision would dispel any suggestion or implication that the legal standard under which deposits are mandated is that the biological material be neither known nor readily available. Obviously, such materials even if unknown and not readily available might be enabled solely through a written description, rendering deposit unnecessary.

Response: The suggestion has been adopted in § 1.802(a). In addition, the rule as adopted permits deposits even where the biological material can be described in writing alone and even where the claimed invention is not, or does not rely on, the biological material. Section 1.802(a) as adopted permits reference in the disclosure to a deposit of a biological material, the only precondition being that an invention is or relies on that material. The requirement in the proposed rule that the biological material not be known and readily available to the public and not be describable in writing alone, and that the material be, or be used for, the claimed invention, has not been adopted.

Comment: Two comments suggest that § 1.201(a) refer to 35 U.S.C. 112. One comment suggests that § 1.201(a) should make some reference to 35 U.S.C. 112 for completeness. Another comment suggests that proposed § 1.201(a) contains no standard and should thus make reference to 35 U.S.C. 112, for example, by inserting words to the effect that the biological material cannot be described in writing alone to satisfy the requirements of 35 U.S.C. 112.

Response: The suggestions have not been adopted. But see the response to the next comment.

Comment: Proposed § 1.201(b) should be revised by stating that biological material need not be deposited unless necessary for the satisfaction of the statutory requirements of 35 U.S.C. 112. Thus, the rule would state that the ultimate reason for a requirement for a deposit would be to satisfy 35 U.S.C. 112. Further, the rule should state one circumstance, among others, where a biological material need not be deposited, viz., where it is known and readily available to the public or can be made or isolated without undue experimentation. The last sentence of proposed § 1.201(b) should state a precondition that a deposit of the biological material be made in a depository complying with these regulations.

Response: The suggestions have been adopted in § 1.802(b).

Comment: Proposed § 1.201(c) should be revised by stating that the actual deposit of a biological material referred to in a specification disclosure also does not create a presumption that the material is necessary to satisfy 35 U.S.C. 112 or that the deposit is or was required. The proposed revision would recognize that the act of deposit does not and should not constitute an admission by the applicant that the deposit was made because it was necessary to satisfy 35 U.S.C. 112. For example, deposit may be necessary in the United States prior to the time a patent application is filed in order for an applicant to be entitled to assert a priority right under patent laws of a foreign country based on a United States application which makes reference to such deposit. Additionally, applicants ought to be encouraged to make deposits in questionable cases without such act being construed as an admission of any sort.

Response: The suggestion has been adopted in § 1.802(c).

Comment: The term "or other biological material" in proposed § 1.201(c) should be changed to "or any other biological material" to make sure that all biological materials that would normally be considered for deposits are included.

Response: The comment is not understood. Nevertheless, it is moot. The term "specific organism or other biological material" in proposed § 1.201(c) has been changed to "biological material" in § 1.802(c) as adopted.

Comment: Two comments suggest that proposed § 1.202(a)(2) unnecessarily limits who may be consulted in determining the suitability of a depository to be recognized by the Office to those in the biotechnology industry or Government agencies. Views from academia may be wanted. One of the comments suggests, therefore, that the term "from the biotechnology industry or governmental agencies" be deleted from § 1.202(a)(2).

Response: The suggestions have been adopted in § 1.803(a)(2).

Comment: Proposed § 1.202(a) should be revised to state that a deposit shall be recognized for the purposes of these regulations if made in a depository according to subparagraph (1) or (2) thereof. The proposed revision would allow for deposits other than in Office-recognized depositories, but give deposits in Office-recognized depositories the "safe harbor" advantages of these regulations.

Response: The suggestion has been adopted in § 1.803(a). Simply put, the rules do not prohibit deposits made under any conceivable conditions. The Office will treat a deposit not made according to these regulations, however, as if no deposit had been made.

Comment: The provision set forth in proposed § 1.202(c)(3), i.e., that a depository seeking status under paragraph (a)(2) indicate that it intends to be available, for the purposes of deposit, to any depositor under these same conditions, should also be listed in § 1.202(a)(2), which enumerates the qualifications for a depository seeking recognition as suitable by the Office.

Response: The suggestion is not being adopted. The requirement in proposed § 1.202(a)(2)(v), and § 1.803(a)(2)(v) as adopted, that the depository be impartial and objective, is inclusive of a requirement that it be available, for purposes of deposit, to any depositor under these same conditions.

Comment: One comment suggests that the proposed rules do not adequately define the term "depositor". It could be the inventor, the assignee, one to whom the inventor has an obligation to assign, or the individual who signs the deposit form. In the case of joint inventors with different institutional ties, who is the depositor ? Assuming that where the inventor is a university professor, the depositor is the university, deposit in that university's depository would be precluded by proposed § 1.202(a)(2)(ii) and possibly § 1.202(a)(2)(v). An exception should be made for non-profit organizations. They should be allowed to "self-deposit" since it is highly improbable that they would refuse to provide samples to third parties. The availability of a strain from a university was found to satisfy 35 U.S.C. 112 in Merck and Co., Inc. v. Chase Chemical Co., 273 F.Supp. 68, 77, 92, 155 USPQ 139, 146, 159 (D.N.J. 1967). Another comment suggests that it is not clear, where the depositor is a separate, independent division of a particular entity and the depository is another separate, independent division of the same entity, whether this arrangement meets the terms of proposed § 1.202(a)(2)(ii).

Response: None of the suggestions have been adopted. In § 1.803(a)(2)(ii) as adopted, a depository recognized to be suitable by the Office and not otherwise an IDA must exist independent of the control of the depositor. In a response to a comment in the notice of proposed rulemaking, it was stated that the term "depositor" is intended to include the party on whose behalf the deposit is made. It was further stated in that response that the rationale of the Office in requiring that a depository, if not an IDA, be independent of the depositor was adequately discussed in the advance notice of proposed rulemaking. The advance notice stated:

The concept of an independent depository or an IDA as an acceptable depository is based on the need and desire to ensure the safe and reliable storage of a deposited biological material under circumstances that are free of the opportunity for intentional or negligent handling of the deposited material. The use of an independent depository or an internationally recognized depository will tend to preserve the integrity of the deposit process against those that may accidentally alter the deposited material, may wish to tamper with the deposited material or may wish to resume control of its availability when the patent is no longer enforceable, and to preserve the interest of the public in the free access to the biological material for any purpose once the term of the patent expires. Further, while the PTO is constrained to approve independent depositories other than an IDA, the PTO has neither the resources nor capability to assess the individual capability of any party that wishes to act as its own depository. The rules under consideration are intended to minimize depositories that will be found acceptable.

The above discussion applies to non-profit organizations as well as for-profit organizations. Moreover, it is clear from the discussion above that the scope of the term "depositor" is limited only by the requirement that the depositor have no control over the depository. Such a relationship is not necessarily inconsistent with one where there is some legal relationship between depositor and depository. The Merck case cited above does not stand for the proposition that a university is necessarily an acceptable depository because it makes available samples of a biological material. In Merck, the availability of the biological material from the university was evidence that the biological material was known and readily available. While a deposit by an applicant in a depository under the applicant's control will not be recognized by the Office as a deposit under these regulations, an applicant is not precluded from showing that the deposited material, by virtue of conditions of public knowledge of unrestricted availability of samples of the deposit, is known and readily available to the public. However, depositors should be aware that relying on such a showing rather than making a deposit according to these regulations involves a risk that the biological material might in the future not be readily available. The university relied on in the Merck case, for example, eventually ceased its practice of making biological materials readily available.

Comment: Proposed § 1.202(b) is intended to apply in the event that a depository ceases to enjoy the status of a recognized depository. The manner of making a substitute deposit in such a situation would not seem to be fully explained by a reference to proposed § 1.204. For example, if a depository were to cease operation, it might not be able to, in the words of proposed § 1.204(a), "promptly after having noted its inability to furnish samples, notify the depositor of such inability". Second, the rule as proposed is difficult to follow. For example, it indicates that a substitute deposit "must be viable if the biological material is of a kind capable of self-replication". The implication that certain deposits might be non-viable is at best confusing in the absence of a definition for viability.

Response: Proposed § 1.202(b) has not been adopted. Section 1.805, the rule as adopted on replacement deposits, puts the burden exclusively on the applicant or patent owner, whatever the case may be, to both make a replacement deposit and make the necessary showing that such a deposit complies with these regulations. Viability is dealt with exclusively by § 1.807 as adopted.

Comment: Three comments suggest that it be a requirement of the rules that the biological material have been in existence at the time of filing the patent application. One comment suggests that a sentence be added to proposed § 1.208(a) to require that the application as filed state that the biological material is in existence. The other comments suggest that proposed § 1.203 require an averment that the deposited biological material was in existence at the time the application was filed.

Response: None of the suggestions have been adopted. Patent law does not require an actual reduction to practice as a condition precedent to filing a patent application. While few, if any, situations can be imagined where the description requirement of 35 U.S.C. 112 can be satisfied where the biological material was not in existence at the time of filing, the rules do not preclude such a situation. But see the response to the next comment.

Comment: Proposed § 1.203(a) should require that a biological material may be deposited only if an adequate antecedent basis exists in the specification as filed, i.e., the biological material to be deposited must be specifically identified therein.

Response: The suggestion has been adopted in § 1.804(a). It must be clear from the application as filed that the invention claimed and described in the specification "was fully capable of being reduced to practice (i.e., no technological problems, the resolution of which would require more than ordinary skill and reasonable time, remained in order to obtain an operative, useful process)." Feldman v. Aunstrup 517 F.2d 1351, 1355, 186 USpQ 108, 113 (CCPA 1975), cert. denied, 424 U.S. 912 (1976). Accord, In re Lundak, 773 F.2d 1216, 1221, 227 USPQ 90, 94 (Fed. Cir. 1985).

Comment: Two comments suggest that proposed § 1.203(a) be revised so that it addresses the permissible situation where a deposit is made during the pendency of an application for patent not pursuant to a requirement made by an examiner.

Response: The suggestion has been substantially adopted in § 1.804(a). An original deposit may be made, subject to § 1.809, during pendency of the application for patent. Where § 1.809 does not apply, i.e., where a deposit is ultimately not required, a deposit may be made at any time during pendency.

Comment: The Office should discuss in the commentary accompanying the notice of proposed § 1.203(b) as a final rule the meaning and intent behind the requirement that the deposited biological material be the "same" as the material described in the specification. For example, does the Office contemplate that the statement constitute a representation that the deposited material is in essentially the same form as was in existence at the time of the filing of the patent specification, and, accordingly as specifically described therein ?

Response: Proposed § 1.203(b) has been adopted as § 1.804(b) but with the word "same" deleted and the term "described" replaced with "specifically identified." Under § 1.804(b), the biological material deposited must be a biological material specifically identified in the application as filed.

Comment: One comment asks whether a patent which is defective because of the lack of a deposit can be rectified by making the deposit in connection with a reissue application. Another comment points out that the issue of post-grant original deposits is not addressed by these regulations and the Office is urged to comment to this effect in the final promulgation of the rules.

Response: It is assumed from the comment that a deposit was necessary at the time the patent issued. A patent defective because of lack of a necessary deposit is necessarily fatally defective for failure to comply with the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112. Reissue is not available in such cases. See In re Hay, 534 F.2d 917, 189 USPQ 790 (CCPA), cert. denied, 429 U.S. 977 (1976). Whether reissue is available where a biological material necessary for compliance with 35 U.S.C. 112 was known and readily available at the time of issuance of the patent and subsequently ceased to be readily available is not addressed by this response. Nor do the rules address the question of post-issue original deposits, whether necessary or not to comply with the patent statutes.

Comment: Many comments were received regarding proposed § 1.204 and the subject of replacement deposits. One comment suggests that the time limits in proposed § 1.204(a) for making replacement deposits, specifically as they apply post-grant, are totally arbitrary. For example, a replacement deposit made four months after notice from the depository, without a suitable petition for extension of time, could not be relied on. A number of comments suggest that in proposed § 1.204(a), it is not clear who is required to petition whom in order to obtain an extension of time' in which to make a replacement deposit. A depository is not equipped to deal with the legalities of such matters. If the petition is filed with the Office, there will be administrative burdens. Another comment suggests that instead of specified time limits and petitions for extensions of time, the rule should state that where a patentee makes a replacement deposit, the patentee shall promptly request a certificate of correction identifying the particulars of the replacement deposit and that no such certificate of correction shall be granted unless the request includes, inter alia, a verified showing that the patentee acted diligently in making the replacement deposit. A certificate of correction in providing the particulars of the new deposit (depository and accession number) would provide the simplest and most straightforward vehicle under which the patentee could assure continuing public notice (and accordingly public access) to particular biological materials described in the specification. Corrections to the issued patent would be made subject to all conditions of these deposit regulations and an additional specific requirement that the replacement deposit be made diligently after the notification is received that samples cannot be furnished from the deposit. This generalized requirement of diligence is preferable to the more rigid and cumbersome procedures set forth in the rules as proposed.

Response: The provisions of a three-month time limit for making a replacement deposit and petitioning for extensions of time t extend the limit in proposed § 1.204(a) applied by their terms only to patentees or patent owners. These provisions have not been adopted. Except in reexamination and reissue applications, it is beyond the rulemaking authority of the Office to regulate issued patents. Thus, instead of requiring patent owners to make replacement, or supplemental, deposits and to make them within a specified time, or to require them to request certificates of correction, paragraphs (a), (b) and (c) of § 1.805 as adopted specify that a replacement or supplemental deposit made in connection with a patent, whether or not made during the pendency of an application for reissue patent or a reexamination proceeding or both, shall not be recognized in any Office proceeding unless the patent owner requests a certificate of correction under § 1.323 provided certain specified conditions are met, including that the patent owner acted diligently in making the replacement or supplemental deposit and promptly thereafter requested the certificate of correction.

Comment: The rules should indicate that replacement deposits made during the pendency of an application will be treated in exactly the same way as any other deposit made after the filing date.

Response: The suggestion has been essentially adopted in § 1.805(a) which states, inter alia, that a replacement or supplemental deposit made in connection with an application for patent shall be accepted if it meets the requirements for making an original deposit under these regulations, including the requirement set forth under § 1.804(b).

Comment: The rules should address a situation where the deposit is of a non-viable biological material, such as a marine sponge or other marine macroorganism. Filling requests for samples can ultimately consume the entire deposit. Two other comments suggest that a depositor be permitted to charge the requesting party a fee sufficient to cover the cost of replacing the deposit. A competitor could "drain off" the store of deposit and thereby require replacement at significant economic hardship to the depositor.

Response: Where the biological material deposited is capable of self-replication either directly or indirectly, exhaustion of the deposit would appear to be highly unlikely. Regardless of the type of biological material deposited, however, the depositor must assure that samples thereof be available beyond the enforceable life of any patent relying on the material.

Comment: Nothing in the regulations which define the suitability of a depository requires that the depository itself must provide notice to depositors in the event of an inability to furnish samples yet proposed § 1.204(a) does.

Response: The suggestion has been adopted in §1.803(a)(2)(vii).

Comment: A number of comments suggest that the legal ramifications of an additional deposit made pursuant to proposed § 1.204(h), i.e., made where an earlier deposit has become contaminated or has lost its capability to function as described in the specification, are not clear. Some of the same comments go on to suggest that the deposit provided for in § 1.204(h) be termed a "supplemental" deposit rather than an "additional" deposit to emphasize the relationship between it and the earlier deposit, that such a deposit have the same legal effect as the earlier deposit provided the patent holder provides a verified statement that it is identical to the earlier deposit, and that it have the same accession number as the earlier deposit, perhaps with a suffix modification. One comment suggests that the rules require that a deposit under paragraph (h) be assigned the same accession number but with an appropriate suffix. A depository commentator asks that where a deposit under paragraph (h) is made, which deposit — the earlier or the later one — should be made available to the public. Currently, this depository advises a requesting party that there are two deposits.

Response: The suggestion of replacing the term "additional" with the term "supplemental" has been adopted but in a somewhat different setting. Whereas proposed § 1.204(h) stated that nothing in the regulations was intended to prohibit a patentee from making an additional deposit, paragraphs (a), (b), (c), (f) and (g) of § 1.805 as adopted provide for patent owners as well as patent applicants making supplemental deposits of a biological material earlier deposited from which a depository can still furnish samples. These paragraphs provide for supplemental deposits similar to the provisions in these paragraphs for replacement deposits, including the requirement of showing diligence in making the deposit in connection with a patent, except that instead of making the deposit after receiving notice that samples could no longer be furnished from an earlier deposit, as in the case of a replacement deposit, the deposit is made after receiving notice that the earlier deposit had become contaminated or had lost its capability to function as described in the specification. While the rules specify that the Office in any Office proceeding will recognize supplemental deposits if made under certain conditions, it is not known what legal effect a court will give to such recognition. As far as what accession number a depository should give to a supplemental deposit, this is a matter within the discretion of the depository. As to which deposit, either an earlier deposit or a supplemental deposit, should be made available to the public, this would depend on the accession number requested. A supplemental deposit made according to these regulations would be freely available to the public to the same extent as an original deposit made according to these regulations. Obviously, nothing in these regulations prohibits a depository from advising a requesting party that there is more than one deposit of a particular biological material.

Comment: To the extent proposed § 1.204 regulates the effects on patents, in other than certain statutorily defined situations such as reexamination and reissue, for failure to make replacement deposits according to the rule, it exceeds the rulemaking authority of the Office. An example is proposed § 1.204(c).

Response: Section 1.805 as adopted, to the extent it addresses replacement deposits made by patent owners, contains no affirmative provisions requiring or prohibiting replacement deposits. Rather, it prescribes what an applicant or patent owner may do vis-a-vis the Office if a replacement deposit is made and what the ramifications are in any Office proceeding if a replacement deposit is not made or improperly made. Proposed § 1.204(c) was, and § 1.805(d) as adopted is, limited to Office proceedings. The provision that a patentee may not replace a viable deposit where the depository can furnish samples in proposed § 1.204(h) has been replaced in § 1.805(i) as adopted with the provision that the Office will not recognize in any Office proceeding a replacement deposit made by a patent owner where the depository could furnish samples of the deposit being replaced.

Comment: One comment suggests that the term of deposit in proposed § 1.205 is excessive. The term should be through the expiration of the patent plus 10 years. Another comment suggests that § 1.205 be adopted except that the last sentence should be deleted and the term "viable" before "deposit" be dropped. The term "viable" should be deleted as viability is dealt with elsewhere, e.g., proposed § 1.206. The last sentence should be deleted because, while the Office may set what it considers adequate terms of deposit on or before patent grant, it has no statutory authority or mechanism for supervising the term of the agreement of the deposit. The last sentence is also highly indefinite in failing to indicate how far beyond the enforceable life of a patent the deposit must be maintained.

Response: The suggestions have been adopted in part. Proposed § 1.205, including the last sentence, has been adopted as § 1.806 except that the thirty-year term applies to any deposit made before or during pendency of an application for patent. No requirement of viability is stated in the rule. The Office agrees that once a patent issues, it has no authority or mechanism for supervising the term of the agreement of the deposit. But the Office does have the authority to set the term of deposit while an application is still pending. That is all § 1.806 does. In almost all cases, the term of deposit as set forth in the first sentence of § 1.806 will extend beyond the enforceable life of the patent for which a deposit was made. The last sentence of § 1.806 is intended to cover those rare circumstances where extended prosecution in the Office results in expiration of the term of deposit as set forth in the first sentence while the patent is still enforceable. At this time, there appears to be no need to specify any finite time period beyond the enforceable life of a patent. If experience demonstrates that the public interest is not being served by the present provisions, an appropriate amendment will be proposed.

Comment: A depository commentator suggests that the requirement in proposed § 1.207(b)(1) that a request for a sample of the deposited material be signed poses an administrative burden on depositories which accept telephone, telex and electronic mail requests for samples. Requiring that a request be signed can and will delay the receipt of samples by many days. The signing requirement should not be adopted.

Response: The suggestion has been adopted in § 1.808(b)(1).

Comment: A depository commentator suggests that the requirement in proposed § 1.207(b)(3) that a copy of the request be provided to the depositor poses a problem since most requests also include a request for samples of many other deposited biological materials. For such a request, it would be necessary to send a copy to each depositor, blanking out the other deposits not made by that depositor. It should be sufficient that the depositor is notified to whom and the date a sample was provided. The cost will be much greater if a copy has to be supplied.

Response: The suggestion has been adopted in § 1.808(b)(3).

Comment: A depository commentator suggests that in proposed § 1.207(b), it is not clear, after the term of the patent, whether the deposit is again restricted as it was before the patent was granted, i.e., not furnished unless the requesting party has the proper authorization from the depositor or the Commissioner, or whether the deposit is no longer subject to subparagraphs (1), (2) and (3) thereof and can be furnished without any specific identification or notification. It is suggested that either a statement be added as to what happens after the term of the patent or the term "during the term of the patent" be deleted.

Response: The suggestions have not been adopted. Section 1.808(a)(2) requires that subject to paragraph (b) thereof, all restrictions imposed by the depositor on the availability to the public of the deposited material will be irrevocably removed upon the granting of the patent. Paragraph (b), by its terms, is limited to the term of the patent. A contract between a depositor and a depository according to paragraph (b) but which extends beyond the term of the patent would violate paragraph (a)(2). It should be self-evident that for deposits in compliance with these regulations, samples of the deposit may be furnished without any specific identification or notification for requests made after the term of the patent.

Comment: While many comments suggest adoption of a rule restricting the transfer of a sample of a deposited material to a third party without the depositor's permission, such as proposed § 1.207(c), as well as the adoption of a rule requiring other restrictions on access to deposited material, two comments suggest that such rules not be adopted. The rationale is that if a deposit is basically a replacement for that which could not be adequately written in the patent specification itself, no specific statutory authority exists for restricting access to the deposited material any more than the patent law would countenance restrictions on access to the written description itself. If abuses exist by virtue of the absence of limitations on access to deposited materials, then the remedy for patent infringement is as applicable to deposited material as it is to infringers acting from knowledge of the written description itself. Accordingly, unrestricted access to deposits should be allowed. One of the comments suggests further that if there are to be some restrictions to access, proposed § 1.207(c) is otherwise problematic and ineffective. For example, the limitation on access applies to "derived" materials which could include wholly noninfringing derivatives which might themselves constitute a patentable invention of a third party requester. The proposed rule would deny the third party requester the right to what ought to be an unrestricted right to sell or otherwise dispose of this derivative material to third parties. Moreover, the proposed rule is remediless since the Office neither has continuing jurisdicton over the patentee nor a third party requester. Two depository commentators expressed reservations about proposed § 1.207(c). One suggests that the first sentence therein is in direct contradiction to the long-standing policies of both NRRL and ATCC. Most depositories no longer require this type of guarantee from requesting parties as they find it almost impossible to enforce. The other suggests that the administrative burden to the depository in handling agreements made pursuant to the proposed rule will be great and the cost will be borne by the depositor. At $10 an agreement and 300 requests a year for a particular deposit, the cost to the depositor would be $3,000 a year. If § 1.207(c) is adopted, there should be some mention that if a depository charges a fee for this service, the fee must be paid or the depository will not be obligated to provide the service. In the European Patent Office (EPO), which has a similar provision, the EPO, not the depository, obtains the agreement and advises the depository to make the sample available. The comment asks if the Office is prepared to do this. Additional comments ask what rules govern a new deposit for patent purposes of the same or derived biological material by a requesting party if the substance of proposed § 1.207(c) is adopted. Some comments were in response to a solicitation in the notice of proposed rulemaking for alternative approaches and suggestions for an appropriate definition of "essential characteristics" with respect to derived material in proposed § 1.207(c).

Response: The Office has decided not to adopt a rule permitting a depositor to require that a sample of a deposited biological material shall be furnished only if the requesting party has agreed not to make the material or a derivative thereof available to a third party without the depositor's permission. Thus, proposed § 1.207(c) has not been adopted. The Office agrees with many of the comments about shortcomings in the proposed rule. Fundamentally, however, the proposed rule has not been adopted in view of the rationale stated in the comment that no greater restriction on access to a deposit should be permitted than is permitted on access to the written description itself, even considering that the practical value of access to a deposit may be substantially greater than access to the written description and that infringement may be more difficult to police. While it might be argued that the adoption of proposed § 1.207(b) with revisions as § 1.808(b) is inconsistent with this rationale, the Office believes that permitting the depositor to require a requesting party, in essence, to identify itself is not unreasonable under the circumstances and is consistent with international practice as embodied in the Budapest Treaty.

Comment: Many comments which suggest the adoption of the substance of proposed § 1.207(c) also suggest the adoption of rules incorporating the recommendations made in the April 8, 1987 World Intellectual Property Organization (WIPO) report on the Industrial Property Protection of Biotechnological Inventions (1) to use the biological material only for experimental purposes concerning the invention, and (2) not to export the biological material except to a country for which a relevant patent has been granted. The reasons generally given were that it is necessary to protect the patentee and enhance the patentee's ability to enforce a patent relying on a deposited material. One comment suggests that incorporating the recommendation on experimental use would clarify what is permitted by law. In the Notice of Proposed Rulemaking, 53 Fed. Reg. at 39423-24, the Office described the difficulties in drafting a regulation incorporating these recommendations and requested specific suggestions as to how to draft a regulation which both accomplishes the intended purpose and is not inconsistent with law. No specific suggestions were received, although one comment suggests that where a deposited material is covered by an unexpired U.S. patent, a rule be adopted permitting the depositor to require the requesting party to agree to comply with the provisions of 35 U.S.C. 271. Another comment suggests that legislation is necessary to deal with the problems addressed by the WIPO recommendations. A restriction against exports could be considered to be violative of 35 U.S.C. 112 since foreign requesters would be denied access to deposits where a patentee had never sought foreign patent protection. A restriction to experimental purposes only, while more justifiable, raises two problems. One is that "experimental purposes" have not been defined and the term has been open to several interpretations. The other is that the proper redress for non-experimental use is a suit for patent infringement, not a suit based on the requester's promise to the depository. The comment suggests that a rule be adopted permitting the depositor to require that a requesting party acknowledge that the furnishing of a sample of the deposited biological material does not constitute a license, express or implied, to use that sample for any purpose.

Response: None of the suggestions have been adopted for essentially the same rationale discussed in the response to the previous comment. None suggest how to draft a regulation which both accomplishes the intended purpose and is not inconsistent with law, and which provides a compelling justification and rationale for departing from present policy and practice. The suggestion that a requesting party agree to comply with 35 U.S.C. 271 as a condition precedent to obtaining a sample of deposited biological material is interpreted as an agreement not to infringe a corresponding valid patent, something which a requesting party is already bound not to do under law. The suggestion that a depositor be permitted to require a requesting party to acknowledge that there is no express or implied license to use a sample for any purpose exceeds the rulemaking authority of the Office since certain unlicensed uses of patented subject matter have been found by the courts to be permissible.

Comment: Many of the comments suggesting adoption of the substance of § 1.207(c) and/or the WIPO recommendations on experimental use and export also suggest adoption of rules permitting additional restrictions. One comment suggests requiring the recipient of biological material to report, at least annually, to the patent holder, on the research and other results obtained by use of the biological material. The same commentator suggests that even after patent expiration, an unlicensed recipient should not be permitted to use the biological material for other than experimental purposes absent agreement from the depositor. The commentator would prohibit commercial use of the biological material without permission of the depositor. Another comment suggests that the policy consideration for permitting deposits is to insure that the patented invention can be practiced after patent expiration. Requiring a requesting party to enter into an agreement with the depositor defining the terms and conditions under which a sample of the deposited material would be used, making an accounting of such use, and proof of compliance, is neither unreasonable nor contrary to law. It would not place an administrative burden on the Office since the depository could be permitted to release samples only if the requesting party signs a license. Any attempt by the depositor to impose an unlawful restriction and withhold release would be a matter for the courts, not the Office. Another comment suggests various additional restrictions be adopted. These are (1) that the requesting party have residence in the U.S. or in the country where the depository is located, if different; (2) that the patentee be given the option to restrict furnishing of samples to independent experts only for the duration of the patent; and (3) that the deposit be released only if the depositor expressly consents (in the absence of which validity of the patent must be resolved without recourse to the deposit). Restriction (1) should be adopted so that the deposit cannot be legally exported to a country where the patent owner has no enforceable rights. Restriction (2) should be adopted to prevent access of the deposited material to potential infringers. Its adoption should be coupled with a statement that a deposit released to an expert shall be regarded as being available to the public. Restriction (3) should be adopted as an extension to the description in proposed § 1.201 that the disclosure "may include a deposit." In other words, the patentee at any time during the patent term should be able to rely on the written description alone for satisfying 35 U.S.C. 112, such as where the reasons for requiring a deposit originally no longer exist.

Response: None of the suggestions have been adopted for essentially the same reasons discussed in the responses to the previous two comments.

Comment: A depository commentator suggests that proposed § 1.207(d) needs further deliberation. Now, publication in a U.S. patent of a deposit and accession number is sufficient for that depository (ATCC) to make samples available. The Office should be prepared to receive several thousand requests for certification under § 1.207(d) if adopted. If the Office is going to certify the availability of deposits, it should certify the availability of all deposits. Easier than the proposed rule would be to include a statement in the patent that there is a deposit, its accession number and where it is deposited, and that it has been made under the condition that it is available upon publication of the issued patent.

Response: The suggestion has not been adopted. The comment appears to be interpreting the term "Upon request" at the beginning of proposed § 1.207(d) to mean "Upon request to a depository for a sample of a deposited material", or in other words, the commentator appears to have interpreted the proposed language as requiring the depository to request certification from the Office each time a request for a sample of a deposit is made. It was not intended to impose such a burden on depositories. Rather, it was intended that the term "Upon request" refer to a request made to the Office. Therefore, proposed § 1.207(d), revised by inserting the term "made to the Office" after "Upon request", has been adopted as § 1.808(c).

Comment: One comment suggests that there is no apparent reason for the use of the different words " [e]stablishing" and "[a]rguing", in proposed paragraphs (b)(2) and (b)(3), respectively, of § 1.208 since the same meaning is intended by each. Either word alone should be used in both subparagraphs (2) and (3). The same comment goes on to suggest that the reference to paragraph (b)(2) in the last sentence of proposed § 1.208(b)(3) is redundant since the examiner may be convinced that a deposit is not required where the applicant has established that the involved biological material is known and readily available to the public. A comment along the same lines suggests that paragraph (b)(2) is unnecessary. As a purely logical matter, an applicant ought to be entitled to reply to a rejection either by making an acceptable deposit or arguing why a deposit is not required under the circumstances. Proposed § 1.208(b)(2) is merely one possibility for an argument that a deposit is not required.

Response: The suggestions have been adopted. Proposed § 1.208(b)(2) has not been adopted and proposed § 1.208(b)(3) has been substantially adopted as § 1.809(b)(2). In addition, § 1.809(b)(2) provides for examination with respect to a patent, since deposit issues may arise in connection with a reissue application and/or a reexamination proceeding, and provides also for an argument that a deposit actually made should be accepted.

Comment: A number of comments suggest that the term "taxonomic description" in proposed § 1.208(d)(3) is unclear and inappropriate in some cases. One comment suggests that it is not clear how complete a description is required. If construed in its broadest sense, it could have the undesirable effect of delaying filing of an application until taxonomic characteristics have been determined. Some biological materials within the scope of the proposed rules, such as plasmids, are not susceptible of taxonomic description. The requirement that the specification contain a taxonomic description should not be adopted since such a description may not be possible and since the availability of a deposit makes such a description superfluous, since the taxonomy is inherent in the deposit. The response to comments made earlier regarding the taxonomic description requirement is inconsistent with the proposed rule. The response states that the extent to which a taxonomic description is required will depend on the facts of the case yet the proposed rule states that the specification shall contain such a description. The response states that the taxonomic description must be sufficient for purposes of 35 U.S.C. 112 yet the requirement of a deposit presupposes that a written description alone will not satisfy the statute. The need to verify that the deposited biological material is that disclosed in the specification arises only when the deposit is made after the filing date. That situation can be dealt with by deleting the taxonomic description requirement from § 1.208(d) and adding a new subparagraph (e) which would provide that in cases where a deposit is made after the filing date and where the nature of the material permits, a taxonomic description is required in addition to the items specified in subparagraph (d). Another comment suggests that the term "taxonomic" be deleted since it is irrelevant to many types of deposits and would provide greater clarity to the rules. Another comment suggests that the current language in proposed § 1.208(d)(3) be replaced with "Fully identify and describe the deposited material".

Response: The suggestions have been adopted in part. Section 1.809(d)(3) as adopted requires a description of the deposited biological material sufficient to specifically identify it and to permit examination. While the rule does not by its terms require a taxonomic description, such a description should satisfy the rule as adopted in cases where the biological material deposited admits of a taxonomic description.

Comment: The Office should petition the Budapest Assembly to address the same issues dealt with in the proposed rules so that they apply to both U.S. and foreign filings. Uniformity in the rules is important, especially for U.S. inventors who file here and abroad.

Response: While uniformity in both U.S. and foreign rules is desirable, this is not deemed to be the appropriate forum in which to address the suggestion.

Discussion of Specific Sections

BIOLOGICAL MATERIAL [§ 1.801]:

The section indicates that the rules pertaining to deposits for purposes of patents for inventions under 35 U.S.C. 101 are intended to relate to biological material. For the purposes of these rules, the term "biological material" is defined in terms of a non-exhaustive list of representative materials which can be deposited in accordance with the procedures defined in these rules. Since these rules are intended to address procedural matters in the deposit of biological material for patent purposes, and are not designed to decide such substantive issues such as whether a deposit of a particular organism or material would be recognized or needed to be made for the purposes of satisfying the statutory requirements for patentability under 35 U.S.C. 112, the definition provided in this section is intended to be permissive - specifically defining materials which can be deposited.

Biological material includes material that is capable of self-replication either directly or indirectly. Direct self-replication includes those situations where the biological material reproduces by itself. Representative examples of materials capable of self-replication are defined in the rule. Indirect self-replication is meant to include those situations where the biological material is only capable of replication when another self-replicating biological material is present. Self-replication after insertion in a host is one example of indirect self-replication. Examples of indirect replicating biological materials include viruses, phages, plasmids, symbionts, and replication defective cells. The list of representative examples of each type of replicating material includes viruses to demonstrate that the lists are not intended to be mutually exclusive.

Although plant material is included within the scope of the definition of biological material for purposes of patents for inventions under 35 U.S.C. 101, these rules on deposits are not applicable to applications filed under the Plant Patent Act (35 U.S.C. 161-164). The Office is of the view that a deposit is not required under the present provisions of 35 U.S.C. 162. Thus, no plant patent granted under the provisions of 35 U.S.C. 161-164 need be supported by a deposit. As with other biological material deposited for purposes of patents for inventions under 35 U.S.C. 101, the deposit of plant material together with the written specification must enable those skilled in the art to make and use the claimed invention.

As with some types of reproducible biological material, seeds can be reproduced only after a growing season which may be relatively long. Although the rules do not specify a specific number of seeds to be deposited to meet the requirements of these rules, the Office will consider 2500 to be a minimum number in the normal case, but will give an applicant the opportunity to provide justification why a lesser number would be suitable under the circumstances of a particular case. The Department of Agriculture requires a deposit of 2500 seeds for the grant of a Plant Variety Protection Certificate. As the reproduction of seeds will often take a substantial period of time, the Office will require, at a minimum, a number of seeds that is likely to satisfy demand for samples once the patent is granted.

Section 1.801 does not attempt to identify what biological material either needs to be or may be deposited to comply with the requirements of 35 U.S.C. 112. For the most part, this issue must be addressed on a case-by-case basis. Thus, while the Office does not presently contemplate that there would be any situations where a material that is not capable of self-replication either directly or indirectly would be acceptable as a deposit, an applicant is clearly not precluded in any given application, by these rules, from attempting to show why the deposit of such a material should be acceptable to satisfy the requirements of 35 U.S.C. 112.

NEED OR OPPORTUNITY TO MAKE A DEPOSIT [§ 1.802]

This section permits a deposit of a biological material to be referenced in a patent application where an invention is, or relies on, a biological material. The invention may rely on a biological material for the purposes of making or using the invention, either as a preferred mode or an alternative mode of operation. It is not necessary, for the purposes of paragraph (a), that a deposit be required to satisfy the requirements of 35 U.S.C. 112 before a reference to a deposit is permitted in the specification.

There is no necessary implication or presumption that can or should be made about the need for a deposit simply because reference to a deposit is made in an application disclosure. As noted in paragraph (b), biological material need not be deposited unless access to such material is necessary for the satisfaction of the statutory requirements for patentability under 35 U.S.C. 112 and that access is not otherwise available in the absence of a deposit. Where a deposit is required to provide the necessary access, a deposit is acceptable for patent purposes only where it is made in accordance with these regulations. Even where access to biological material is required to satisfy these statutory requirements, a deposit may not be necessary if access sufficient to satisfy these requirements is otherwise available.

For example, applicant could show that the biological material is known and readily available to the public. The concepts of "known and readily available" are considered to reflect a level of public accessibility to a necessary component of an invention disclosure that is consistent with an ability to make and use the invention. To avoid the need for a deposit on this basis, the biological material must be both known and readily available - neither concept alone is sufficient. A material may be known in the sense that its existence has been published, but is not available to those who wish to obtain that particular known biological material. Likewise, a biological material may be available in the sense that those having possession of it would make it available upon request, but no one has been informed of its existence.

By showing that a biological material is known and readily available or by making a deposit in accordance with these rules, applicant does not guarantee that such biological material will be available forever. Public access during the term of the patent may affect the enforceability of the patent. Although there is a public interest in the availability of a deposited biological material during and after the period of enforceability of the patent, the examiner need not be unduly concerned about continued access to the public. Unless there is a reasonable basis to believe that the biological material will cease to be available during the life of the patent, the examiner should accept current availability as satisfying the requirement. The incentives provided by the patent system should not be constrained by the mere possibility that a disclosure that was once enabling would become non-enabling over a period of time through no fault of the patentee. In re Metcalfe, 410 F.2d 1378, 161 USPQ 789 (CCPA 1969).

There are many factors that may be used as indicia that a biological material is known and readily available to the public. Relevant factors include commercial availability, references to the biological material in printed publications, declarations of accessibility by those working in the field, evidence of predictable isolation techniques, or an existing deposit made in accordance with these rules. Each factor may or may not be sufficient alone to demonstrate that the biological material is known and readily available. Those applicants that rely on evidence of accessibility other than a deposit take the risk that the patent may no longer be enforceable if the biological material necessary to satisfy the requirements of 35 U.S.C. 112 ceases to become accessible.

The Office will accept commercial availability as evidence that a biological material is known and readily available only when the evidence is clear and convincing that the public has access to the material. A product could be commercially available but only at a price that effectively eliminates accessibility to those desiring to obtain a sample. The relationship between an applicant relying on a biological material and the commercial supplier relied upon is one factor that would be considered in determining whether the biological material was known and readily available. However, the mere fact that the biological material was available only through the patent holder or the patent holder's agents or assigns shall not, by itself, justify a finding that the necessary material is not readily available, absent reason to believe that access to the biological material would later be improperly restricted.

The mere reference to a deposit or the biological material itself in any document or publication does not necessarily mean that the deposited biological material is readily available. Even a deposit made under the Budapest Treaty and referenced in a United States or foreign patent document would not necessarily meet the test for known and readily available unless the deposit was made under conditions which are consistent with those specified in these rules, including the one that requires, with one possible exception, that all restrictions on the accessibility will be irrevocably removed upon the granting of the patent.

Applicant may show that a deposit is not necessary even though specific biological materials are required to practice the invention if those biological materials can be made or isolated without undue experimentation. Deposits may be required to support the claims if an isolation procedure requires undue experimentation to obtain the desired biological material. Ex Parte Jackson, 217 USPQ 804 (PTO Bd. Pat. App. 1982) No deposit is required, however, where the required biological materials can be obtained from publicly available material with only routine experimentation and a reliable screening test. Tabuchi v. Nubel, 559 F.2d 1183, 194 USPQ 521 (CCPA 1977); Ex Parte Hata, 6 USPQ 2d 1652 (PTO Bd. Pat. App. & Int. 1987).

Once a deposit is made in a depository complying with these rules, and under conditions complying with these rules, a biological material will be considered to be readily available even though some requirement of law or regulation in the United States or in the country where the depository institution is located permits access to the material only under conditions imposed for health, safety or similar reasons. This provision is consistent with the Budapest Treaty (Article 5) and is designed to permit the patenting of inventions involving materials having restricted distribution, where the restrictions are imposed for the public, as opposed to the private, welfare.

Paragraph (c) specifically provides that the mere reference to a deposit of biological material in the specification disclosure or the actual deposit of such material does not create any presumption that such referenced or deposited material is necessary to satisfy 35 U.S.C. 112, or that a deposit in accordance with these regulations is or was required. Since reference to a biological material cannot be added to a specification disclosure after filing an application without risking the prohibited introduction of new matter (35 U.S.C. 132), applicants must be permitted to address the need to make a deposit in accordance with these regulations without jeopardizing a filing date. Thus, the examiner has the burden of showing that a deposit is required to satisfy 35 U.S.C. 112, and cannot rely on whether a deposit has been made or has been referenced in the specification disclosure to establish a prima facie case that the disclosure does not comply with 35 U.S.C. 112 without deposit.

ACCEPTABLE DEPOSITORY [§ 1.803]

This section indicates that a depository will be recognized as acceptable for the purposes of these regulations if it is either an International Depositary Authority (IDA) established under the Budapest Treaty, or if it is a depository recognized as suitable by the Commissioner. After the effective date of these regulations, a deposit of biological material which is made in a depository which is not recognized as acceptable under this regulation will not be considered as satisfying the requirements of 35 U.S.C. 112. On the other hand, if a deposit is not required to satisfy the requirements of 35 U.S.C. 112, it is permissible to make reference to such a deposit even though it may not be in a depository or made under the conditions which are acceptable under these regulations. As new depositories are accepted under the Budapest Treaty or are recognized as suitable by the Commissioner, their identity will be announced in the Official Gazette.

An organization may be recognized as suitable by the Office if the procedure and conditions specified in paragraphs (a)(2) and (b) are followed. Generally, it is not the intention of the Office to recognize as suitable any organization where the need for a suitable depository for patent purposes is being met by depositories recognized as IDAs under the Budapest Treaty. Suitability will be judged by the Commissioner, based on need and the information supplied by the organization seeking status, and information obtained from other sources that may be consulted.

While there is a desire to provide flexibility to a patent applicant in selecting an appropriate depository, these rules are not intended to permit each patent applicant to become its own depository since both the patent owner and the public have an interest in the continued availability and accessibility of the deposit during the enforceable life of the patent, and the public has a continuing interest in its availability when the patent is no longer enforceable. The concept of a depository independent of the control of the depositor or an IDA as an acceptable depository is based on the need and desire to ensure the safe and reliable storage of a deposited biological material under circumstances that are substantially free of the opportunity for intentional or negligent handling of the deposited material. The use of an independent depository or internationally recognized depository will tend to preserve the integrity of the deposit process against those that may accidentally alter the deposited material, may wish to tamper with the deposited material or may wish to resume control of its availability when the patent is no longer enforceable, and to preserve the interest of the public in the access to the biological material once the term of the patent expires.

When a depository having status under paragraph (a)(2) of this regulation seeks to change the kinds of biological materials that it will accept and maintain for the purposes of these rules, a communication requesting such a change should be directed to the Commissioner containing the information requested in paragraph (b). When such a change is requested, the requesting organization should provide a complete list of the kinds of biological materials it will accept.

Paragraph (d) of this section indicates that once a depository is recognized as suitable for the purposes of this rule, or has defaulted or discontinued its performance under this section, notice thereof will be published in the Official Gazette of the Patent and Trademark Office. A current list of IDAs recognized under the Budapest Treaty is as follows:

TIME OF MAKING AN ORIGINAL DEPOSIT [§ 1.804]

This section specifies the time for making an original deposit to fulfill the requirements of 35 U.S.C. 112. Paragraph (a) specifies not only a permissible time frame for making an original deposit, but also specifies that the biological material deposited must be specifically identified in the application for patent as filed. The requirement for a specific identification is consistent with the description requirement of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112, and to provide an antecedent basis for the biological material which either has been or will be deposited before the patent is granted.

The description in the Lundak application as filed (now patent 4,594,325) provides a suitable illustration of the specific identification and description which is required in an application for patent as filed. In that application, an immortal B-cell line was disclosed and claimed. The cell line was referred to in the application as filed as WI-L2-729 HF2. The methods of obtaining and using this cell line were also described in the application as filed. A deposit of the cell line was made with the American Type Culture Collection (ATCC) about a week after the application was filed in the United States. The United States Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit held that the requirements of access by the Office to a sample of the cell line during pendency, and public access after grant, were met by Lundak's procedures. The Court further held that the addition of information designating the depository, accession number, and deposit date of the deposited cell line in ATCC after the filing date did not violate the prohibition against new matter in 35 U.S.C. 132. In re Lundak, 773 F.2d 1216, 227 USPQ 90 (Fed Cir. 1985). It must be clear from the application as filed that the invention claimed and described in the specification "was fully capable of being reduced to practice (i.e., no technological problems, the resolution of which would require more than ordinary skill and reasonable time, remained in order to obtain an operative, useful process)." Feldman v. Aunstrup, 517 F.2d 1351, 1355, 186 USPQ 108, 113 (CCPA 1975), cert. denied, 424 U.S. 912 (1976).

When the original deposit is made after the effective filing date of an application for patent, applicant is required to promptly submit a verified statement from a person in a position to corroborate that the biological material which is deposited is a biological material specifically identified in the application (the filing date of which is relied upon) as filed. The nature of this corroboration will depend on the circumstances in the particular application under consideration, including the length of time between the application filing date and the date of deposit. While few, if any, situations can be imagined where the description requirement of 35 U.S.C. 112 can be satisfied where the biological material was not in existence at the time of filing, the rules do not preclude such a situation. There is no requirement in the patent law that an actual reduction to practice occur as a condition precedent to filing a patent application. The requirement for a verified statement is not necessary under paragraph (b) of this section if the person making the statement is an attorney or agent registered to practice before the Office.

For the purposes of complying with the requirements of 35 U.S.C. 112, a deposit of a biological material may be made at any time before filing the application for patent or during the pendency of the application subject to the conditions of § 1.809. Where the deposit is needed to satisfy the requirement of 35 U.S.C. 112 and is made during the pendency of the application, it must be made no later than the time period set by the examiner at the time the Notice of Allowance and Issue Fee Due is mailed. A necessary deposit need not be made by applicant until the application is in condition for allowance so long as applicant provides a written assurance that an acceptable deposit will be made on or before the payment of the issue fee. This written assurance must provide sufficiently detailed information to convince the examiner that there is no outstanding issue regarding deposits that needs to be resolved.

Those applicants intending to file patent applications in a country foreign to the United States relying upon biological material that must be deposited to satisfy the requirements of 35 U.S.C. 112 when the application is filed in the United States are cautioned that in many countries the deposit must be made before the filing date of the priority application in order to obtain foreign priority rights. Thus, while the deposit of a biological material subsequent to the effective filing date of a United States application is sufficient to comply with 35 U.S.C. 112, an applicant may not be able to rely on the filing date of such a U.S. application if a patent is sought in a country foreign to the United States.

REPLACEMENT OR SUPPLEMENT OF DEPOSIT [§ 1.805]

This section relates to the deposit of a biological material to replace or supplement a previous deposit. The term "replacement" is directed to those situations where one deposit is being substituted for another. An applicant may have greater latitude in replacing a deposit during the pendency of an application than after the patent is granted. Replacement will typically take place where the earlier deposit is no longer viable. The term "supplement" is directed to those situations where the earlier deposit is still viable in the sense that it is alive and capable of replication either directly or indirectly, but has lost a quality (e.g., purity, functionality) it allegedly possessed at the time the application was filed. The procedures in these rules contemplate that only the original depositor would have a right to replace or supplement the original deposit.

Paragraph (a) relates to the procedure for replacing or supplementing a deposit with respect to a pending application or a patent. An applicant for patent or patent owner whose patent is the subject of a reissue application or reexamination proceeding is required to notify the Office when it obtains information that the depository possessing a deposit either cannot furnish samples thereof or can furnish samples thereof but the deposit has become contaminated or has lost its capability to function as described in the specification. When the Office is so notified or otherwise becomes aware of such information, the need for making a replacement or supplemental deposit will be determined by the same considerations used to determine the need for an original deposit under § 1.802(b).

A replacement or supplemental deposit made in connection with a pending application for patent will be accepted if it meets all the requirements for making an original deposit. It should be noted that for a pending application for patent, applicant need not replace or supplement the identical material previously deposited, but may make an original deposit of a biological material which is specifically identified and described in the application as filed. Whether this alternative deposit will meet the requirements of 35 U.S.C. 112 with respect to the claimed subject matter must be resolved by the examiner on a case-by-case basis.

A replacement or supplemental deposit made in connection with a patent, whether or not it is the subject of a pending reissue application or reexamination proceeding, shall not be recognized in any Office proceeding unless a certificate of correction under § 1.323 is requested by the patent owner which meets the terms of paragraphs (b) and (c) of this section. These paragraphs specify the procedures that a patent owner must follow to ensure both that a replacement or supplemental deposit will be recognized in any Office proceeding and that a certificate of correction under this section containing "up to date" information about a deposited biological material will be granted. The term "recognized in any Office proceeding" as used in this section includes the proceeding in which a request for certificate of correction under this section is acted upon. Paragraph (b) describes the information which must be contained in the certificate of correction, whereas paragraph (c) describes when the request must be made and the information which must be provided in the request to make the correction. The rules require, inter alia, that replacement or supplement of a deposit be made diligently, followed by prompt request thereafter for a certificate of correction, as conditions precedent to being recognized in any Office proceeding. Thus, for example, if a patent owner learns early during the term of the patent that the depository cannot furnish samples of a deposit described in the patent and the patent owner fails to both diligently make a replacement deposit and promptly thereafter request a certificate of correction under these rules, a replacement deposit made years later when the patent becomes the subject of a reissue application or reexamination proceeding will not be recognized by the Office nor will any request for certificate of correction in connection with that deposit be granted.

Where a proper request for certificate of correction is made and has been granted, any correction made to the original patent will be automatically incorporated into any reissued or reexamined patent unless changes are made during examination of the reissue application or reexamination proceeding.

Paragraph (d) of § 1.805 sets forth the Office position that the failure to make a replacement deposit or, in the case of a patent, diligently make a replacement deposit and promptly thereafter request a certificate of correction which meets the terms of paragraphs (b) and (c) of this section, after notification that samples of an earlier deposit cannot be furnished, shall cause the application or patent involved to be treated in any Office proceeding as if no deposit were made.

Paragraph (e) thereof indicates that the Office will apply a rebuttable presumption of an identity between the replacement deposit and an original deposit where a patent making reference to the deposit is relied on during any Office proceeding. This means that where a replacement deposit is permitted and made, the examiner will assume that the same material as described in the patent is accessible from the identified depository unless evidence to the contrary comes to the attention of the Office.

An applicant for patent may make a replacement or supplemental deposit during the pendency of the application for any reason. The provisions of paragraph (f) of § 1.805 recognize that since an original deposit may be made during the pendency of the application subject to the conditions of § 1.809, a replacement or supplemental deposit logically cannot be held to any higher standard or any further requirements. Likewise, the provisions of paragraph (g) indicate that neither a replacement nor a supplemental deposit need be made where, at the point in time when replacement or supplement would otherwise be necessary, access to the necessary biological material was otherwise available. For example, a replacement or supplemental deposit would not be required under the circumstances where access to the necessary biological material was established through commercial suppliers.

The provisions of paragraph (h) of § 1.805 indicate that a replacement deposit is not required even though the depository cannot furnish samples, under certain conditions, to those requesting a sample outside of the jurisdiction where the depository is located. The conditions are specified in this paragraph as being limited to national security, health or environmental safety reasons.

Finally, paragraph (i) of this section indicates that the Office will not recognize in any Office proceeding a replacement deposit made by the patent owner where the depository could furnish samples of the deposit being replaced. The best evidence of what was originally deposited should not be lost through destruction or replacement if made in association with an existing patent. A supplemental deposit may be accepted in an Office proceeding, however, depending on the circumstances in each case.

TERM OF DEPOSIT [§ 1.806]

The term of deposit must satisfy the requirements of the Budapest Treaty which sets a term of at least 30 years from the date of deposit and at least five (5) years after the most recent request for the furnishing of a sample of the deposit was received by the depository. In the event that the 30-year term covers the 17-year term of the patent plus six (6) years to include the Statute of Limitations, no further requirement is necessary. The mere possibility of patent term extension or extended litigation involving the patent should not be considered in this analysis.

In the event that the 30-year term of deposit measured from the date of deposit would necessarily terminate within the period of enforceability of the patent (normally the 17-year term plus six (6) years), samples must be stored under agreements that would make them available beyond the enforceable life of the patent for which the deposit was made. No requirement should be made as to any particular period of time beyond the enforceable life of the patent. The purpose of the requirement is to insure that a deposited biological material necessary for the practice of a patented invention would be available to the public after expiration of the patent for which the deposit was made. The term of the deposit must comply with the requirements of each sentence of § 1.806 whether or not the deposit is made under the Budapest Treaty. A specific statement that the deposit complies with the second sentence of this section is required only where the 30-year term would terminate within the enforceable life of the patent.

VIABILITY OF DEPOSITS [§ 1.807]

This section requires that the deposit of biological material that is capable of self-replication either directly or indirectly must be viable at the time of deposit and during the term of deposit. This requirement for viability is essentially a requirement that the deposited material is capable of reproduction. For the purpose of making a deposit under these rules, there is no requirement that evidence be provided that the deposited material is capable or has the ability to perform any function described in the patent application. However, as with any other issue of description or enablement, if the examiner has evidence or reason to question the objective statements made in the patent application, applicants may be required to demonstrate that the deposited biological material will perform in the manner described.

Under the Budapest Treaty, there is a requirement that the deposit be tested for viability before it is accepted. Thus, a mere statement by applicant, an authorized representative of applicant or the assignee that the deposit has been accepted under the Budapest Treaty would satisfy § 1.807.

For each deposit which is not made under the Budapest Treaty, a viability statement must be filed in the patent application and contain the information listed in paragraph (b) of this section. Under paragraph (c), the examiner will accept the conclusion set forth in a viability statement which is issued by a depository recognized under § 1.803(a). If the viability test indicates that the deposit is not viable upon receipt, or the examiner cannot for scientific or other valid reasons accept the statement of viability received from the applicant, the examiner shall so notify the applicant stating the reasons for not acepting the statement and proceed with the examination process as if no deposit had been made.

FURNISHING OF SAMPLES [§ 1.808]

This section requires that the deposit of biological material be made under two (2) conditions:

(1) access to the deposit will be available during pendency of the patent application making reference to the deposit to one determined by the Commissioner to be entitled thereto under § 1.14 and 35 U.S.C. 122, and

(2) with one exception, that all restrictions imposed by the depositor on the availability to the public of the deposited biological material will be irrevocably removed upon the granting of the patent.

The one exception that is permitted is specified in paragraph (b) of this section which permits the depositor to contract with the depository to require that samples of a deposited biological material shall be furnished only if a request for a sample, during the term of the patent meets any one or all of the three conditions specified in this paragraph. These conditions are:

(1) the request is in writing or other tangible form and dated; and/or

(2) the request contains the name and address of the requesting party and the accession number of the deposit; and/or

(3) the request is communicated in writing by the depository to the depositor along with the date on which the sample was furnished and the name and address of the party to whom the sample was furnished.

It should be noted that this exception to the general rule that all restrictions will be removed must be strictly followed and that no variations of this explicit exception will be accepted as meeting the conditions of this section. This exception is consistent with the provisions in the Budapest Treaty and its implementing regulations (Rule 11.4).

Since the mere description of a deposit or identity of a deposit in a patent specification is not necessarily an indication that a requirement for deposit was made or that a deposit which complies with these rules has been made, accessibility to a deposited material referenced in a patent may depend on the satisfaction of conditions not apparent on the face of the patent. For these reasons, and upon request made to the Patent and Trademark Office, the Office will certify whether a deposit has been stated to have been made under conditions which would make it available to the public as of the issue date of the patent grant provided the request is made to the Director of Patent Examining Group 180, and contains the following information:

(1) the name and address of the depository

(2) the accession number given to the deposit

(3) the patent number and issue date of the patent referring to the deposit and

(4) the name and address of the requesting party.

For those deposits made pursuant to the Budapest Treaty, the World Intellectual Property Organization provides a form (Form BP-12) for requesting a certification of the availability of samples of deposited microorganisms pursuant to Rule 11.3(a) of the regulations under the Budapest Treaty. Copies of this form are available from the Director of Patent Examining Group 180.

EXAMINATION PROCEDURES [§ 1.809]

This section sets forth procedures that will be used by the examiner to address a deposit issue. Deposit issues may arise in the examination of claims in applications for patent and for reissue of a patent, and in the examination of new or amended claims in a reexamination proceeding. The burden is initially on the Office to establish that access to a biological material is necessary for the satisfaction of the statutory requirements for patentability under 35 U.S.C. 112. Once the Office has met this burden, the burden shifts to the applicant or patent owner to demonstrate that access to such biological material either is not necessary or is already available, or that a deposit of such material is being or will be made, replaced or supplemented in accordance with these regulations.

Under paragraph (a) of this section, once the examiner has determined that access to a biological material is necessary, and that access is not presently available in accordance with these regulations, the examiner should make an appropriate rejection under 35 U.S.C. 112.

The applicant or patent owner may respond, pursuant to paragraph (b)(2) of this section, to a rejection made under paragraph (a) thereof by arguing why a deposit is not needed under the circumstances and/or why a deposit actually made should be acceptable. Other prescribed responses which are available to such a rejection depend upon whether the rejection is made in an application for patent, on the one hand, or in a proceeding involving a patent, i.e., an application for reissue patent or reexamination proceeding, on the other hand.

In an application for patent, applicant may respond, pursuant to paragraph (b)(1) of this section, by either making an acceptable original, replacement or supplemental deposit in accordance with these regulations, or assuring the Office in writing that an acceptable deposit will be made on or before the date of payment of the issue fee. In a proceeding involving a patent, the patent owner may respond, pursuant to paragraph (b)(1) of this section, by requesting a certificate of correction of the patent which meets the terms of paragraphs (b) and (c) of § 1.805. In all cases, any other response shall be considered non-responsive. The rejection will be repeated and made final until the requirements of paragraph (b)(1) of this section are satisfied or the examiner is convinced that a deposit. is not required for the claimed subject matter.

As set forth in paragraph (c) of this section, in the event that an application for patent is otherwise in condition for allowance except for a needed deposit and the Office has received a written assurance that an acceptable deposit will be made, the Office will mail to the applicant a requirement that the needed deposit be made within three (3) months together with the Notice of Allowance and Issue Fee Due. Although the period for paying the issue fee cannot be extended under the provisions of § 1.136, the period for satisfying the requirement to make an acceptable deposit may be extended under the provisions of that section. Failure to make the needed deposit in accordance with this requirement may be considered a failure to prosecute the application under 35 U.S.C. 133 and result in abandonment of the application.

The type of written assurance which will be considered acceptable by the Office that an acceptable deposit will be made within the required time must include sufficient information to conclude that there is no outstanding issue with regard to the deposit of an appropriate biological material under conditions which satisfy these rules.

In a proceeding involving a patent, it may not be possible to request a certificate of correction of the patent which meets the terms of paragraphs (b) and (c) of § 1.805. For example, if the patent owner is on notice that samples of an original deposit can no longer be furnished by the depository, failure to diligently make a replacement deposit will preclude grant of a certificate of correction. A replacement deposit subsequently made will not be recognized by the Office nor will a request for certificate of correction, even if made promptly thereafter, be granted. It would also not be possible to request a certificate of correction of the patent which meets the terms of paragraphs (b) and (c) of § 1.805 where no original deposit was made before or during the pendency of the application which matured into the patent.

A patent defective because of lack of a necessary deposit is necessarily fatally defective for failure to comply with the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112. Reissue is not available in such cases. See In re Hay, 534 F.2d 917, 189 USPQ 790 (CCPA 1976). Whether reissue is available where a biological material necessary for compliance with 35 U.S.C. 112 was known and readily available at the time of issuance of the patent and subsequently ceased to be readily available is problematic. Nevertheless, the rules do not provide for post-issue original deposits.

Where an applicant for patent has any doubt whether access to a biological material specifically identified in the specification is necessary to satisfy 35 U.S.C. 112 or whether such a material, while presently freely available, may become unavailable in the future, the applicant would be well-advised to make a deposit thereof before any patent issues. Similarly, where a patent owner has any doubt whether a deposit referred to in the specification is of a biological material necessary to satisfy 35 U.S.C. 112 and, if the material is necessary, whether it is otherwise known and readily available, the patent owner would be well-advised to follow the procedures set forth in paragraphs (b) and (c) of § 1.805 after receiving the notice specified in those paragraphs.

Paragraph (d) of this section sets forth the requirements for the content of the specification with respect to a deposited biological material. Specifically, the specification shall contain the accession number for the deposit, the date of the deposit, the name and address of the depository, and a description of the deposited biological material sufficient to specifically identify it and to permit examination. The description must be sufficient to permit verification that the deposited biological material is in fact that disclosed. Once the patent issues, the description must be sufficient to aid in the resolution of questions of infringement. As a general rule, the more information that is provided about a particular deposited biological material, the better the examiner will be able to compare the identity and characteristics of the deposited biological material with the prior art.

OTHER CONSIDERATIONS

The rules are in conformity with the requirements of the Regulatory Flexibility Act (Pub. L. 96-354), Executive Orders 12291 and 12612 and the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, 44 U.S.C. 3501 et seq.

The General Counsel has certified to the Chief Counsel for Advocacy, Small Business Administration, that this rule change is not expected to have a significant adverse economic impact on a substantial number of small entities (Regulatory Flexibility Act, Pub. L. 96-354). The deposit practice will not impose extra work on patent applicants (whether small or large businesses or individuals).

The Patent and Trademark Office has determined that this rule change is not a major rule under Executive Order 12291. The annual effect on the economy will be less than $100 million. There will be no major increases in costs or prices for consumers, individual industries, Federal, State or local government agencies, or geographic regions. There will be no adverse effects on competition, employment, investment, productivity, innovation, or on the ability of United States based enterprises to compete with foreign-based enterprises in domestic or export markets.

The Patent and Trademark Office has also determined that this notice has no Federalism implications affecting the relationship between the National Government and the States as outlined in Executive Order 12612.

These rules contain a collection of information requirement subject to the Paperwork Reduction Act which has been approved by the Office of Management and Budget under Control No. 0651-0022. Public reporting burden for this collection of information is estimated to average one hour per response, including the time for reviewing instructions, searching existing data sources, gathering and maintaining the data needed to make a deposit or request a sample, and completing and reviewing the collection of information. It is further estimated that a respondent depository would spend about five hours collecting and submitting the necessary information to be recognized as a suitable depository by the Office. Send comments regarding this burden estimate or any other aspect of this collection of information, including suggestions for reducing this burden, to the Office of Management and Organization, Patent and Trademark Office, Washington, D.C. 20231, and to the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs, Office of Management and Budget, Washington, D.C. 20503 (Paperwork Reduction Project 0651-0022). No comments regarding this burden estimate or any other aspect of this collection of infomation, including suggestions for reducing this burden, were received in response to the notice of proposed rulemaking.
